Schmitt leaves policing for fishing

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Many people dread driving up and down the tollway system once or twice a day. Imagine doing it five days a week for over 30 years in all types of weather, morning, noon and night.

That is the case of retiring 57-year-old Antioch resident Bill Schmitt, who is leaving his post following over three decades of service. Schmitt will be feted by his fellow troopers, friends and family on Friday evening, August 27, at Connie's Pizza in Aurora.

After traveling up and down the Illinois tollway system for all these years, Schmitt, a father of four grown children, plans on doing more wandering. This time, wife of 26 years, Mary Alice, will join him. This fall, plans are to Ireland and England for two weeks in September. Last summer, the couple took a trip to France and England. The year 2000 has the Schmitts eyeing Italy.

"Every year, we try to go somewhere," Schmitt, an avid fisherman, explained.

Schmitt, a four-year Air Force veteran, was originally from Chicago. The Schmitts spent 25 years in Lindenhurst prior to moving to their lakefront home in Antioch two and one-half years ago.

During his state police tenure, Schmitt served as a road trooper covering the tri-state tollway from the Wisconsin line in Kenosha County to Cermak Road, along with I-294 and I-94. Four years were spent as part of the truck detail weighing and inspecting the big rigs.

Four years, 1982-86, spent as public information officer for District 15 were among the most rewarding for Schmitt. During that time, Schmitt lectured at various high schools, mainly to driver's education classes, and set up along with staffing the display at the Chicago Auto Show.

Schmitt: Retiring trooper has three decades of service

The general public, in addition to those Schmitt had official contact with over the years, may have heard his voice as the tollway traffic reporter with the Wally Phillips Show on WGN Radio.

"It's unbelievable, the people I've met through doing interviews when I was in public relations," Schmitt said, adding, "I was Frank Mathe's first interview when he came to Channel 7."

Some people Schmitt has met in an "official" capacity include Walter Payton and Ernie Banks. "I've been a Cubs fan since 1948, so pulling over Mr. Cub was something," Schmitt said.

From 1982-86, Schmitt served as court officer for District 15, supervising officers in the courts for the 12 counties in northern Illinois.

The last 13 years, until his official retirement on July 31, was spent as platoon commander for the north tri-state tollway and zone supervisor/shift commander for the District 15 headquarters in Downers Grove. The state police has subposts, at which Schmitt had an office at each, at Grand Avenue and the tollway in Gurnee and at Touhy Avenue and the tollway.

"It was just a building with a little zoo," Schmitt said of Great America when he first joined the force on his 27th birthday, March 10, 1969. "They had a camel escape and was it walking down the ramp during our midnight shift."

"The animal enforcement people told us to watch it and tell them where it was because camels can get very ornery," Schmitt said with a smile.

Another animal story involved a cattle truck which overturned on the tollway near Cermak Road in the fog. With visibility at 15-20 feet, Schmitt recalled many drivers were slamming on the brakes as the cattle walked out into traffic and wondering if they

Wapon thanks Antioch for lifetime of lessons

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ

Thanks. Thanks. Thanks.

A visit with longtime Antioch Community High School (ACHS) Coach Steve Wapon began with that one word over and over.

"Thanks to my wife, Ronda, who has been the wife of a coach ever since we got married," Wapon said.

Steve and Ronda met in 1969 while both were at ACHS, then married a year later in 1970.

"She has been a supportive and active part of my coaching all along the way," said Wapon. Ronda coached tennis at Wilmot High School, where the couple's two daughters attended and participated in sports.

Brandi, age 24, and Jami, 22, both were involved in sports while in high school, and when they went on to college. Neither is pursuing a career in coaching, at least not at this time.

"When they were in sixth and seventh grades, I was able to watch them play and continued to do so through their high school careers," Wapon said. Wapon's tenure as ACHS football coach, which spanned 20 seasons, concluded with the girls sports careers starting.

"It's been my good fortune to have a wife who has participated and been supportive all of the way," Wapon said. Ronda will be back at ACHS this school year, teaching family life and consumer science in the new facility.

"Having two daughters grow up in their youngest years with a coaching father who wasn't home much," was the main regret, if one views it that way, Wapon has about his career. "I appreciate the sacrifices they made."

Variety has helped Wapon have a special appreciation for people in different capacities. While at ACHS, in addition to his coaching, Wapon has served as a physical education/health/driver education teacher from 1968-85, assistant principal 1985-93, and currently physical department chairman for education/health/driver's education, a position he has held since 1993.

"They were nice changes," Wapon said of his educational duties. "They came at the right times, each giving me an opportunity to do something a little different."

"Being an assistant principal, I saw a lot of problems students faced by being out there and a part of the community," Wapon explained. "I had an opportunity to help the students, and many times the families as well, get through some tough times."

"That was an education in itself," Wapon added. "It has made me appreciate our assistant principals and anyone who works in that type of capacity."

"Thanks to the parents who sacrificed, and also to the athletes," Wapon said. "Sometimes, we forget about the sacrifices which they, the student-athletes, have to make."

"I today's society, the athlete comes home after practice and has to study," Wapon explained. "They're tugged in a lot of directions."

"Three sport athletes are faced with summer programs, sometimes for all three sports, plus year around conditioning," Wapon continued. "We really need to take a look at how much we should appreciate a 13 through 18-year-old with family and student responsibilities, in addition to being an athlete."

"Every coach needs to stop and

Woman charged with sex assault

Counselor has relationship with Allendale client

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ

A Spring Grove woman has been charged with aggravated criminal sexual assault.

Michelle M. Ferrigan, 21, formerly of Lindenhurst, has been accused of having sexual relations with a 16-year-old male resident of Benet Lake, Wis. Ferrigan, who resides in Spring Grove, was picked up by Lindenhurst police on Aug. 21 and transported to Lake County Jail to await bond.

Police reports said Ferrigan is a former counselor at the Benet Lake facility, a branch of Allendale Services based in Lake Villa.

The victim claims he had a six month sexual relationship with Ferrigan between late Dec. 1998 and early June 1999.

The victim stated in reports that the relationship occurred before and after Ferrigan was a counselor, and he is coming forward with the delayed report because he is concerned about her working at the Alternative Behavior Treatment Center for juvenile sex offenders located in unincorporated of Lake County, although it has a Mundelein mailing address.

"She is no longer employed with

Chamber to host Sept. 1 golf outing

A four person best ball format will be used for the annual Antioch Chamber of Commerce golf outing.

The outing, scheduled Wednesday, Sept. 1 at scenic Spring Valley Country Club in Trevor, Wis., is being held to help raise funds for various Chamber projects.

"Our outing is guaranteed to be a day filled with fun and excitement," said Randy Nolan, outing chairperson.

For information, or to sign up as a single or a foursome, contact the Chamber office 395-2233.—By Michael H. Babicz

Searchers find body in Deep Lake

Specialized efforts result in the finding late afternoon Aug. 25

By JULIANA WALSWORTH
Staff Reporter

Search efforts for a missing Antioch man believed to have drowned continued this week in Deep Lake. Late afternoon Aug. 25, a body had been recovered from the thick tangle of weeds at the bottom of Deep Lake.

The Trident Corporation, A Colorado based non-for- profit agency which specializes in aquatic investigations, began their efforts in helping local rescue squads recover the body of Jeremy Ultsch of rural Antioch. The operation began at 9AM Tuesday morning.

Ultsch had allegedly drowned in Deep Lake over four weeks ago after the boat he and his six friends were jumping off and on to capsized. All but Ultsch were able to swim ashore.

Interviews had been conducted with eye witnesses. Many of the witnesses claim to have seen Ultsch struggling in the water.

On Aug. 22, the squads and witnesses went over a reenactment of the incident to find a concentrated area where the skilled divers would most likely recover the body. The divers were concentrating on the southwest corner of lake.

"The police, sheriff, and fire departments really deserve kudos for all of their efforts. They have really gone above and beyond the call of duty" said Sergeant Dennis Geraty of the Lake Villa Police Department.

Several of Lake County's police, fire, and rescue squads were involved in the search and recovery efforts.

According to Geraty, the day after Ultsch was reported missing in Deep Lake there were no less than 25 groups with divers.

The Trident divers worked Aug. 24 and 25 from 9 a.m. until 2 to 3 a.m. every day. The family of Ultsch was also waiting during the search times at a private area that provided a view of the lake.

Unfortunately, the weather conditions made the search a challenge. The rain drops on the water created a rippling effect, making visibility difficult, according to Geraty.

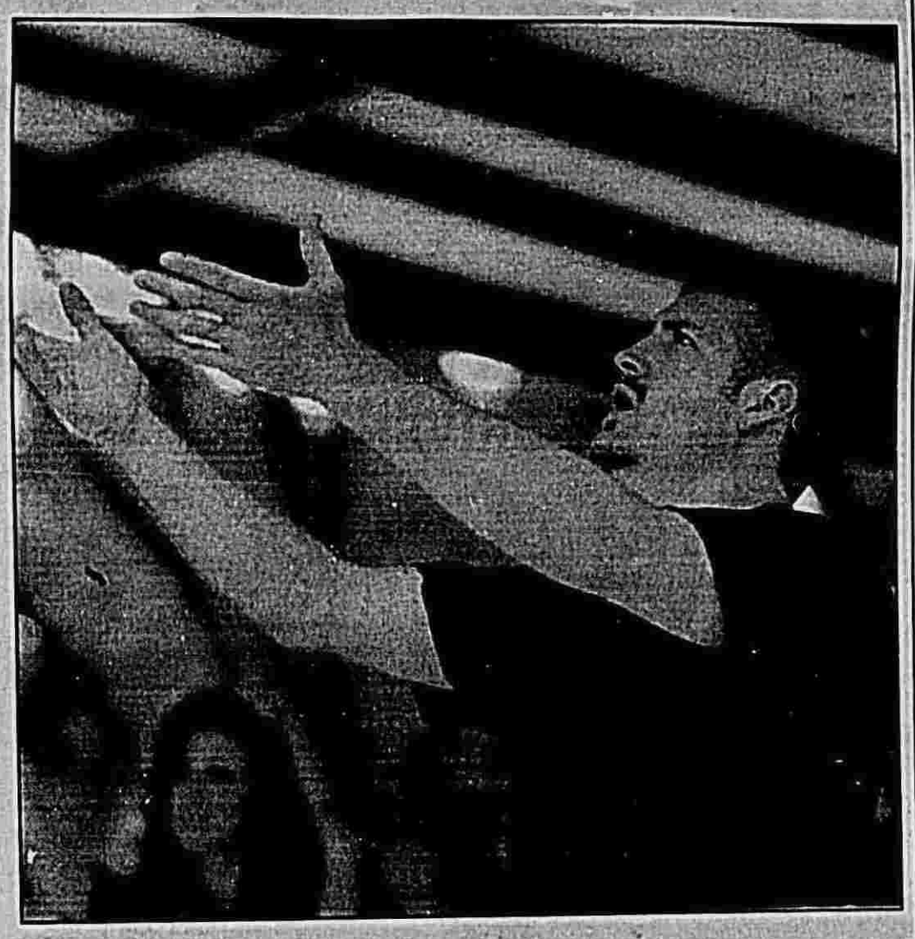

Although the Foundation is non-for-profit, the operation is still very costly.

The family of Ultsch and community members have been very involved in raising the money to make the search operation possible. Funds raised will be used for lodging, airfare, food and supplies for the Trident divers.

The body is presumed to be that of Ultsch pending official autopsy results by the Lake County Coronor's Office.

Hall induction highlights grid opener

Plan on stopping by Antioch Community High School's football field on Saturday, August 28. It will not only be the season opener for the Sequoits against a highly touted Mukwonago, Wis. team, it will feature a special halftime ceremony.

Steve Wapon, who is in the midst of his 50th different sports coaching season guiding the Sequoit Lady Golfers, is being inducted into the ACHS Hall of Fame. A reception is planned at 10:30 a.m. for former players and the community to greet Steve in the cafeteria. Steve will be inducted in the halftime ceremony of the varsity game which kicks off at 1 p.m.

This is an opportunity for the Antioch community to show its support to one of the clasiest individuals to have ever been involved in high school sports in Lake County.

Congratulations to Steve and wife, Ronda, who incidently continues to be Steve's number one supporter. She drove one of the vans on the golf team's preseason ending trip to Wisconsin for some golf along with some swimming and overall fun.

The Antioch Community Chamber of Commerce golf outing will be held at the scenic Spring Valley Country Club in Trevor, Wis. on Wednesday, Sept. 1. Call the Chamber 395-2233 for registration.

Congratulations to two new members of the Antioch Fire Department. The village board added Jeffery Stecher as a probationary member. Michael Wolczyk was added as a active member.

Ever wonder what a "retired" entrepenuer does? Well in the case of Vern Thelen, originator and still part owner of Thelen's Sand & Gravel along with Wilmot Ready Mix, Vern has a very difficult position.

At various golf outings the company is invited to, Vern receives a call from the office telling him what time and at what course he is to tee off at.

"It's a tough job, but somebody has to do it," said Vern, age 70-something, who had a double-eagle last year during one outing. Vern keeps telling his family he's closing in on his age and someday hopes to shoot it.

Was nice visiting with you Vern, at the Antioch Rotary Club's new teacher welcome luncheon.

Keep up that all important public relations work.

Thanks to all who came out and made Capt. Curt's 2nd Annual "Wilmot Wing Ding" a success. It was a lot of fun seeing many people from the Wilmot Speedway racing community coming together with the general public to help raise funds for the Antioch Rescue Squad.

Special thanks goes out to Curt Johnson and his staff of waitresses and bartenders who helped throughout the day. Antioch sprint car drivers Frank Moser and Tommy Sexton were on hand, as was the Capt. Curt's sponsored sprinter of Mike Dubs from Beach Park.

John Jannsen of Genoa City, Wis. was on hand with his IMCA hobby stock. Ross and Tim Johnson, the father-son team from Salem, Wis., from which competed in the cruiser division at Wilmot, were on hand.

Dan Lewis of Antioch had the Jim's Budget Auto Sales/Capt. Curt's demolition derby station wagon receive lots of signatures from wing ding supporters. Dan's wagon failed to last long as it was among the first retirees of his heat at Wilmot Speedway in the Kenosha County Fair Day of Destruction Championships.

Steve Smouse, rescue squad president, brought one of the squads for a while in the afternoon, then had to leave to go on duty.

It was great seeing Truth Warriors headed by "Mom" Janice Poehler, along with Dave Schmidt of Big Fun DJ Entertainment. Steve "Santa Claus" Green was a great help watching Capt. Curt's "prize closet." Appreciation goes out to Andy and Debbie Calin of Premier Racing Productions, Wilmot Speedway promoters; for their support.

Over 60 new teachers get warm welcome at Rotary Club function

By JULIANA WALSWORTH
Staff Reporter

The event's purpose was to honor and give thanks to the people who committed to share their wisdom and positive influence with the young minds of the Antioch community.

More than 60 new teachers and administrative personal attended Antioch Rotary Club's annual New Teacher Lunch.which took place at the Colonial House in North Antioch.

The crowd was much larger this year than in previous years indicating the growth in population primarily in the Millburn area. Seventeen new teachers were hired to begin teaching this month at Millburn Grade School.

There will also be a large number of new faces at Antioch Community High School. The high school has a total of 12 new teachers starting this year, as well as two new dean of students Judy Smithhisler and Dan Chamernick.

There are also two new teachers at Emmons Grade School; one new teacher at Grass Lake School; five new teachers at Antioch Lower Grade School; five new teachers at Antioch Upper Grade School; three new teachers at Oakland School; and five new teachers at St. Peter Grade School.

Each new teacher and administrative staff member who attended the Rotary ceremony was given a moment in the spotlight to introduce him or herself.

This was a chance for all attendents to get to know other teachers they will be working with as well as a chance to thank the Rotary Club for its hospitality.

Rotary officials said they wanted to invite new teachers from District 41 as well but were unable due to lack of space in the dining area.

The club does plan on sending the new teachers who were unable to attend a special gift.

SCHMITT: Off patrol after 30 years really were seeing things or not.

In all of his years, Schmitt never delivered any babies. "I assisted on one at the old Deerfield Plaza," Schmitt proudly said.

The world of a state police trooper can be somewhat lonely. Troopers always ride solo. The only exception is if a rookie is receiving "on the job training," then they will ride along.

"I hated midnights," Schmitt said, of one of the few drawbacks to his career. "When I first came on, we switched shifts every two weeks. So we'd be on midnights two weeks, then evenings two weeks, then days two weeks."

In the past few years, the department moved to a permanent shift for Schmitt, which was days.

"Now I'll have all my weekends off," Schmitt said in relief.

Schmitt's wife, Mary Alice, is a St. Therese Hospital administrator and still has a couple of years before she will retire. Their oldest daughter, Kate, 24, is working at the New Beginnings Program, part of the Central Baptist Children's Home in Lake Villa. Neil, 22, works at Antioch Auto Parts. Son Keith, 21, is a Lyons-Ryan Ford of Antioch salesman, and is on the Antioch Police Department waiting list. The youngest son, 20-year-old Mathew, is a senior at Eastern Illinois University majoring in marketing.

Among the more unusual cases Schmitt has been involved in include "naked drivers."

"We actually had a naked woman on a bicycle near Irving Park Road and the tollway," Schmitt said, shaking his head.

The most difficult cases Schmitt encountered were when children were hurt or killed. "It's not their fault," Schmitt explained. "Notifying the next of kin was extremely hard."

DUI arrests are not slowing down, as observed by Schmitt. "There's still a tremendous amount of them on the tollway," Schmitt said. "We are building more manpower on the road, so we are getting more arrests."

One factor the public is often not aware of is the amount of time an arresting officer spends on one DUI arrest. Three to four hours will be spent on one DUI stop, according to Schmitt.

"There's no such thing like the old days when you gave the person a pass, gave them a ride home or called and had their wife come and pick them up," Schmitt explained. "Now, with the added media pressure, when you get stopped, you get arrested."

For Schmitt, the career in police work was a spin-off of his lifelong ambition. In his high school yearbook, Schmitt recalled writing he wanted to be a forest ranger. "That was until I found out what it paid," Schmitt laughed.

A successful career in the banking industry found the young Schmitt starting out in a teller's cage, then moving into commercial loan officer at Pioneer Trust Company in downtown Chicago.

"I didn't like working inside," Schmitt said of the reason for giving up on the financial business career. "I like being outdoors."

Regarding a law enforcement career, especially at the state police level, the biggest change in the past 30 years has been in education. "You need an education nowadays," Schmitt explained. "I came on with a high school education. Then I got my two-year associates degree at College of Lake County."

By June, 2000, a four year degree will be required. Presently, two years plus 60 hours is necessary to be considered for the academy.

The state police are branching out and becoming more specialized. The state has its own investigative division, including evidence technicians. "It's a more specialized unit," Schmitt said. "We, the trooper, used to have to do it all ourselves."

A gang crime unit and DARE program are among the new divisions. "We're not just road troopers anymore," Schmitt admitted. "We're a full service law enforcement organization."

The technology being used is more sophisticated. Police squads are equipped with computers. "It's so fast now, you can run a driver's license check and have the results in 30 seconds," Schmitt explained. "It used to take anywhere from five to 15 minutes."

"We can find out if the car or driver, provided it's the owner of the car, is wanted before we even get out of the car," Schmitt explained. "It's a lot safer, due to the time factor, for us to know what we're dealing with before walking up blindly to the vehicle."

Despite the increased media coverage of officers being shot and crimes involving weapons, Schmitt has not seen an increase in armed individuals.

"The laws are changing, where the courts are penalizing people for carrying and using guns," Schmitt revealed. "The penalties are much more severe."

"I'm a big proponent of seat belts," Schmitt stressed. "I've seen many people walk away from an accident today because they were wearing a seat belt."

"I remember receiving a call about a Blazer which rolled over seven or eight times on the Route 120 (Belvidere Road) ramp near Waukegan," Schmitt recalled. "I thought for sure it was a fatality when I pulled up and saw the condition of the vehicle. The driver walked away with a couple bumps and a few scratches."

As advice to persons interested in a law enforcement career, Schmitt recommends getting a four-year college degree with a major in law enforcement. By doing that, Schmitt sees many opportunities opening up including state, local police departments, Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), FBI and even secret service.

When Schmitt joined the force, he received extra points on his test for his Air Force military career. The state police keeps a file of "PIC" cards on candidates for the force. Prior to having a PIC card, a candidate must complete physical and psychological testing, among other written tests. A person remains on the list, based upon their test scores, for one and a half to two years. Then new cards are put into the system.

The love of outdoors is exemplified by Schmitt's daily fishing on the Chain O' Lakes out in front of his home. When he was younger, Schmitt recalls fishing in Lake Michigan off Montrose Harbor and Irving Park Lagoon. As he grew older, and when the family came along, trips to Wisconsin and Canada for fishing were common.

"I remember using the old trolleys with the smelt nets," Schmitt said, thinking back to his early fishing days.

Golf is another method of stress relief for Schmitt. Schmitt and his wife are both into collecting antiques, going to sales and doing some refinishing himself.

"My wife has really made our family," Schmitt emphasized. "She has a registered nurse, bachelors and masters degree in hospital administration. She raised four children, kept the house clean and cooked, in addition to working a full-time job."

Wapon, a class act , has few regrets, if any at all

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Like Frank Sinatra, Coach Steve Wapon may have a few regrets about coaching decisions, but he has certainly done it his way . . . with the utmost class.

The 1982 Illinois High School Association (IHSA) state football semifinal game against Robeson of Chicago at Soldier's Field is a game which stands out.

"Many people have asked if I regretted throwing that pass with 42 seconds left," Wapon said, recalling the interception which led to the Robeson game winning field goal. "I don't regret us throwing the pass, just that the game was about one minute too long. That's what I regret."

"That loss probably stung the most, since that's the closest we've ever been to the state football championship game," Wapon admits.

The community involvement has been tremendous over the years. Seeing a 34-bus caravan going down the expressway to Soldier's Field "was a tremendous thrill to be a part of," according to Wapon.

The state tournament gives teams the ability to see how they "stack up" against the best in Illinois, an aspect Wapon enjoys.

Personally, Wapon sees himself having been "an average athlete" participating in football, baseball and basketball when he was in high school.

"I'm a better person for it," Wapon said of his playing experience. "I was never a great star. That helped make me realize the people on the teams who are contributors, maybe not headliners, and where they fit in."

"Successful teams have very few stars," Wapon continued. "The people who come to practice all of the time and sacrifice for the betterment of the overall team hold a special place for me."

"Football is the ultimate team game, and I've always liked the emotion of it," Wapon admits. "My heart has always been with football."

"I've enjoyed the ability to work with softball, golf and wrestling, with wrestling being a close second," Wapon said of his personal likeness, admitting it is mainly due to the enthusiasm aspect.

"In golf and softball, you can't really do it that way," Wapon said of the letting go of emotion. "If you have too much emotion, you can't hit the ball correctly. You've got to have controlled emotion."

Some of Wapon's athletes have gone on to have some professional experience. Kurt Kapischke, a member of Antioch's first state football playoff team in 1979, was recruited out of the hallways his senior year. Kapischke went on to earn All-American honors at Augustana College and played with the Green Bay Packers.

Matt Humphries of the 1985 football squad signed a professional free agent contract. There have been quite a number of athletes in all of the sports which Wapon has coached who went on to play in college, many with scholarships.

Seeing former athletes who have come back "as successful, contributing members of society" means more to Wapon than seeing them succeed athletically.

"It's such a treat to see people, former athletes and students, who come back and are married, have families and careers," Wapon said, admitting he thinks about how old he is getting when he has children of former students coming through.

"We have former players who come back and teach or coach, which gives me a real sense of satisfaction for what kind of person they've become," Wapon stated. "The big picture in athletics is much bigger than winning. It's teaching people how to accept in a positive way when they don't win. You need to get up, dust yourself off, and move on."

"Each team that's been there has had a leader or key people who were special and played a part in making that team go," Wapon said, referring to various teams which went to the state tournament or won conference titles, etc. "The ability to have the community involvement which we've had, especially at those times, has been tremendous. We are fortunate to have a big parents group which is always there, no matter what."

The growth in girls' athletics has been something Wapon has witnessed and been a part of. "The big thing, is the girls have the opportunity to play sports in their younger years. It's gotten a lot better," Wapon added.

Softball, gymnastics, basketball and golf have seen an increase in off-season programs which is continuing to help.

"Boys have been participating for the better part of 100 years," Wapon said. "The girls have been involved not half that long at the same level. The girls are blending into outstanding athletes who are finally getting some of the same opportunities as the guys."

us based on police reports and DCFS (Department of Children and Family Services) licensing," said Robin McGinnis, center president, who declined any further comment.

Lindenhurst Police Chief Jack Mckeever said the assaults occurred in her Lindenhurst home on Dittner Lane. Initially, Ferrigan denied the charges during police interviews, but later "came in voluntarily and admitted to the relationship."

Ferrigan was initially hired by Allendale in September, 1998. According to Allendale officials, Ferrigan was terminated during her normal probationary period "for violation of agency policies and procedures."

The alleged victim came to Allendale authorities in July. At that time, Allendale followed its established procedures. DCFS Child Abuse Hot Line was notified, as was the local police.

"Allendale took the lead and was diligent in following through and continues to cooperate fully with both DCFS and the local authorities regarding the investigation," the Allendale spokesperson stated.

None of the alleged incidents happened at the Benet Lake facility, according to Allendale officials.

"Allendale Association has a long tradition of providing quality care and treatment to children and adolescents, and considers the safety and well being of our clients in our care our most important responsibility," concluded the Allendale statement.

According to police reports, Ferrigan was fired from her counselor position at Benet Lake after authorities became suspicious of the nature of her relationship with the juvenile.

Ferrigan said the relationship did not begin until after she left her counseling job and also claimed her involvement with the victim did not last as long as he alleges.

The DCFS in Round Lake Beach was alerted by Lindenhurst police. The on-going investigation has been turned over to the state's attorney.

Bond was set at $50,000 by Associate Judge John T. Phillips. Ferrigan will appear in court on Aug. 27 for a preliminary hearing.

WAPON: Hall of fame bound look at what they ask their athletes to do, and appreciate their efforts," Wapon emphasized.

"If I had to do it all over again, I feel very fortunate for my years at Antioch," Wapon said. "Both the athletic and academic programs are top notch. That starts with the top, with the board of education, administration on down."

"We at Antioch have been blessed with the support of three communities, Antioch, Lake Villa and Lindenhurst," Wapon continued. "They have a great interest in their high school. The community support has made the years fly by."

A Vacation That's Out of This World!

by JIM WARNKEN, President, North Star Travel, Inc.

You may have to wait up to five years, and it's going to cost about what you paid for your house, but you can buy a ticket for a flight to outer space!

This is no "Buck Rogers" fantasy. (Anyone under 50 remember Buck Rogers? Maybe Flash Gordon. How about Captain Video?).

Anyhow, Space Adventures Inc., a company made up of four real astronauts and a team of scientists, is offering passengers a chance to travel 62 miles above the earth into the star-filled blackness of outer space. During some of the one-hour flight you'll float weightless while you view the curvature of the earth. Cost of a ticket will be around $80,000 and, yes, you can get them from your travel agent. (Sorry, no super-saver fares available).

A little pricey for you? Don't want to wait 5 years? Next year for less than $12,000, plus airfare to Moscow, Space Adventures will fly to the edge of space in the world's fastest military jet, the Russian MiG-25. (A dividend of the end of the Cold War). At an altitude of almost 20 miles, you'll have no problem seeing the earth's curvature.

For less than half that price, another former U.S. astronaut will take you up in a Russian IL-76 MDK, which was used by the Russian Space Agency to prepare cosmonauts for space travel. No need to "stay in your seats and keep your seat belt fastened". In fact, during about 10 minutes of the flight, you'll fly, roll, and spin weightless throughout the cabin! Ron Howard took this flight as preparation for directing the movie "Apollo 13". He described it as "exhilarating beyond anything I've ever done".

If you would rather confine your space adventure to this planet, and also keep the cost of your fun under $1000, then consider Terrestrial Tours' offer of a chance to stay at a space camp in Houston, Washington or even Moscow, and train as an astronaut. You'll actually build and launch your own 10-foot-high rocket.

Even if your vacation plans are "out of this world", your travel agent is here to help.

Mom's favorite time of year

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Lynn Pringle

There was from-the-belly bellow that permeated through the county this week. The sound, of mom's everywhere joining in the chorus, as their little cherubs climbed onto those big yellow vehicles at the end of the driveway. It was, of course, caregivers across the municipality cheering, shouting, and singing that indeed the school year had once again begun. Praise God.

With inclement weather prevailing the last week of summer vacation, rendering the normal regiment of outside activities impractical, daytime guardians were even more gleeful for that first day. Oh sure there were still those relatively new moms, seeing little Betty Lou and Johnnie off to school for the first time, who found themselves choked up and somber, but given a couple days of new found freedom, those moms will soon be the happiest to join in the 8:15 a.m. all-the-kids-are-in-school-for-the-day jamboree.

Whether you are a stay-at-home mom looking for a few hours of solitude, or a working mom tired of talking between clenched teeth into the phone for the 100th time that day to children at home unsupervised—tis' the season.

And for those moms who are finally able to usher the last of their offspring into the care of a teacher, ah yes, now is the time where the household is void of children for an entire morning or afternoon, five days a week. Moms across America vow to read one of those Oprah recommended novel, or join a health club, or meet friends for a cup of espresso.

Perhaps you will wile the hours away pampering yourself with a pedicure, or facial. Maybe take in an afternoon movie, maybe even an afternoon nap. Don't get too hopeful through because between class parties, school meetings, lunch duty, household chores, and never ending errands, coffee clutches won't be happening anytime too soon, except in the school parking lot to discuss whose turn it is to drive the car pool.

Of course you will still have the moms who put on a brave front for the youngsters. These moms, in fuzzy duck slippers, hug little Betsy tightly as she is escorted up those foreboding bus stairs. All teary eyed and weepy, she kisses the little one good-bye and gives an extra squeeze to sustain the child through the day, hoping when the child returns home that afternoon she will still need her mother and not have grown up beyond her years. As little Susie makes her way down the aisle to find a safe seat, she waves forelornly through the steaming bus windows at dear mom. Mom chokes back a sob, and stands at the end of the driveway, holding the morning paper, clutching her bathrobe closed.

As she watches the bus turn the corner on its journey to school, through tear-filled eyes, she scours the neighborhood making sure no one is watching, and then she begins doing the "I'm free at last, thank God, I'm free at last" shuffle all the way back to the kitchen.

And so the school year begins. Yes.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

HIV Coalition seeks volunteers

The HIV Coalition, an organization that helps meet the needs of our suburban neighbors living with HIV/AIDS, needs volunteers to deliver food boxes to clients in Lake County.

In addition, people are needed to pack food boxes, collect food at local grocery stores and perform a variety of office support tasks associated HIVCO's Hand-to-Hand Food Network.

HIVCO is the oldest and largest provider of food, education, information and referral and networking services in the suburbs of Chicago.

If you want to help or would like more information, call HIVCO at 228-5200.

WARREN'S DANIELS PRESEASON PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Senior RB set to run wild for Blue Devils

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Big things come in small packages and that's what Warren's Dante Daniels is out to prove this year.

The senior tailback missed nearly half of the season last year after straining his achilles.

"I think everything's pretty cool with it now," said Daniels. "Intense working out last winter and running track really helped get me stronger."

Speaking of track, the 5'8, 170-pounder certainly didn't show any signs of that injury in sprinting to a state championship in the 200-yard dash last spring.

But now it's time to do it on the gridiron, and Daniels is certainly capable. His lightening speed and low center of gravity should wreak havoc on opposing tacklers.

"He's definitely a lot stronger this year," said Blue Devil head coach Dave Mohapp. "He has the tremendous ability to break tackles and should be hard to bring down this year. That's a credit to the hard work in the offseason."

Daniels, who raced for nearly 600 yards last year, has his sights set on a little more this season. That quest will start with the opener this Friday at MSL power Buffalo Grove in non-conference action.

"That would be nice," he said on trying to eclipse the 1,000 mark. "But honestly, I'd like to make it through a complete season without any injuries. It's been a couple of years since I've played an entire season. If that happens, 1,000 yards is definitely in the picture because I think I'm up there with some of the better backs in the area."

As far as the Devils as a team is concerned, Daniels will have fullback C.J. Cusker, also a senior, working with him in the backfield.

"I've played with C.J. for four years, so we're very familiar with each other's styles," noted Daniels. "He's a pretty powerful fullback. It's easy to read off of his moves."

Now when he's not running toward you with the ball, Daniels might very well be looking to stick you on the defensive side.

Warren's success may very well be contingent on the Devils backfield, but don't forget about that defense, where Cusker is at his best and Daniels may join him as part of the Devils secondary.

"We have a nice mix of young players and veterans, especially on defense," he said. " We have a lot of very athletic athletes on this team because we hit the weights hard over the summer. The team is definitely stronger, but we're not overlooking anyone."

And the opposition better not overlook Daniels, or the Blue Devils as far as that's concerned.

Senior running back Dante Daniels goes through drills at the Devil's summer practice last week.

Refs deserve a pop?

By ROB BACKUS
Staff Reporter

Maybe referees and umpires "deserve a pop every once in awhile." Those are the words of Illinois state senate president James "Pate" Philip while discussing house bill 448. House bill 448 was designed to amend the Criminal Code of 1961.

The bill states that battery against a sports official during a game or in the vicinity of the stadium, field, etc. is considered aggravated battery, a Class 4 felony. Therefore, battery against a sports official would be punishable by a minimum of a $1000 fine and 1-3 years in a state correctional facility.

The bill passed unanimously in the house and 33-16 in the senate but was vetoed by Governor George H. Ryan on August 14.

Ryan vetoed it due to its broad language on who can be considered a sports official. Ryan seems to think that the term sports official could also include coaches, assistants, trainers, ushers, ticket-takers, or other stadium personnel.

James "Pate" Phillip
President of State Senate

According to Barry Mano, founder and president of the National Association of Sports Officials (NASO), the language of the bill was understood by governors in 13 other states who recently passed similar bills. Obviously "Pate" Philip understood what a sports official was when he made the afore-mentioned comment about refs "deserving a pop."

The NASO has requested an audience with Ryan to discuss the language of the bill and how it should be changed. As of press time, Ryan had yet to grant an audience to the NASO.

The bill was sponsored in the house by Rep. Tom Johnson of West Chicago and co-sponsored by 13 others, including Rep. Timothy Osmond of Antioch.

According to Osmond the bill was a "good bill." Osmond also stated that the bill "would have made examples of people who assault sports officials. It would have made people think twice before doing something."

Osmond plans to meet with Johnson to discuss a re-introduction of the bill, perhaps worded differently. He also plans to meet with Ryan so the bill can be change to Ryan's liking. Refs all over the state are hoping for the bill's eventual passing.

A quick hit on Lakeland-Area teams heading into the last season of the century!

BIG NORTHERN (RED)

year: 8-2 (lost first round 3A playoffs) layers: QB Brad Toussaint (Sr); LB/FB Ray Hass (Sr); OL Zoiss (Sr); WR Ben Janik (Sr).
ook: Johnsburg, no stranger to the post-season in recent , brings a young team to the table this season. Two gths for the Skyhawks and head coach Bob Bradshaw rely e arm of quarterback Brad Toussaint and the foot of punter Janik. If the team gels as a whole and the traditional defense s its own, Johnsburg will be in the playoffs again.

1999 Varsity Schedule

7	7:30	Grant
	7:30	North Chicago
0	7:30	at Winnebago
7	7:30	Richmond-Burton
4	5:30	Burlington Central*
1	7:30	at Marengo*
8	7:30	Harvard*
15	7:30	at Oregon*
22	7:00	Byron*

st year: 4-5, (3-3 NSC)
y players: RB Dante Daniels (Sr); FB/DE C.J. Cusker (Sr); R/DB Josh Gray (Sr); OL Joe Doering (Sr).
utlook: The Devils are young with only three returning arters from a year ago. If senior Dante Daniels can avoid in- ries, a 1,000-yard season is imminent. The defensive will be chored by defensive end C.J. Cusker, who will look to build on all-conference year as a junior. If these ingredients fall into ace, look for Warren to contend for a playoff berth in what ould be a very competetive North Suburban Conference.

1999 Varsity Schedule

/28	2 p.m.	at Buffalo Grove
/3	7:30	Glenbard East
/9	7:30	Stevenson*
/18	1 p.m.	at Libertyville*
/24	7:30	Mundelein*
0/1	7:30	at Zion-Benton*
0/9	1 p.m.	North Chicago*
0/16	1 p.m.	at Antioch*
0/23	1 p.m.	at Lake Forest

ast year: 6-4, 4-3 (lost first round 5A playoffs)
ey players: QB Don Lackey (Sr); WR Jim Richardson (Sr); RB Adam Niles (Sr); OL Luke Denoma (Sr); OL Jeff Giernoth (Sr).
Outlook: Senior quarterback Don Lackey should feast on a host of talented recievers, most notably wide reciever Jim Richardson, an all-conference selection last season. If they stay healthy, the Sequoits should contend for the NSC crown along with Stevenson and Libertyville. Regardless, Antioch is definitely eyeballing a return trip to the postseason.

1999 Varsity Schedule

/28	1 p.m.	Mukwonago, WI
/3	7:30	at Fenton
/11	1 p.m.	at North Chicago*
/17	7:30	at Zion-Benton*
/25	1 p.m.	at Libertyville*
0/2	1 p.m.	Mundelein*
0/9	1 p.m.	Lake Forest*
0/16	1 p.m.	Warren*
0/22	7:30	at Stevenson*

ibertyville

ast year: 10-1, 7-0 (lost 6A second round playoffs)
ey players: RB Aaron Anton (Sr); RB/DB Gerett Burl (So); R/DB Jake Voigt (Sr); QB/OLB Chris Dydo (Jr).
utlook: Everyone will be chasing Libertyville and Stevenson r the NSC crown. One key for the Wildcats will be the development of younger players such as sophomore RB/DB Gerett Burl and junior QB/OLB Chris Dydo. On the offense, the Wildcats will be anchored by a spectacular backfield that features Dydo, Burl, and senior RB Aaron Anton. If these ingredients fall into place, the Wildcats have an excellent chance of repeating.

1999 Varsity Schedule

8/27	7 p.m.	at New Trier
9/3	7:30	at Marian (Woodstock)
9/9	6:30	at Mundelein*

9/25	1 p.m.	Antioch*
10/2	1 p.m.	Lake Forest*
10/9	1 p.m.	Zion-Benton*
10/15	7:30	at Stevenson*
10/23	1 p.m.	at North Chicago*

Mundelein

Last year: 3-6, 2-5
Key players: QB/DB Ben Hodges (Sr); TE/DE Drew Simonis (Sr); OL/LB Mike Shipley (Sr); RB/DB Josh Gruenewald (Jr).
Outlook: The Mustangs will run the option with junior RB Josh Gruenewald and senior QB Ben Hodges. They are undersized on defense so speed will be the key with senior LB Mike Shipley anchoring the defense. If they can take advantage of their speed and athleticism, the Mustangs can seriously compete in the tough North Suburban Conference.

1999 Varsity Schedule

Fox Valley
Grayslake

Last year: 2-7, (2-7)
Key players: QB Willie Wright (Sr), RB Casey Gantt (Sr); RB Joe Kupfer (Sr); DT Rob Petry (Sr).
Outlook: If Gantt and Kupfer can establish a potent ground game and quarterback Wright produces through the air, the Rams should finish in the upper-half of what is a very potent Fox Valley Conference, which features 5A quarterfinalists McHenry and Cary-Grove.

1999 Varsity Schedule

Catholic Metro (Green)
Carmel

Last year: 4-5, 2-3
Key players: QB Pat McMahon (Jr); RB Ben Lawrence (Jr); RB Brandon Strickland (Jr); DL Frank Lombardo (Sr).
Outlook: The Corsairs' traditional running scheme will hinge on juniors Pat McMahon (QB), Ben Lawrence (RB), and Brandon Strickland (RB). Speed is the asset on defense behind senior DL Frank Lombardo. If the Corsairs can come out above .500 after the first three games, they will be off and running in the Catholic Metro (Green) Conference.

INDEPENDENTS

Round Lake

Last year: 5-4
Key players: WR/DB Albert Lozano (Sr); QB Dallas Bassett (Sr); DE Quentin Davis (Jr); C/G Matt Rapier (Sr).
Outlook: The Panthers, in their last year as an independent before joining the realigned North Suburban, should post a six win season in qualifying for the playoffs. A lot will be dependent on two-way starter Albert Lozano, a three-sport athlete, and the arm of quarterback Josh Bassett.

1999 Varsity Schedule

Wauconda

Last year: 7-3 (lost 1st round 4A playoffs)
Key players: G Scott Nebel (Sr); QB Matt Jensen (Sr); RB Larry Teeling (Sr); WR John White (Sr); SS Jen Shipbaugh (Sr).
Outlook: A strong offseason, the momentum from last years success, and eight starters back from last years 7-3 playoff team should spell a return trip to the post-season dance again in 1999. The run-and-shoot style offense will be guided by senior quarterback Matt Jensen, while the defense will be anchored by defenders Jen Shipbaugh at strong safety, cornerback Brandon Flynn, and Steve Ahlberg at tackle.

1999 Varsity Schedule

Grant

Last year: 5-4
Key players: RB/DL Robert Reyes (Sr); FB Leo LaBrie (Sr); QB Aaron Behm (Sr); RB/S Taylor Schmit (Sr).
Outlook: The Bulldogs success looks to fall in the hands of senior signal-caller Aaron Behm, who, in addition to having a strong arm, rushed for 884 yards and 10 touchdowns on last years 5-4 squad. The Grant offense should produce the points with Behm, who has a strong combination of veteran and young players behind him as well as a solid corp of recievers to throw to.

'Check' this out!

Over the years, I have developed a great admiration for those handicapped and less fortunate individuals, especially when it comes to participation in sports.

There are all kinds of organizations locally and nationwide that are designed with the purpose of assisting these special athletes. One that has really caught my attention though is The Great Lakes Adaptive Sports Association, which is in its inaugural year and is based out of Vernon Hills.

The GLASA provides recreational and competetive sports opportunities for both youths and adults with primary physical or visual impairments in northern Illinois. The organization is unlike Special Olympics in that the diabilities of the athletes main disability is not cognitive such as the Special Olympians.

The GLASA, which is run by mostly volunteers, strives to promote and support optimal developement and well-being for its youths and adults who have a primary visual or physical impairment through the provision of inclusive recreational, fitness and competetive sports activities. Furthermore, GLASA offers opportunities for empowerment through education, leadership and training in collaboration with community-based organizations.

Athletes participating in the GLASA benefit from higher self-esteem, having fun, and promoting spirit and teamwork.

The GLASA is unique in that it draws athletes from as far south as the south side of Chicago to as far north as Green Bay, Wisc.

There are no residency restrictions and fees are kept to a minimum to encourage participation for everyone.

While many of GLASA's athletes compete on the recreational level, there are many others who carry the competition to the local, regional, national, and even international levels.

But sticking with the local level for now, one of the sports GLASA is seeking to promote and obtain sponsorship for is a Wheelchair Ice Hockey Program, which would be conducted at the Rinkside Sports Ice Rink in Gurnee Mills.

One of the major hurdles confronting the GLASA is the high cost for ice time, which GLASA, as a non-profit organization, is not able to entirely fund.

The disabled atheltes of GLASA would really appreciate any assistance fans and the surrounding community could generate. Basically, the amount of $2,080 would need to be raised for an eight-week program, a one-hour youth program, and a one hour adult program.

For anyone interested in contributing and/or competing can call (847) 249-8685.

And finally, kudos to the Round Lake Park District's Lifeguards, who recently recieved accolades for the accomplishments at its facility. And even further kudos to five of its members, who also won first place in the IPRA State Lifeguard Games. The five members include; Head Guards Josh Styx and Wyndi Welzen; Asst. Manager Stacy Perna, and lifeguards Charlie Dennis and Kim Meyer. Congratulations to Aquatics Manager Mike Kies and his team for their accomplishments this summer!

The girls of summer!!

By JANNAN J. KHURI
Correspondent

The crack of a baseball bat as it sends a well hit ball into centerfield, the savory smell of a hickory barbecue, and, the youthful sounds of laughter and water splashing at an area park district pool—all these familiar sights and sounds of summer will all soon be gone, but not forgotten. For the Lindenhurst Legend's fastpitch softball team, the summer of '99 will be one to remember.

It was the summer that the Legend and Head Coach Mitch Kotlarz traveled to North and South Carolina to compete with 688 other teams in the NSA (National Softball Association) World Series. According to Kotlarz, it was the team's first attempt at qualifying and competing in the double-elimination tournament since the team's inception six years ago.

"The team had the choice of competing at two levels of play and chose the higher, and more competitive level that took place in Carolina," said Kotlarz.

The Legend played the best they've played all season, according to the team's catcher, Megs Kotlarz. The Legend managed a 2-1 record in the tournament, good for 47th place.

In their first game of the tournament, the Legend took on the Hudson River Bandits from New York, prevailing 5-4 in advancing.

In their next game, the Legend lost to the Quad Cities Shockers 2-1 in extra innings.

In game three, the Legend pulled off an emotionally- charged victory and defeated the team from Alpharetta, Ga. by the skin of their teeth, 2-1. The final game that eliminated the Legend from the tournament and ended their memorable season was a 3-1 loss to the team from Evansville, Ind., a defeat that brought tears to the Legend's eyes, according to (Megs) Kotlarz.

Following the disappointing loss, the team discussed how well they played and how they plan to improve next year.

Coach Kotlarz said, "For the players as well as myself, we learned the most from the experience."

He added that it was so exciting and that the teams competing were very good. The better teams challenged the Legend themselves to play better.

Megs, a recent graduate of Antioch high school, said in the final game the Legend was "trying too hard to get big hits, while the other team was able to rack up runs by getting single hits and advancing players on the basepaths."

She added that offensively they did pretty well but that they needed to be more serious when it came to game time.

During the year, Megs said there were some personality conflicts that involved some players not giving one hundred percent but that once those girls decided to leave, the team was able to gel.

In the upcoming months, the Legend will be holding tryouts for next year. They will also be conducting hitting and pitching clinics.

For girls interested in trying out for the team or attending the clinics, Mitch Kotlarz can be reached at (847) 356-9547. Girls from the ages of 10-18 throughout Lake County are eligible to attend and don't need to be residents of Lindenhurst.

Sequoits success in Lackey's hands

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

There not the biggest team by Sequoit standards, but with five starters back on each side of the ball, an NSC title isn't out of reach.

One things for sure-it should be an aerial show for the Sequoits this year.

That's because senior Don Lackey, the 6'5, 190-pound Sequoit signal-caller will be looking to guide his team back to the playoffs.

Last season, ACHS finished tied for third in the NSC at 4-3 and concluded 6-3 overall before falling in the first round of the playoffs.

"Don will definitely run the show," said 12th year head coach Del Pechauer. "He's got great height and a strong arm. His height enables him to see over the heads of the defenders. He's not the fastest, but his quickness will more than suffice."

Last year, Lackey passed for almost 1,000 yards. He will also see some time at safety on the defensive side of the ball.

Pechauer is hoping that Lackey will still run the ball as part of the Sequoits option offense, but "we'd like to see him pitch a little more this year."

When going to the air, Lackey will have all-NSC player Jim Richardson as his primary target. Richardson, a 6'3, 175-pound senior wideout, posted over 600 yards receiving to go along with six touchdowns. Richardson will perhaps also see some time at cornerback on defense.

Lackey will also have senior tight end, senior Kelli Owens (6'3, 185) as another favorite target. Owens missed last year because of a knee injury and, according to Pechauer, is a "great target for Don."

The rushing game doesn't look to shabby either, with senior Adam Niles (5'7, 160) and junior Adam Durham (6'2, 190) in the backfield.

The offensive line needs some work but returning starters, seniors Luke Denoma (6'0, 185) and Jeff Giernoth (6'3, 235) providing leadership and enough time for Lackey to throw the ball.

Defensively, the Sequoits will rely on several key players; inside linebackers Kris Vanderkooy (5'8, 212) and Conrad Adkins (5'11, 207), both returning seniors.

Juniors Eric White (6'3, 180) and Arie Brown (6'2, 175) will see time at defensive back, as will strong safety Jeremi Wicinski (5'8, 160). Pechauer said Wicinski's "not big, but you'll know it when he hits you."

Additional lineman competing for jobs include junior Mike Perrone (5'11, 258) and J.T. Litchfield (6'1, 190). Junior Jeff Petersen (5'10, 204) looks to have a lock on one of the starting guard positions, while senior Nick Cullen (6'3, 245) will add some size to the defensive line.

"We have the experience in the defensive backfield," said Pechauer. "But we can always be a little tougher. We just need to go out and force some tumovers and maintain good field position."

Lindenhurst Turbos capture USA cup

In its first-ever major tournament, the Lindenhurst Turbos Boys U-16 soccer team captured the USA Schwan's Cup this summer in Blaine, Minn.

The Turbos had 14 of 18 players attending and got off to a rocky start at 0-2-1.

The Turbos lost to the Centennial Anacondas from Circle Pines, Minn., 1-0, and 3-2 to the Aurora Sting Green from Aurora, Colo. The Turbos began to click in the third game, which ended in a 1-1 tie with the St. Paul., Minn. Blackhawks, thus earning a spot in the "C' bracket.

The Turbos rose to the occassion, posting a 4-1 victory against its opening-round foe, the White Bear Bears of White Bear Lake, Minn.

The Turbos then defeated Arden Hills, Minn., 4-3, as the front line and mid-field players, including Jason Adams, Chris Cole, Brian Kraenzle and Alex Sandberg played major roles.

The Kickers from Brooklyn Park were next in the title game. The score was tied 1-1 heading into a shootout, where five penalty kicks were taken by the Turbos' Dan Blagojevic, Mike Marchetti, Jason Myers, Jeff Prorok, and Adam Richter. Both keepers stopped two shots apiece. A "sudden-death shootout" ensued and the Turbos' Matt Peterson took the first shot and put the ball in the back of the net and now it was up to the Turbos' keeper Jeremy Witt. Whitt came up big in blocking the Kickers shot and the Turbos found themselves The Schwan USA Cup champions!

In its first-ever major tournament, the U-16 Lindenhurst Turbo boys soccer team claimed first place in The Schwan's USA Cup, held in Blaine, Minnesota. Above, the champions consist of, top row, from left, coach Don Blagojevic, players Jeremy Witt, Jeff Prorok, Billy Koll, Adam Richter, Danny Blagojevic, Jason Myers, Alex Sandberg, Nate Hook, Jason Adams, Brian Kraenzel, and coach Gus Marchetti. Bottom row, from left, is Steve Colletti, Mike Marchetti, and Matt Peterson. Submitted photo.

Kipp takes derby crown; outlaw sprints next for Wilmot

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Congratulations to "Slammin Joe" Kipp of Grayslake, the 1999 Kenosha County Fair Demolition Derby Champion in the Day of Destruction run by Premier Racing Productions, Inc. of Antioch at Wilmot Speedway.

Kipp's 1975 Chevy Malibu outlasted a field of 140 cars that was comprised of seven qualifying heats. It was Kipp's first ever title in over 12 years of competing at Wilmot. Hollis Waters, also of Grayslake, placed 12th in the finale while McHenry's Steve Fernstrom finished 13th.

Next up for Wilmot Speedway is the final major sprint car special of the summer. The After The Fair Championships featuring, an all-outlaw winged sprint car program, is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m. this Saturday.

LET'S GO RACING . . .

Michael H. Babicz

The traveling J&L Oil/United Expressline Interstates Racing Association (IRA) Outlaw Sprint Cars, headed by Donny Goeden of Kewaskum, Wis., comes to Wilmot. John Tierney and Raymond Hensley, both of Round Lake, along with Johnsburg's Dave Moulis, Round Lake Beach's Bruce Oldenburg and Gurnee's Fred Ebler, are expected to be among the IRA competitors.

The Wilmot-based Star Trac Outlaw Sprints are headed by Antioch's Tommy Sexton. Fox Lake's Jim Moulis, Russ Egan and Tony Engels, both of Gurnee, and Richmond's Lisa Heywood are also expected among the local entrants.

For information, phone 838-RACE or dial www.wilmotspeedway.com.

Speaking of the IRA, Minnesota's Travis Whitney, 1998 IRA rookie of the year, driving Mike Frost of Zion's sprint car scored the victory in the IRA main at Hales Corners Speedway in Franklin, Wis. Moulis finished third, Ebler 14th, and Hensley 20th. Tierney was eighth in the "B" main and Oldenburg placed fifth in the "C" main.

At Cedar Lake Speedway, Whitney made it two straight in Frost's Eagle Chassis. Fast qualifier and IRA point-leader Goeden was second. Hensley won a qualifying heat and placed seventh in the feature.

At Lake Geneva Raceway, Antioch's Jerry Freeman was 10th in the sportsman feature, which was won by Mike Lange of West Allis. Park City's Erik Darnell also claimed his second Wisconsin Allison Legacy Series feature of the year.

Point-leader Zac Deeringer of Wonder Lake was fourth in the super stock main event, which was won by Waukesha's Jeff Lorenz. McHenry's Adam Regnier finished seventh, while Antioch's Doug Peterson was 10th. Dan Huber, also of Antioch, won the second heat race.

Lake Geneva's Randy Rogers won the super late model feature. Crystal Lake's Mark Simonsen was third, Johnsburg's Bob Moeller fourth, and Grayslake's Mike Simon came in sixth.

Motocross racing continues at Lake Geneva this Friday, August 27, starting at 8 p.m. The season's final trailer race is planned on Saturday, August 28, along with super late models, super stocks and sport trucks. First race 7:30 p.m.

Thanks to all who attended the 2nd Annual "Wilmot Wing Ding" at Capt. Curt's Pub & Grill in Antioch. It was a most enjoyable event, with a nice donation being made to Antioch Rescue Squad.

Competitors who displayed their sprint cars included Tommy Sexton and Frank Moser, both of Antioch, and Mike Dubs of Beach Park. John Janssen of Genoa City, Wis., had an IMCA hobby stock, while the father-son cruiser car team of Ross and Tim Johnson of Salem, Wis. had their car on hand as well. Dan Lewis of Antioch had his Capt. Curt's/Jim's Budget Sales demolition derby station wagon which competed in the Kenosha County Fair Demolition. A great time was had by all and many thanks to everyone who supported the event.

ACHS girls golf moves to 2-1

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

The Antioch girls golf team is playing the tough teams early and often.

Highly regarded Buffalo Grove, led by Shannon Byrne's 41, fired a 181 Monday in a triangular meet held at Spring Valley GC in Salem, Wis.

The Lady Sequoits finished a close second (190), followed by Palatine with 220.

"It hasn't been a bad start for us," said ACHS head coach Steve Wapon. We played well for the conditions. We missed a couple of putts and our short games were a little off-otherwise, we're right there."

Sequoit ace Sara Groh carded a 43 and Brittany Cable, Mary Stringer, and Danielle Nielsen all fired 49s to round out the team scoring.

Carrie Cybul wound up with a 50 and Melissa Mitchell 56.

"It was nice to have four scores in the 40s," added Wapon. "It shows our continuity and performance in dual meets is getting stronger. The strong competition in the early dual meets"

On Tuesday, ACHS improved to 2-1 in dual meets following a 194-208 victory over host Kenosha Tremper.

Cable and Nielsen paced the way with 46s and Groh followed with a 50 and Stringer a 52 to complete the Sequoit scoring.

"We definitely learned something today," said Wapon. "Sara was off her game today but the rest of the team really picked her up," said Wapon. "It was encouraging to have consistent scoring."

Fight for breast cancer outing

Interested in joining the fight against breast cancer? Here's your chance! The second annual Rally for a Cure for Breast Cancer golf outing will be held Tuesday, August 31, at Countryside Golf Course in Mundelein. The event was rescheduled due to rains last week.

Monies raised from the event benefit the Susan G. Komen Foundation as well as contribute to the research involved for breast cancer.

Last year, The Rally for a Cure raised over $600 and expectations are very high that that figure will be surpassed by leaps and bounds in 1999.

Participants pay greens fees plus a $15 donation or higher. Donations have ranged from $10-20 in the past.

Tee-times will run from 3-4:45 p.m. with all participants receiving a pink ribbon pin. There will be a significant golf prize awarded in a 'closest to the pin' contest. Additionally, all golfers whose first shot holds the green on the designated 'Rally Hole" will recieve a boxed Titelist golf ball with the Fight Against Breat Cancer imprinted pink ribbon.

Sponsors for individual holes will start at $50. Baxter has already been sponsored for $100. For further information and registration, contact either Vera Tierney at (847) 356-2556, Roxanne Wichlin at (847) 573-8400, ext. 288, or Gail Nuttall at (847) 837-9363.

SPORT DIGEST

Fall baseball coming to CLC

Baseball will be coming to The College of Lake County this fall. CLC is organizing a fall baseball league for players not competing in a fall sport. Players can sign up individually or as a team. Six teams will be formed to compete from Sept. 7 through Oct. 10.

Games will be at 4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday at the CLC baseball field and the charge will be $45.

Players should contact Gene Hanson 543-2046 or stop by the Physical Education Center (Building 7) for registration forms. Only 84 players will be able to play and players should register immediately.

Buick's Park Avenue combines luxury & value

Park Avenue and Park Avenue Ultra, Buick's full-size luxury sedans, are refined for 1999 with enhancements to a body style that has been a major success in the market.

The new generation of Park Avenue is designed to make an elegant and tasteful statement, according to Park Avenue Brand Manager Katherine J. Benoit.

"Park Avenue gives you the classic elegance you expect in a luxury car," said Benoit. "More important, every feature has been selected to satisfy a functional need for the driver and passengers. So you might say we add 'reason' to luxury."

The primary customers for Park Avenue include professionals entrepreneurs and executive men and women who want style, smooth power, roominess and exceptional value.

In 1998 Park Avenue again received numerous awards from independent sources. For example, it was "recommended" by Consumer Guide; "First for Safety" by Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine; and an "Excellent Overall Value" by IntelliChoice, Inc., which gave it special notice for having the lowest fuel cost and lowest insurance cost in its class and for being rated an "Excellent Value" seven times in eight years.

Specific refinements for 1999 include an improved tail lamp appearance (similar to Ultra) on Park Avenue, enhanced Concert Sound III sound system, and Michelin tires standard on Ultra.

There are also four new exterior colors: Sterling Silver Metallic, Titanium Blue Metallic, Gold Firemist and Dark Bronzemist Metallic. Bright White Diamond became available on Ultra late in the '98 model year. Park Avenue's

Land Rover inroduces all-new Discovery Series II

The perfect evolution of the "go-anywhere, do-anything" vehicle

Representing the first engineering redesign since introduction into the European market in 1989, the Land Rover Discovery Series II is a landmark product from the world-renowned manufacturer of sport-utility vehicles — a vehicle that brings a new level of sophistication and technology to the compact sport-utility segment. Eighty-five percent of Discovery Series II's parts are new, including every exterior body panel, the suspension system and powertrain, yet the Series II remains instantly identifiable as a Land Rover — the distinct silhouette, trademark Alpine windows, command driving position, capable stance and unmatched off-road ability are all still very much at its heart. Through and through, the Series II is a Land Rover, an authentic go-anywhere, do-anything vehicle.

As more manufacturers rush into the sport-utility segment with a variety of hybrid, semi-capable vehicles, Land Rover remains true to its original course of producing extremely capable vehicles for use both on- and off-road, a product mission the company has faithfully pursued for 50 years. The all-new Discovery Series II is no exception. It is an authentic 4x4 that will take its owners anywhere they can imagine.

In redesigning the best-selling Discovery, particular focus was paid to enhancing the handling, performance and on-road comfort of the vehicle, bringing the Series II closer in performance to Land Rover's legendary Range Rover, a vehicle that offers exceptional on-road performance without sacrificing the legendary off-road capability that is the hallmark of all Land Rover products.

The all-new Discovery Series II has been lengthened 6.5 inches (166 mm), widened 3.8 inches (97 mm), and comes equipped with a long list of new standard and optional features that include four-wheel electronic traction control (4WETC) and the world's first application in a production sport-utility vehicle of an Active Cornering Enhancement (ACE) system, which reduces vehicle body lean while cornering and improves overall ride comfort. Further, the Series II features Land Rover's patented Hill Descent Control, which supplements Land Rover's legendary engine braking capabilities and helps the driver maintain optimum yehicle control in extreme conditions (e.g. high altitude); an optional automatic Self-Leveling Suspension, which uses a sophisticated rear air suspension to improve the vehicle's ability to handle oversized loads and towing chores and expand its off-road capabilities; and an Electronic Brake Distribution system, which augments the vehicle's handling and stopping predictability and complements the four-channel anti-lock braking system.

The engine in the Series II is a new generation of the 1998 4.0-litre V8 unit, wholly improved to provide better power and torque characteristics and noticeably lower NVH levels. The upgraded engine features a new aluminum sump, an all-new "Thor" induction system, modified rocker covers, improved placement and mounting systems for all the auxiliary equipment, new engine sensors and a Bosch Motronic ignition and fuel management system. The engine is mated to a dual-mode, electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission, which is new for 1999. As with all Land Rover products currently sold in the U.S., permanent four-wheel drive and four-channel, four-wheel anti-lock brakes are standard.

1999 Discovery Series II

Inside the Series II, the cabin has been enhanced with new seating offering more support and comfort for the driver and passengers, an updated instrument cluster and a fresh instrument panel highlighted by a flush-mounted passenger airbag module and a new HVAC system with automatic dual temperature controls. Forward visibility has been improved thanks to a raised headliner at the windscreen. Optional seating for seven is available as it was in 1998, but the 1999 Series II features forward-facing rear jump seats with retractable headrests. Every seat in the Series II has an individual headrest and a three-point seatbelt.

The Series II went ons ale in late 1998, and has remained land Rover North America's best-selling vehicle.

PARK AVENUE: Buick offers elegant luxury in this year's Park Avenue instrument panel and door plates display a new Elite Walnut trim.

Park Avenue is again powered by the highly regarded 3.8-liter 3800 Series II V-6 engine. The naturally aspirated engine delivers 205 horsepower at 5200 rpm and 230 lb-ft of torque at 4000 rpm.

Park Avenue Ultra's supercharged version of the 3800 produces 240 hp at 5200 rpm and 280 lb-ft of torque at 3600 rpm. Projected fuel economy is unchanged: 19 miles per gallon city and 28 mpg highway for Park Avenue and 18/27 for the supercharged Ultra.

Both engines are linked to the 4T5E electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission which has won critical praise for its smoothness and responsiveness. Ultra is equipped with the heavy duty version (4T65E. HD).

Except for oil and filter changes, both powerplants remain virtually maintenance free for up to 100,000 miles. Long-life features include engine coolant with a recommended change interval of five years or 150,000 miles; platinum-tipped spark plugs with first recommended change at 100,000 miles and transmission fluid that requires no change under normal operating conditions for 100,000 miles.

Park Avenue provides an unusually strong architecture of safety cage construction and such safety features as Next Generation (reduced force) front-seat air bags, four-wheel antilock disc brakes and doors that automatically unlock within 15 seconds of an air bag deployment.

Another safety and security optional feature offered again is the GM OnStar mobile communication system. OnStar combines Global Positioning System satellite technology and a hands-free, voice-activated cellular telephone to link drivers to a communications center where advisers are available to provide many kinds of assistance, such as emergency services and navigational and travel support. OnStar, a dealer-installed option, also offers automatic notification of air bag deployment, theft detection and stolen vehicle tracking.

Walnut trim is a luxury interior feature on Park Avenue.

Outside folding rear-view mirrors are offered with optional heated and electrochromic dimming features (both features standard on Ultra). Also, a passenger-side "parallel park assist" outside rearview mirror (optional on Park Avenue, standard on Ultra) automatically tilts down whenever the Reverse gear is engaged. This feature,first offered for '98, is designed to provide the driver a better view of the intended parking area behind and to the right of the car.

Tips on driving down costly repair bills

If you think a high-tech car is one that talks to you, think again. Most cars on the road today are high-tech, and it's the computers on board that have increased your costs for automotive repair.

"1980 was really the turning point when computers were introduced for controlling engine management," said Jim Kiple, director of technical services for the National Automotive Parts Association (NAPA).

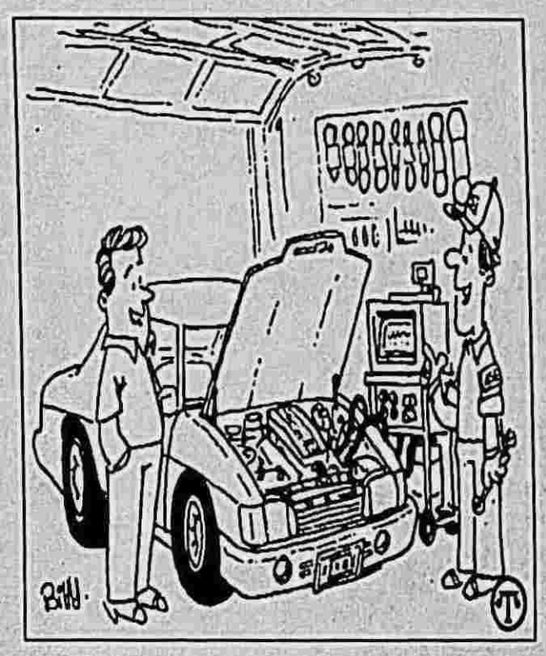

In response, shops across the U.S. reequipped their garages to change the way they diagnose and repair today's cars, which led to an overall increase in their cost of doing business.

MAINTENANCE: To reduce the number of costly repair bills, NAPA recommends that consumers follow a regular tune-up schedule and get an annual engine performance evaluation. Because today's cars have "adaptive strategies," the computer system on board compensates for failing components by utilizing complicated computer "maps" to keep the vehicle running. By the time a consumer detects a problem, usually several problems exist and need attention.

That's why preventative car maintenance and a solid relationship with a repair shop are important.

TECHNOLOGY: When a customer takes their car in for repair, he or she is essentially asking the technician to "analyze my computers." Vehicles today are made up of multiple microprocessors that interlink all the systems under the hood and throughout the vehicle. Most cars on the road today contain more computer power than the Apollo spacecraft that landed on the moon.

EQUIPMENT: To repair a vehicle, a technician cannot simply hook a car to a machine and receive a printout describing the problem. Instead, the machine acts as a tool, giving outputs based on electrical signals. These outputs must be analyzed against the vehicle's problematic "symptoms." Because the outputs are only clues, it often takes two to three hours to diagnose the problem.

TIME: Before 1980, technicians spent 20 percent of their time engaged in analyzing the cause or nature of the car problem, commonly called "diagnostics," and the rest of their time doing repairs. Today, repair jobs usually consist of 80 percent diagnostics and 20 percent repairs. This 180-degree change redefined the job of "auto mechanics," who today are titled "automotive technicians" because of the skills required to do the complex job.

Consumers should look for shops that employ technicians who have passed rigorous tests to earn Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) certification.

For tips on finding an honest repair shop, contact NAPA online at www.NAPAonline.com, or call 1-800-LET-NAPA for a NAPA Auto Care Center or NAPA Auto Care Collision Center near you.

Knowledge is power when buying a used car

Does car shopping give you cold feet? You are not alone. A recent Lieberman survey showed that 60 percent of Americans feel intimidated when shopping for an automobile. Experts offer the following tips to even the odds and help you obtain the right car and the best possible price.

The first and most important step is to educate yourself, and the Internet is a great place to start. AutoConnect (www.autoconnect. com), a free service, is the largest used car shopping site on the Internet. The site features Kelley Blue Book prices, side by side vehicle comparisons, reviews by credible third parties, insurance quotes and financing information. In addition, you'll be able to search thousands of used vehicle listings from dealerships in your area.

Use this information to create a list of three or four vehicles you would like to see. Then, make appointments to meet the sellers and test drive your selections. Don't plan to buy on the first meeting.

Once you have determined which of these cars meets your needs best, it is time to develop your target price, or how much you are willing to pay for that car. A site like autoconnect.com will help you determine the best price for your vehicle, including options. When negotiating the sales price, start by telling the salesperson your target price and how you arrived at it. Say that you are willing to close the deal quickly if they can meet or come close to that price. That might do the trick, or the salesperson could come back with a much higher counter offer.

The Internet can be a great place to start when looking to buy a used car.

Stick to your guns. Increase your offer in small increments, say $100 to $200 at a time. The salesperson will counter and may even consult his or her sales manager. If the salesperson won't budge after your third offer, and you can't agree to a price, be prepared to walk out the door. Remember that you are in the driver's seat because you have armed yourself with information, and there is another car just a short drive away.

Stabilitrak offered on 2000 Buick Park Avenue, LeSabre

Buick will offer StabiliTrak, one of the world's most advanced vehicle stability control systems, on its 2000-model-year full-size sedans.

StabiliTrak will be standard on the 2000 Park Avenue Ultra and optional on Park Avenue and LeSabre. The 2000 Park Avenue will be in dealer showrooms this summer.

StabiliTrak, developed by General Motors and originally offered on 1997 Cadillacs, relies on exceptional technical advances to assist the driver in vehicle control and stability under hazardous road conditions and during emergency or evasive maneuvers.

"This system makes a significant difference in how the car behaves by enhancing the driver's ability to maintain control," said Robert J. Reuter, director of good driving skills, but we believe a system that helps the driver to maintain control under adverse conditions is a substantial advance in vehicle safety."

StabiliTrak will enhance Park Avenue's reputation for providing a stable and safe driving experience, said Katherine J. Benoit, Park Avenue brand manager.

"Park Avenue's pedigree is luxury, but its value lies in sophisticated features that continue to satisfy the functional needs of its driver and passengers," said Benoit. "Park Avenue, Buick's flagship sedan, not only meets but exceeds the demands of today's luxury car customer — a customer who demands refinement, but insists on practicality."

In addition to StabiliTrak, the 2000 Park Avenue will enhance safety with side air bags for the driver and right front passenger. Child seat tether anchors on the rear package shelf will be standard.

On the 2000 LeSabre, StabiliTrak comes as part of a Driver Confidence Package that includes self-sealing tires and a head-up driver information display. The head-up display projects key information onto the windshield, showing vehicle speed, high-beam and turn signal indicators and "check gauges" warnings, lessening the need for the driver's eyes to leave the road.

The optional package marks the first in a series of new features on the redesigned LeSabre, which reached the market in the first quarter of 1999. The 2000 LeSabre, latest generation of America's best-selling full-size car for seven straight years, offers a wide range of innovations and improvements, including side air bags for the driver and right front passenger.

"For the 2000 model year, we took a great car and made it better," said Joseph J. Fitzsimmons, LeSabre brand manager. "Now we're making even more improvements designed to further enhance the peace of mind that customers have come to expect from LeSabre."

StabiliTrak uses three special sensors added to the traction control system — one for yaw rate, one for lateral acceleration and one for steering wheel angle — to gather information on how accurately the vehicle is responding, how hard the car is cornering and how much traction exists. The data is sent to the computer that controls the anti-lock brakes and traction control.

Using the information, StabiliTrak continuously compares where the driver wants the car to go with how the car is actually responding. Then, the system uses the car's traction control system to assist the driver in maintaining the intended path.

For example, if the car slides outward when the driver attempts to turn at a speed too fast for road conditions, StabiliTrak applies the inside front brake, gently slowing the car and making it turn more. Similarly, if the rear of the car starts to fishtail during a turn, StabiliTrak gently applies the outside front brake to slow the car and bring the tail back into line.

The system operates in a closed loop, continuously measuring and compensating for driver steering adjustments and changes in vehicle direction.

StabiliTrak's operation is nearly transparent to the driver and requires no driver action to activate it. The only indication that they system is operating is a message display on the Driver Information Center. StabiliTrak's benefits are most obvious when roads are wet, snowy or icy, but the system functions at any speed on any surface and assists the driver during any evasive or emergency maneuvers.

No stability control system can defy the laws of physics, so if a driver enters a corner too fast for the available traction, the car could still go out of control, Reuter said. But for many driving situations, he said. StabiliTrak provides a significant margin of safety, making it one of the most important safety advances in recent years.

The manufacturer's suggested retail price for the StabiliTrak option on Park Avenue is $495. The manufacturer's suggested retail price for the Driver Confidence Package — StabiliTrak, head-up display and self-sealing tires — for LeSabre is $880. The package can only be ordered on uplevel LeSabres with 16-inch wheels and traction control.

Need automotive repairs? Here's advice

Unless you're a car-care enthusiast with plenty of tools and free time, you'll probably depend upon a professional for all but the most minor automotive maintenance tasks. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), an independent, nonprofit group that tests and certifies the competence of automotive technicians nationwide, offers the following advice to consumers on finding a good repair shop.

1. Read the owner's manual to become familiar with your vehicle and follow the manufacturer's service schedules.

2. Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one. You can make better decisions when you are not rushed or stranded.

3. Ask friends and associates for their recommendations.

4. Check with your local consumer organization about the reputation of the shop.

5. Arrange for transportation to lessen the temptation to select a shop solely on its location.

6. Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.

7. Professionally run establishments have a courteous, helpful staff. The service writer should be willing to answer your questions.

8. Policies (labor rates, fees for diagnostic services, guarantees, methods of payment, etc.) should be posted or explained to your satisfaction.

9. Ask if the shop customarily handles your vehicle make and model. Some facilities specialize. If your vehicle needs major work, ask if the shop usually handles that type of repair.

10. Feel free to ask for the names of a few customers as references. Call them.

11. Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area: civic- and community-service awards, membership in the Better Business Bureau, and customer-service awards.

12. Look for qualified technicians. Trade-school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work and ASE certification of the technicians all are measures of competence. ASE-certified technicians carry credentials listing their specific areas of expertise (brakes, electrical systems, etc.), while their employers often display the blue-and-white ASE sign.

13. Reward good service with repeat business and customer loyalty. It is mutually beneficial to you and the shop owner to establish a relationship.

14. If the service was not all that you expected, don't rush to another shop. Discuss the problem with the service manager or owner. Give the business a chance to resolve the problem. Reputable shops value customer feedback and will make a sincere effort to keep your business.

Stabilitrak offered on 2000 Buick Park Avenue, LeSabre

Buick will offer StabiliTrak, one of the world's most advanced vehicle stability control systems, on its 2000-model-year full-size sedans.

StabiliTrak will be standard on the 2000 Park Avenue Ultra and optional on Park Avenue and LeSabre. The 2000 Park Avenue will be in dealer showrooms this summer.

StabiliTrak, developed by General Motors and originally offered on 1997 Cadillacs, relies on exceptional technical advances to assist the driver in vehicle control and stability under hazardous road conditions and during emergency or evasive maneuvers.

"This system makes a significant difference in how the car behaves by enhancing the driver's ability to maintain control," said Robert J. Reuter, director of good driving skills, but we believe a system that helps the driver to maintain control under adverse conditions is a substantial advance in vehicle safety."

StabiliTrak will enhance Park Avenue's reputation for providing a stable and safe driving experience, said Katherine J. Benoit, Park Avenue brand manager.

"Park Avenue's pedigree is luxury, but its value lies in sophisticated features that continue to satisfy the functional needs of its driver and passengers," said Benoit. "Park Avenue, Buick's flagship sedan, not only meets but exceeds the demands of today's luxury car customer — a customer who demands refinement, but insists on practicality."

In addition to StabiliTrak, the 2000 Park Avenue will enhance safety with side air bags for the driver and right front passenger. Child seat tether anchors on the rear package shelf will be standard.

On the 2000 LeSabre, StabiliTrak comes as part of a Driver Confidence Package that includes self-sealing tires and a head-up driver information display. The head-up display projects key information onto the windshield, showing vehicle speed, high-beam and turn signal indicators and "check gauges" warnings, lessening the need for the driver's eyes to leave the road.

The optional package marks the first in a series of new features on the redesigned LeSabre, which reached the market in the first quarter of 1999. The 2000 LeSabre, latest generation of America's best-selling full-size car for seven straight years, offers a wide range of innovations and improvements, including side air bags for the driver and right front passenger.

"For the 2000 model year, we took a great car and made it better," said Joseph J. Fitzsimmons, LeSabre brand manager. "Now we're making even more improvements designed to further enhance the peace of mind that customers have come to expect from LeSabre."

StabiliTrak uses three special sensors added to the traction control system — one for yaw rate, one for lateral acceleration and one for steering wheel angle — to gather information on how accurately the vehicle is responding, how hard the car is cornering and how much traction exists. The data is sent to the computer that controls the anti-lock brakes and traction control.

Using the information, StabiliTrak continuously compares where the driver wants the car to go with how the car is actually responding. Then, the system uses the car's traction control system to assist the driver in maintaining the intended path.

For example, if the car slides outward when the driver attempts to turn at a speed too fast for road conditions, StabiliTrak applies the inside front brake, gently slowing the car and making it turn more. Similarly, if the rear of the car starts to fishtail during a turn, StabiliTrak gently applies the outside front brake to slow the car and bring the tail back into line.

The system operates in a closed loop, continuously measuring and compensating for driver steering adjustments and changes in vehicle direction.

StabiliTrak's operation is nearly transparent to the driver and requires no driver action to activate it. The only indication that they system is operating is a message display on the Driver Information Center. StabiliTrak's benefits are most obvious when roads are wet, snowy or icy, but the system functions at any speed on any surface and assists the driver during any evasive or emergency maneuvers.

No stability control system can defy the laws of physics, so if a driver enters a corner too fast for the available traction, the car could still go out of control, Reuter said. But for many driving situations, he said. StabiliTrak provides a significant margin of safety, making it one of the most important safety advances in recent years.

The manufacturer's suggested retail price for the StabiliTrak option on Park Avenue is $495. The manufacturer's suggested retail price for the Driver Confidence Package — StabiliTrak, head-up display and self-sealing tires — for LeSabre is $880. The package can only be ordered on uplevel LeSabres with 16-inch wheels and traction control.

Need automotive repairs? Here's advice

Unless you're a car-care enthusiast with plenty of tools and free time, you'll probably depend upon a professional for all but the most minor automotive maintenance tasks. The National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), an independent, nonprofit group that tests and certifies the competence of automotive technicians nationwide, offers the following advice to consumers on finding a good repair shop.

1. Read the owner's manual to become familiar with your vehicle and follow the manufacturer's service schedules.

2. Start shopping for a repair facility before you need one. You can make better decisions when you are not rushed or stranded.

3. Ask friends and associates for their recommendations.

4. Check with your local consumer organization about the reputation of the shop.

5. Arrange for transportation to lessen the temptation to select a shop solely on its location.

6. Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to your own and modern equipment in the service bays.

7. Professionally run establishments have a courteous, helpful staff. The service writer should be willing to answer your questions.

8. Policies (labor rates, fees for diagnostic services, guarantees, methods of payment, etc.) should be posted or explained to your satisfaction.

9. Ask if the shop customarily handles your vehicle make and model. Some facilities specialize. If your vehicle needs major work, ask if the shop usually handles that type of repair.

10. Feel free to ask for the names of a few customers as references. Call them.

11. Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area: civic- and community-service awards, membership in the Better Business Bureau, and customer-service awards.

12. Look for qualified technicians. Trade-school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work and ASE certification of the technicians all are measures of competence. ASE-certified technicians carry credentials listing their specific areas of expertise (brakes, electrical systems, etc.), while their employers often display the blue-and-white ASE sign.

13. Reward good service with repeat business and customer loyalty. It is mutually beneficial to you and the shop owner to establish a relationship.

14. If the service was not all that you expected, don't rush to another shop. Discuss the problem with the service manager or owner. Give the business a chance to resolve the problem. Reputable shops value customer feedback and will make a sincere effort to keep your business.

"Car of tomorrow" Blends arts and science

Automotive designers are blending the best of their artistic ability with computer-based tools to digitally bring their creativity to life with accuracy and speed. The computers allow designers to share their new vehicle ideas with engineering and manufacturing much earlier in the vehicle development process.

"The math models allow validation simulations that confirm aerodynamics, crash, fuel economy, formability and manufacturability while we continue to perfect the design," said General Motors staff project designer Glen Durmisevich.

"An even greater benefit is shortened vehicle development lead times, which allows us to sense and respond to market needs more quickly," he said.

Historically, automakers would do full-size tape drawings and generate a clay model, which would then have to be translated into math surfaces. This took months of redundant work.

At the GM Design Center, styling creativity is supported with Alias Studio Paint, a computer software tool consisting of a pressure-sensitive stylus and tablet that enables designers to sketch vehicle concepts and record and manipulate them digitally.

"It's as natural as using paper and pencil," said Durmisevich. "We can sketch very easily, capturing the designer's gestural quality...which gives character to any design." Digital sculptors who previously worked in clay now refine the 2-D sketches into a 3-D math environment over the engineering packaging criteria.

Interior and exterior design concepts then are reviewed using VisualEyes, a 3-D virtual reality program, that provides a stereoscopic display of the ideas.

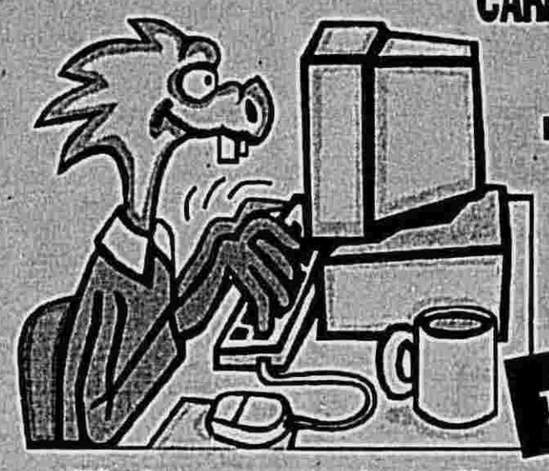

"With virtual reality, members of the design team can see and experience almost immediately a full-scale product in virtual 'real-world' environments," said Gary Bertollini, manager in Design Process Engineering. "Virtual reality reduces the need to build clay or other physical models by providing designers another way to understand and resolve brand styling direction, architectural constraints and engineering build issues."

Designer Glen Durmisevich with a foam model of the Oldsmibile Recon, a GM concept vehicle designed and developed with the aid of computer-based math tools.

Once the designers are satisfied with their ideas, the design math models have a direct link into GM's CAD/CAM system, Unigraphics and provide accurate 3-D interior and exterior surfaces.

"Now when we're done designing, we have a complete math surface and the engineers are well on their way to developing the product," said Durmisevich. NASCAR adds fuel to hot wall mural trend!

Courtesy of Article Resource

Environmental graphics created wall murals depicting NASCAR scenes.

Combining the number one spectator sport in America with one of today's hottest decorating trends, Environmental Graphics has introduced a new wall mural featuring NASCAR rookie driving sensation Tony Stewart.

The popularity of the company's murals has been sparked by appearances in numerous TV shows and major motion pictures, such as "Primary Colors", and most recently "Big Daddy".

NASCAR-themed accents like borders and appliqus are already very popular with home decorators, notes Todd Imholte of Environmental Graphics. "With murals being as hot as they are, we felt the time was right for a design that would appeal to the millions of NASCAR fans out there."

Environmental Graphics' new design brings Stewart's car to life in a full-color, wall-sized photographic mural. It adds action and excitement to the plainest wall. For ease of hanging, it's printed in eight panels, each measuring 49 1/2 by 41 inches. The finished size is over 8 ft. tall by 13 ft. wide, but it can also be trimmed to fit smaller walls. Paste and simple instructions are included.

"We felt Tony Stewart would be the perfect subject because he's a popular up-and-coming driver," says Imholte. "We really appreciate the support we've received from him and the people at Home Depot who sponsor his car." Stewart was impressed when he saw the final product. "I think it's great to see (the car) in life size when you walk into a room. It's very attractive and puts a special touch on one's room where memorabilia is kept."

Fans have been equally impressed. "My husband and I are big race fans," says Joanne Simmerson of Ocala, Florida. "We have a room full of NASCAR souvenirs. I can't believe the difference it makes when you put the mural up. It brings the entire room together."

Ben White travels the NASCAR racing circuit writing articles for NASCAR Winston Cup Illustrated magazine. As a lifelong model car hobbyist, he plans to open a store in the near future catering to collectors.

"I can see this mural becoming a collectible item also," says White. "Had these come out 20 or 30 years ago, think of how valuable they would be with the cars of drivers like Bobby Allison, Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, or David Pearson. I'm certain these will increase in value."

Each mural contains a notarized Certificate of Authenticity signed by the president of the company. The certificate is watermarked, making duplication virtually impossible.

The new mural design has also been a hit with dealers throughout the country. "I'm glad Environmental Graphics decided to add this mural to their other designs," says Tony Oost, assistant manager of The Home Depot store in Clarksville, Indiana. "Customers are always asking about NASCAR merchandise."

One thing worried him though. "Tony Stewart is from this area, and everyone here is crazy about the guy. When I saw the order come in for this new mural, I knew there wouldn't be enough because I wanted to buy two for myself," he laughed.

The Tony Stewart wall mural is available at wallcovering retailers throughout North America, including The Home Depot. Other wall mural designs can be viewed online at www.egproducts.com.

GMC Suburban SUV renamed Yukon XL

When GMC introduces the all-new 2000 version of its largest sport utility later this year, it's going to have a new name. The GMC Suburban will become the GMC Yukon XL, "XL" for "extra length." The change allows GMC to market a family of Yukons, which will include the Yukon, Yukon Denali and Yukon XL.

"Capitalizing on the Yukon name gives GMC full-size sport utilities a distinct identity in the market," said Denny O'Donnell, Yukon brand manager. "Yukon is a name that clearly means 'GMC,' and GMC means 'trucks' that deliver more capability than may be needed."

GMC first began using the Yukon brand name in 1992, when it introduced the name on the shorter, 200-inch version of its full-size sport utility. In 1997, GMC introduced another addition to the Yukon family, the Yukon Denali. The Denali is an upscale model with unique styling and luxury features.

Both the all-new Yukon and its 20-inch longer counterpart, the Yukon XL, go into production during the last quarter of 1999. These powerfully styled vehicles are engineered to provide world-class ride and handling.

Diving in with gusto

By JACLYN GRAHAM
Staff Intern

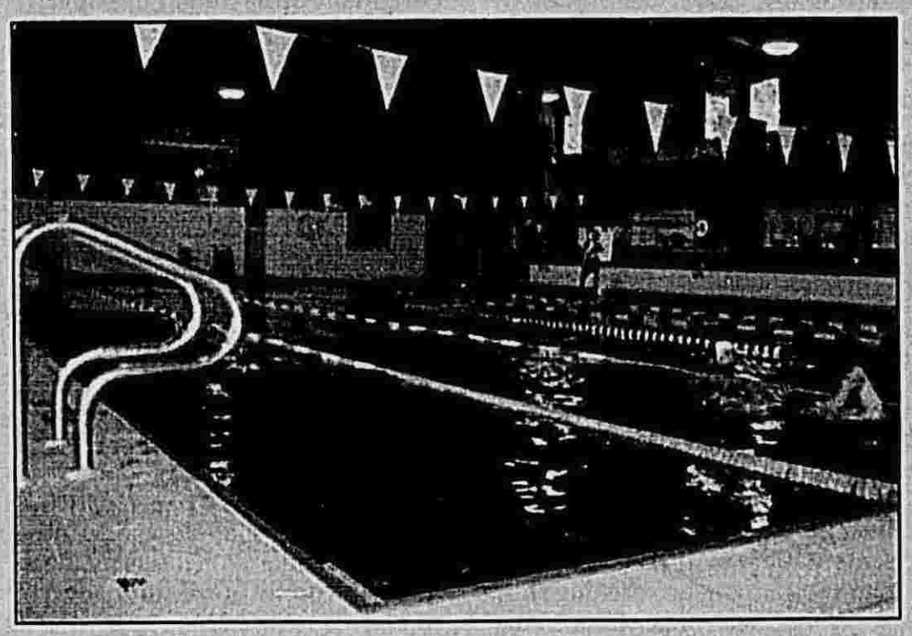

While some people are still asleep, the early hours of the morning are full of activity for those who swim during the "early bird" schedule at Hastings Lake YMCA in Lake Villa. Early bird swim starts at 5:15 a.m., lasts until 9, and is open to members 18 and over, though many are older.

"It's admirable, the number of senior citizens here," said Paul Hettich, 59, a devoted swimmer during the early bird hours. Hettich, a psychology teacher at Barrat College in Lake Forrest, has passed the 1,000-mile marker, and is rapidly approaching 1,066 miles.

Since the Battle of Hastings occurred in the year 1066, and he swims at "Hastings" Lake YMCA, Hettich remarked, "I'm just about to have my own Battle of Hastings—the battle of swimming at Hastings is a battle against inertia."

Jack Peterson (above) does his laps every morning as part of the YMCA Early Bird Program. Jack, as well as Paul Hettich and Ted Olander, have swam over one thousand miles while with the program. Below: the Hastings Lake YMCA hosts the Early Bird swimmers. —Photos by Derek Nosal

As extra incentive for those who keep track of their mileage, you can pay an additional fee to have your progress charted in the hallway, and receive a T-shirt for every 50 miles swam. Once in the "50 mile club," swimmers have to record their mileage on a sheet by the door, and a staff member updates the large chart in the hallway in front of the locker rooms.

Although open to all ages, a large number of the most dedicated swimmers are senior citizens. Some have even swam close to and over the 1,000-mile mark, an incredible feat in itself.

Jack Peterson, a 69-year-old Lindenhurst resident, has also passed the 1,000-mile marker. He started swimming seven-and-a-half years ago when he retired and his daughter suggested he go swimming with her. Now he swims six days a week, 36 laps a day, which equals one mile in distance. "I'm a slow swimmer but I swim steady," Peterson said.

"I don't feel right when I don't come," Peterson said. "It's gotten to be a way of life; I miss swimming even when I go on vacation. My drawer is filling up with T-shirts," laughed Peterson, who asked to only receive a shirt every 100 miles instead of every 50.

Traveling to the YMCA to swim on a regular basis does require a physical commitment, but it does a lot to start off your day. "I'm proud that I've been able to make a commitment to a form of exercise for a 21 year period," Hettich said. "Swimming is both physically exhilarating and mentally refreshing." It can also be a stepping stone to other activities, such as backpacking and skiing.

Many of the swimmers believe that swimming can be a way to clear one's mind. Swimmers can focus and do some heavy thinking, like planning their day, or just let their mind wander and relax. Even people in their 70s or 80s can still come and enjoy themselves by swimming. "When you're in your late 70s, swimming isn't just a luxury leisure activity—it's also a necessity as exercise," said Hettich.

Not only is swimming a good form of therapeutic exercise that is easy on your joints and helps relax your muscles, it also gives people an opportunity to socialize and meet friends. Especially for seniors who do not have the chance to get out often, swimming is a good social interaction opportunity.

One couple that met in the early bird program is getting married soon. "Love springs eternal here," said Peterson, regarding the couple getting married.

During the early bird hours, the pool is divided into five sections, four lanes starting on the left side of the pool for more serious lap swimmers, and one open two-lane section for walkers and those who paddle around and socialize more. At most, there are usually two people per lap lane at a time, and about 10 people in the larger area.

Whether swimming laps, walking or paddling, any movement within the water can be exercise and therapeutic. Since many of the members can not run, swimming is a form of exercise that does not beat up the body. Not all members who come for early bird swim vigorously swim laps; different people have different motives for swimming.

DIVING: Program provides exercise for seniors

"Lots of seniors are good inspirations, even those who just enjoy splashing, they're still vigorous," Hettich said.

Delores Rita Wencel started swimming in 1995 and is close to the 700-mile marker. "It took four years to get me there," Wencel said "but it's worth all the hard work." She said that she sometimes works out in the weight room after swimming, like many others do. She swims five days a week, but has to cut down in the winter because she can not always drive in adverse conditions.

For people with certain handicaps, swimming is a wonderful form of exercise and therapy as well. For instance, Bill Richards, 52, has Multiple Sclerosis and uses a wheelchair while on land. "Guys like Paul and Jack are my inspirations, it blows my mind how far they have swam," Richards said.

The wheelchair drop device allows him to enter and exit the pool with ease. Once in the water, Richards uses fins and objects he puts in his hands to allow him to swim easier, and he sometimes uses flotation devices around his ankles.

'He swims very well, and fast... you wouldn't recognize he is a man that is wheelchair-bound. He is an inspiration for everyone.'

Paul Hettich
devoted swimmer

"He swims very well, and fast... you wouldn't recognize he is a man that is wheelchair-bound," Hettich said. "He is an inspiration for everyone." Richards has been going to the YMCA for a couple of years, and combined with other exercises, has seen an improvement in his leg movement abilities over time. He is proof to others that persisting with physical activity can be beneficial in the long run.

Amidst the large swimming program at Hastings Lake YMCA, a countless number of people deserve recognition for their achievements and commitment to swimming. Included in this group is Ted Olander, a man who is considered by some to be the "granddaddy of the whole program," Richards said. Olander has swam far past the 1,000 mile marker, and is also an inspiration to many.

"It's a neat program here," said Richards. "The staff here is unbelievable, they're really nice," said Richards. Between the front desk, the locker room and the pool, Peterson agrees that "you meet some nice people."

Proven to be more than mere exercise, swimming at Hastings Lake YMCA has opened doors to friendship and vitality.

It's the magic school bus

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

A girlfriend and I were talking recently about school starting, and she said, "I hate to admit it, but the sight of that yellow school bus just makes me want to smile!" She wondered if perhaps she should feel guilty about it, but I assured her that she wasn't alone. I knew just what she meant.

Mothers tend to fall into one of two categories—those who stand tearfully at the bus stop as their little darling bravely says goodbye, or those who bite their lip as the bus arrives, doing their best not to scream "YESSS!" before the bus carrying their child is out of earshot.

At varying times in my life, I have been both types of mothers, but after 20 years of child rearing that bus has now become a symbol of hope. Hope that someday, a couple of years from now, my youngest child will be boarding it.

"Bye, sweetheart. Mommy will miss you," I'll say as she walks proudly down the driveway in her new school clothes and her little pink backpack. I'll hold my breath as her short five-year-old legs struggle to climb the bus steps. I'll wave goodbye, over and over, my eyes misted with tears as she peers out the bus window at me, waving and smiling, eager to begin her excellent adventure.

Finally, when the bus is out of sight, I'll do a little touchdown jig before running up my front steps, my arms raised like Sylvester Stallone in the movie "Rocky." Humming "Gonna fly now... gotta try now...," I'll open the door, step in, close it and pause for a moment to experience the sound of actual quiet.

Then I'll probably have a heart attack, at which point I can only pray that my dog will figure out how to dial 911.

Not that I'm trying to be morbid or anything, but I'm sure you've heard those stories about how a man finally retires from his job and then drops dead of a heart attack his first day home. I figure it would be just my luck to finally have a Barney-free day, and then be too gravely ill to enjoy it.

Child rearing is, after all, my most important and longest career, and once my youngest enters Kindergarten, I will be semi-retired, at least during school hours. I will have to learn how to function in new ways.

For instance, I'll have to learn new ways of ending phone calls with friends. No longer will I be able to shout, "I HAVE TO HANG UP! Samantha has a black permanent marker and is headed for my bedroom!" And I'll have to think of new excuses to get rid of pesky phone salespersons. No longer will I be able to say, "Do you hear that screaming? While you're trying to sell me credit card insurance, my child could be seriously injured!"

I'll also have to learn how to read books again, instead of just magazines and newspapers. The last book I read was in 1993. I suppose I can start by reading in the bathroom, which was previously the only quiet place available. Perhaps after a month or so I'll be ready to graduate to the couch, though I may have to keep a roll of toilet paper nearby so the shock won't be too great.

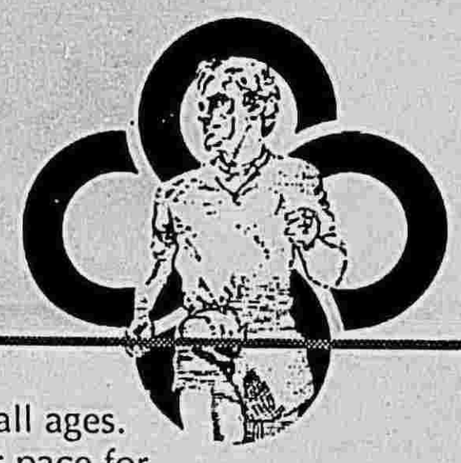

Still, I suppose there's no point in worrying about all this yet. I have three years before any of this can become a reality.

Actually it's 2 years, 351 days, 8 hours and 59 minutes. Not that I'm counting.

Note to readers: This column originally appeared in this space three years ago. By the time you read this, my youngest will have started Kindergarten. Next week, I'll tell you how the real day went...

Questions or comments for humorist Donna Abear can be sent to P.O. Box 391, Antioch, Il. 60002.

Three-on-three basketball Saturday

The fourth annual Three-on-three Sports Jamboree will be held on August 28, 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at Meadowhill Park, 1501 Maple Ave., Northbrook. Co-sponsored by the Northbrook Park District and the Northbrook Citizens for Drug and Alcohol Awareness, the day is devoted to children and family entertainment, with big wheel obstacle course, the Jesse White Tumblers, refreshments and, of course, the popular three-on-three basketball tournament. Seven-to-fourteen year-olds will compete according to age groups.

A Silent Memorabilia Auction will highlight the day's festivities, sponsored by the NCDAA. Guests are invited to bid for fabulous one-of-a-kind items including a Scottie Pippen signed basketball, collector's replicas of the United Center and Wrigley Field, as well as a Madonna personally signed photograph.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Rule, Britannia! Britain takes over the Lakeside Pops

The British are coming! The British are coming! No need to fear however, it's not the Redcoats. It's the composers from Gilbert and Sullivan to Ralph Vaughn Williams, Sir William Walton to Andrew Lloyd Webber and James Horner. Enjoy some of the best that is British, as the Racine Symphony's Lakeside Pops Orchestra performs an evening of music written exclusively by British composers—both classic and contemporary. Series sponsor Bank One and concert sponsor the Lang Family Foundation welcome soprano Ami Bourterse along with baritone and master-of ceremonies Greg Berg to this, the final concert of the 1999 Lakeside Pops summer season. "Rule Britannia!" will be presented at Festival Hall in Racine on Aug. 27 at 7 p.m.

The concert gets off to a rousing start with Sir William Walton's Crown Imperial March. Followed by Ami Bourterse performing two Gilbert and Sullivan works: "Poor Wandering One" from Patience and "I have a Song to Sing" from the Yeoman of the Guard.

Each year the Racine Symphony's fall benefit event auctions off a guest conductorship. This year's high bidder, Joe Swanson, will make his conducting debut with "The 49th Parallel" by Ralph Vaughn Williams during the first half of the evening concert, but not before the audience tries to keep pace with Greg Berg as he performs one of Gilbert and Sullivan's most well known and entertaining pieces, the "Major General's Song" from Pirates of Penzance.

A medley of orchestral selections from Phantom of the Opera including "Think of Me," The Music of the Night," Masquerade," "All I Ask of You," and "The Phantom of the Opera" will end the first half of the concert.

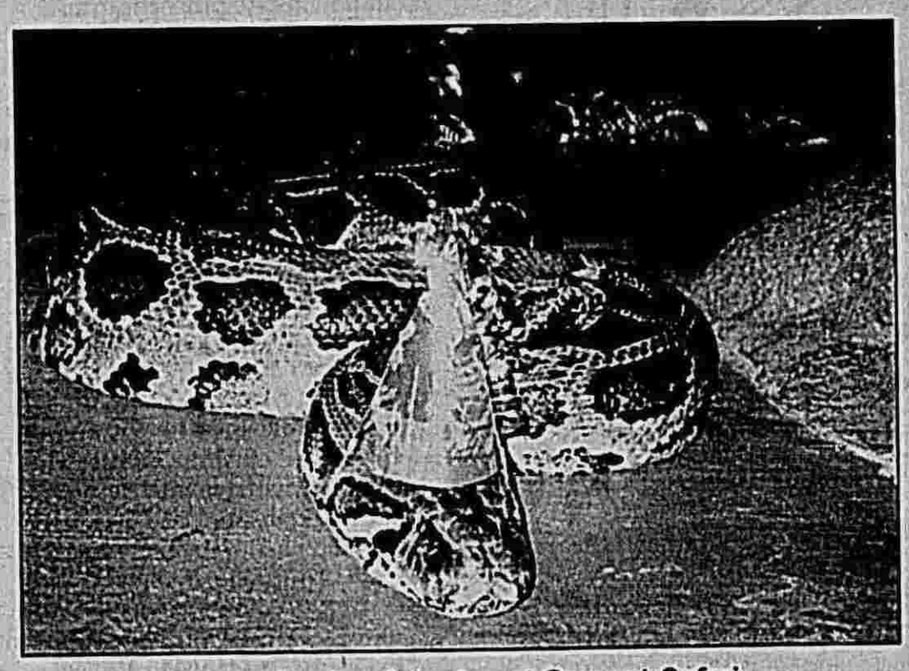

Ms. Bouterse makes her second half appearance performing "Memory" the signature piece from Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Cats". "Cats," the longest running musical in the history of British theatre, is also the longest running show in Broadway's history.

In the second half: Works by Frederik Delius, "Henry V Suite" by Sir William Walton and selections from James Horner's score for the film Titanic including the popular "My Heart will go on."

The gates to Festival park and Festival Hall open at 5 p.m.

Tickets for individual indoor seating at Lakeside Pops concerts are $16. Indoor tickets for students under 18 are $10. Outdoor seating is $6 for adults, children are admitted free outdoors. For more information, call 636-9285.

Largest snake in the world celebrates a birthday

Baby, the party animal, celebrates at Serpent Safari.

Baby," a 27-foot, 403 lb. Burmese python, who was recently inducted into the Guinness Book of World Records as the largest snake in the world, turns 22 years of age on August 30. She is the star attraction at Serpent Safari, an indoor reptile zoo located in Gurnee Mills. Lou Daddono, owner of Baby for the past 14 years, invites customers to share in her birthday festivities.

The first 250 children to visit Baby between Aug. 25-30, will receive a free gift. Serpent Safari is also hosting a reptile coloring contest for children. Kids should bring in their own drawing of their favorite reptile or stop in for an official coloring page. The winners will have their pictures on display in the retail store and will be invited to sing Happy Birthday to the world's largest snake at her private birthday party, complete with cake and goodies. Pictures should have child's name, address, phone number and age printed on the back side. Submit them by mail or in person by Aug. 30.

Serpent Safari, the nation's first reptile zoo located within a major shopping mall, has guided safari tours every few minutes. The 20-25 minute tour highlights a collection of the world's most unusual reptiles, including an albino American alligator, a pair of albino iguanas, Nile crocodile, rare monitor lizards, large alligator snapping turtle, sulcata tortoises, reticulated pythons, anacondas and their young, and many more exotic reptiles.

So come and wish Baby a happy birthday at Serpent Safari this weekend.

Auditions set for Winter Show

Gerry Traxler's Choral Dynamics is currently holding auditions for their 32nd Winter Show to be held on Sat. Jan. 15 and Sun. Jan. 16, 2000. Rehearsals begin on Sun. Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Protestant Church in Mundelein. All voice ranges are being sought for an expanded chorus. For further information call 362-3348 or 309-0049.

SPECIAL EVENT

Pledge Ride and Bike Show at Lambs Farm

Motorcycle riders will tour 80 miles of some of the area's best country riding roads on Sun., Aug. 29 at the 3rd Annual pledge Ride to benefit Lambs Farm. This year's motorcycle event at Lambs Farm features more than just a pledge ride including entertainment that will thrill motorcycle riders and spectators alike. Funds raised will support programs for Lambs Farm participants with developmental disabilities.

The Pledge Ride registration begins at 9 a.m. and the minimum pledge is only $20 which includes $5 in tickets that may be used at Lambs Farm for food and activities and a raffle ticket for door prizes. A People's Choice Bike Show will be held from 1-4 p.m. with prizes for each category and a Grand Prize of $500 for the most votes overall. Visitors will also enjoy live music during the Bike Show from the Jim Lyban Blues Band, featured at the Harley-Davidson 95th Anniversary Celebration.

The event will also include a raffle, vendors and delicious food among the country setting of Lambs Farm's shops and attractions. General admission and parking are free. For a registration packet or more information, call 362-4636.

Senior Lifestyle Expo held in Oakbrook

check it out!

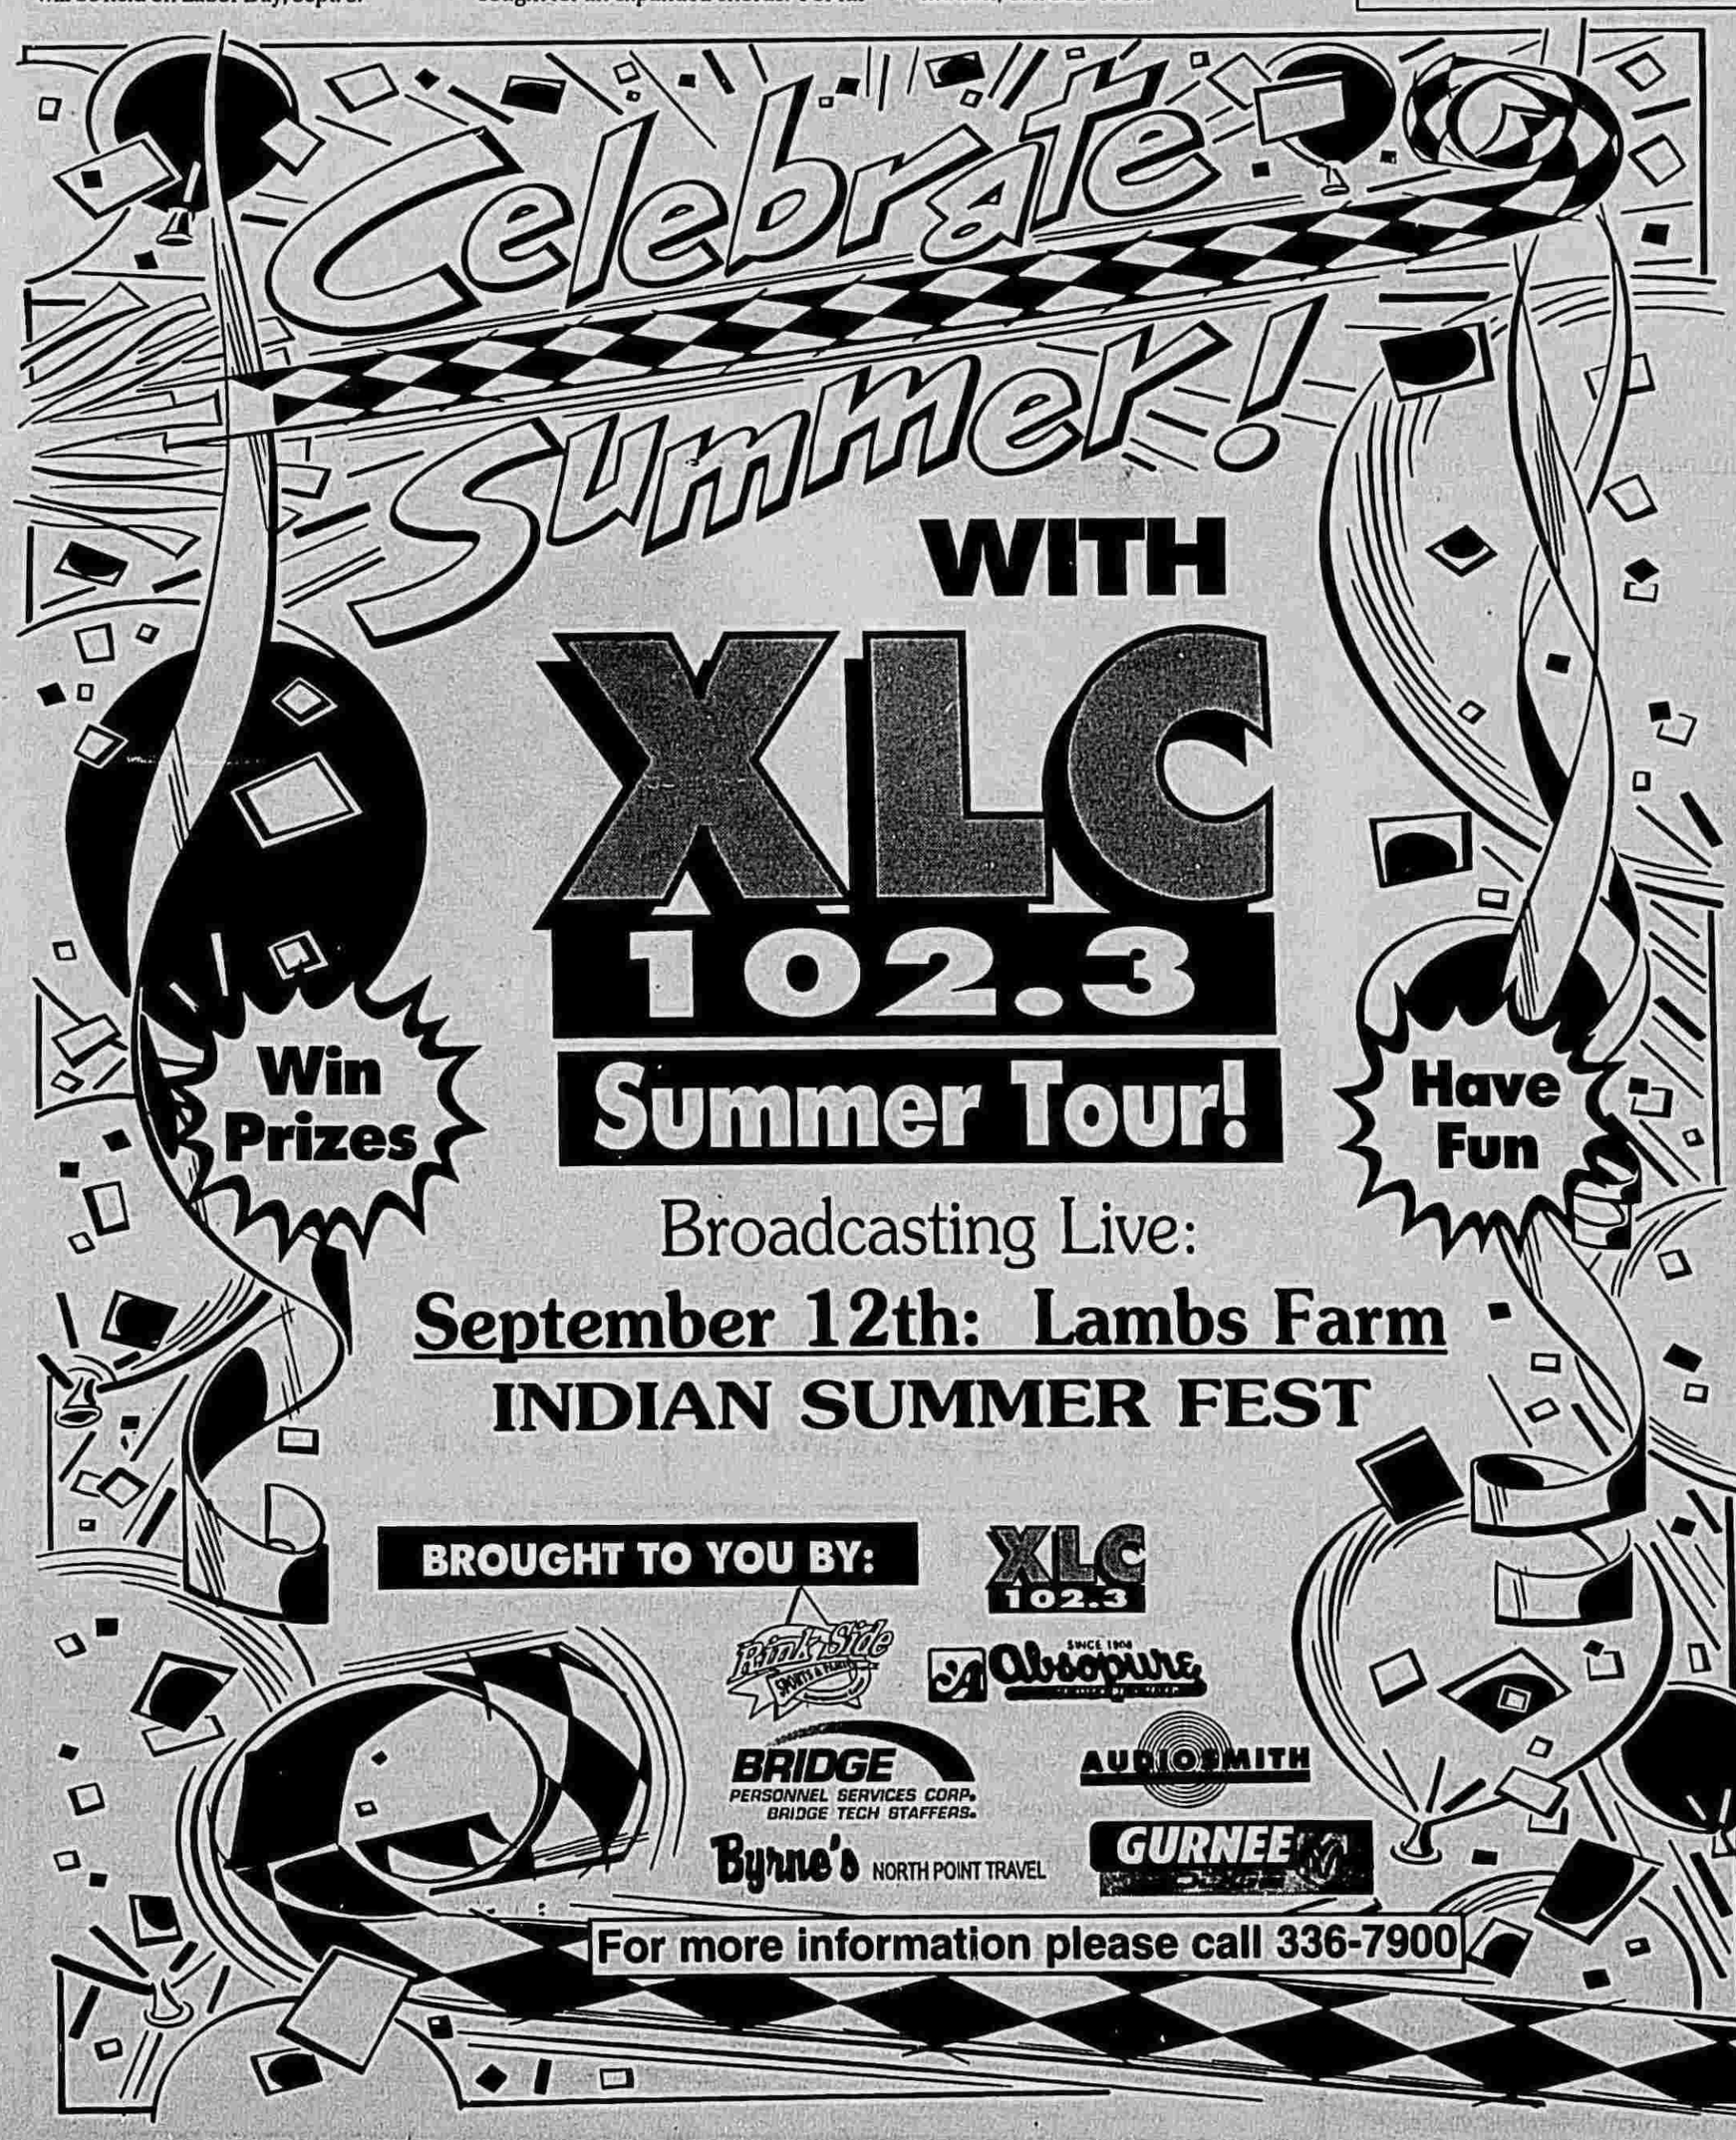

The Senior Lifestyle Expo is back by popular demand. On Sept. 1 & 2, the Drury Lane Oakbrook Terrace will be the hub of senior life in Illinois. Presented by the Northeastern Illinois Area Agency on Aging, the Expo will feature a range of activities, offering two days of exhibits, seminars and entertainment.

"As always, we invite seniors from throughout Illinois to join us for this annual event," says Connie Kobitter, spokesperson for the event. "We offer as much as we can to show that aging isn't about endings, but rather new beginnings."

Nearly 100 exhibitors will make available information on every aspect of mature life, from travel to health, from legal issues to cooking. Scheduled seminars include such topics as finance, travel, caregiving and health. And, back by popular demand, many exhibitors will offer health screenings (bone density, blood pressure, glaucoma/cataract, risk assessment for heart disease and breast cancer, etc.).

Personal safety is an issue of importance to seniors and very much in the news these days. Helping to educate seniors about personal safety this year is J.J. Bittenbinder, a seasoned detective with the ability to communicate the necessary measures needed to take care of oneself. Other personalities include a return engagement of Harry Volkman the popular meteorologist from WFLD-TV and Brian James Fowler with Brian's "Now-Stalgia" will present 20's reviews.

Once again, the Secretary of State will offer renewals and exchanges of driver's licenses for new digital licenses. New identification cards are free to seniors over the age of 65, while new digital drivers licenses are free to seniors over the age of 87. All seniors, however, who do not need a driving test are welcome to come and renew or exchange their licenses for a small fee. Seniors should bring ample identification to access these services.

Auction of unique ostrich eggs to benefit abused women

The Women's Jewelry Association (WJA), Midwest Chapter, is pleased to announce its upcoming fund-raiser, "Swinging Safari," to benefit the Chicago Abused Women Coaltion (CAWC) and WJA-Midwest on Sat., Aug. 28 from 6-11 p.m. at the Brookfield Zoo, south entrance (1st & 31st streets) in Brookfield. Ticket price is $95 per person.

The evening provides an opportunity to bid on both silent and live auction items. All proceeds from the live auction, featuring one-of-a-kind ostrich eggs enhanced by renowned designers, will be donated to CAWC. Egg designs include a purse by Vivian Alexander, titled "Elephant Walk," an original cartoon of "Hagar the Horrible," a wind chime and many more.

There will be a grand prize drawing for air transportation for the winner and companion to Europe on American Airlines (some restrictions apply). Drawing tickets are available at one ticket for $10 and five for $40. In addition, guests will enjoy hors d'oeuvres with the animals, dinner, dessert, and live music with dancing under the stars.

"Junior Sew-Ciety" continues at Gorton

"Junior Sew-Ciety," a stitching and sewing workshop for girls aged 6 and older, continues at Gorton Community Center, 400 East Illinois Road, Lake Forest. The meeting is set for August 28, from 1:30-3:30 p.m.

Monica Larson, a needleworking instructor at Gorton since 1992, will teach the girls. She has led classes in the arts of needlepoint, smocking, applique, silk ribbon embroidery, crewel, quilting, picture smocking, and has introduced young girls to working with the sewing machine.

Interested participants should register and pay in advance. For further information, or to receive a program brochure, call 234-6060 between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., weekdays.

Indian Festival brings family fun to Milwaukee's lakefront

Summer Festival to be held September 10-12

This year's Indian Summer Festival will be held Sept. 10-12 at Milwaukee's beautiful lakefront Henry Maier Festival Park and celebrates the theme "Two Continents: One People" by focusing on the indigenous peoples of South and Central America as well as those of North America. For example, a Mayan dance troupe from Mexico and a Canadian dance troupe will debut at the festival this year. "Flying dancers" from Mexico, Zuni dancers from New Mexico and other cultural performers add to the uniqueness of the festival, along with hoop and social dancing magic and more.

The great variety of events, entertainment, demonstrations and hands-on activities mean there's something for everyone at the nation's largest American Indian cultural festival. Families appreciate the fact that-festival areas where cultural activities occur-are blessed and thus considered sacred, alcoholic beverages are allowed only in the areas around contemporary music and stages.

The festival's competition powwow awards $35,000 and amazes with its glorious mix of sights and sounds. During special "intertribal" dances, audience members are invited to watch or join in the powwow and do not need to be American Indian or wear a dance outfit to participate. Visitors to the festival can watch people from many different American Indian nations demonstrate traditional skills that were, in many cases, learned from parents or grandparents. Families can watch and ask questions as artisans do quill work, make moccasins, demonstrate basket making, explain finger-weaving, carve totem poles and effigies, weave blankets and create pine needle art.

On the festival's music stages, contemporary American Indian performers cover tastes from country to blues to jazz to rock. Nationally known entertainers such as Douglass Spotted Eagle and Brule have become Indian Summer "regulars" who draw their fans to the festival and make new ones every year. Indian Summer's villages, where traditional dwellings are recreated, brings to life time honored traditions. The birch bark wigwams and wooden lodges of the Woodland Nations stand next to the teepees of the Plains Indians.

Nearby, the rustic encampment of the "White Cousins" captures the daily life of the traders and settlers that lived and worked with American Indians. Demonstrations and games bring the exciting action of the original American Indian sport, lacrosse, to the festival. At the Indian Summer sports area, volunteers from the audience are given hands-on instruction in this centuries old game.

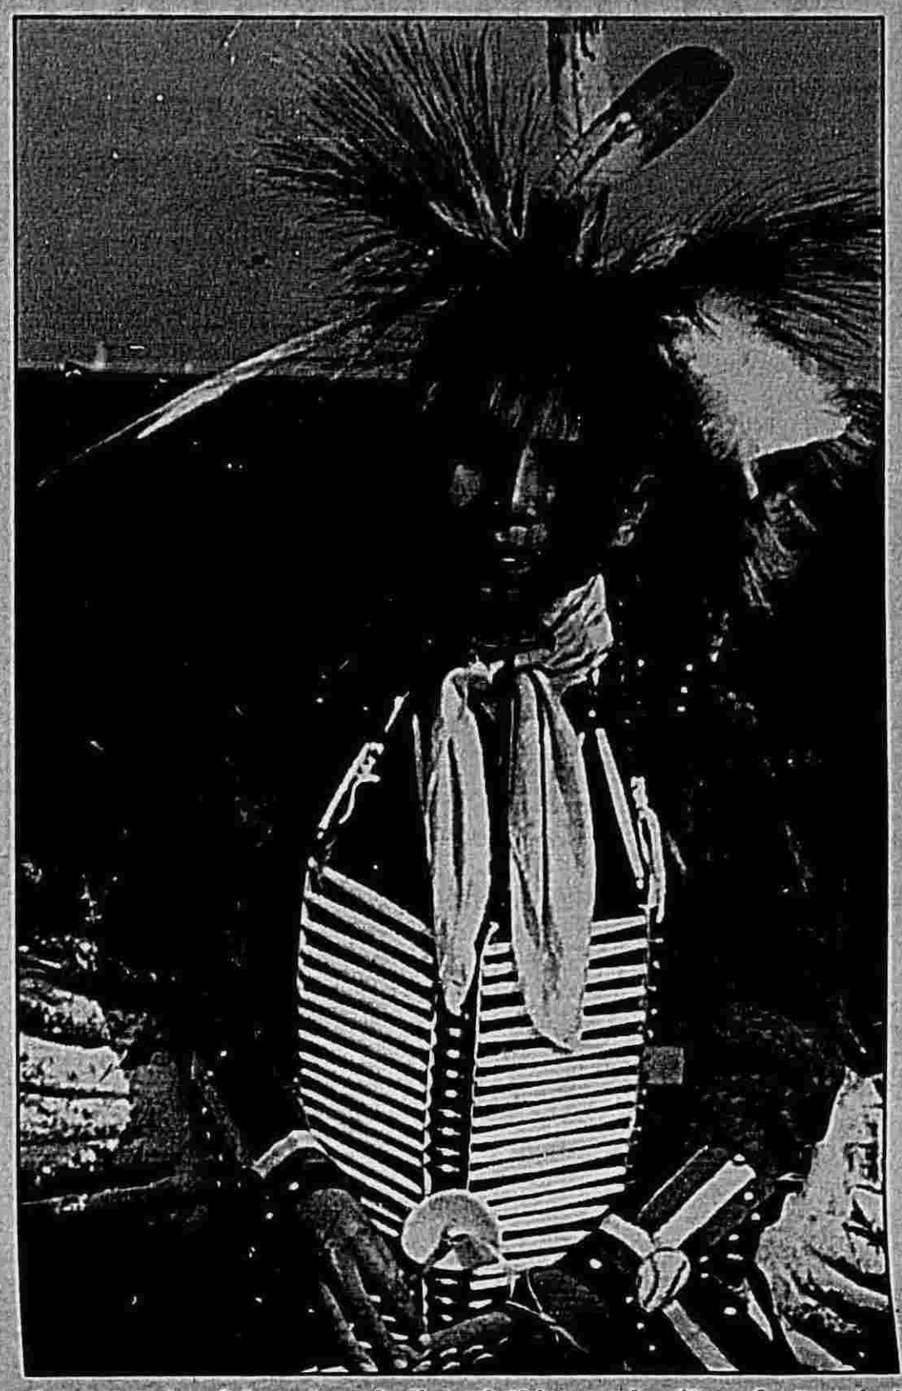

In the vendor marketplace, over 70 merchants from all over the country offer an array of crafts, toys, jewelry, music recordings, clothing, publications, and other merchandise. This is truly kid-friendly shopping, where just a few dollars can purchase an animal skin, wooden flute, or child-size ring. Fireworks, choreographed to special music, will light up the skies Friday and Saturday nights. The fireworks are introduced by a dramatic, torch-lit canoe procession.

When all this activity whets appetites, festivalgoers can sample some American Indian favorites such as Indian fry bread, Indian tacos and buffalo burgers. Other "fun food" such as ice cream, sub sandwiches and hot dogs are popular as well. On Sunday, there is a non-denominational Prayer Ceremony at 10 a.m. in the Marcus Amphitheater. The ceremony is opened with the traditional blessing and burning of sweet grass, and includes American Indian singing and drumming.

Also on Sunday, those attending the festival will be able to follow the action of Green Bay Packer football team at the "the biggest Packer Party ever" from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on a large screen TV. Adding to the fun will be high school cheerleaders and bands, and Green Bay Packer merchandise giveaways. Education Day, unique to Indian Summer, will be held this year on Friday, Sept. 10. from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The grounds are open only to registered student groups for hands-on learning experiences, pow-wow demonstrations and special programs and activities.

Thousands of school children from throughout Wisconsin and neighboring states attend the event. The festival then opens to the general public at 5 p.m. on Friday. Reservations can be made for Education Day by contacting the Indian Summer office. Special admission promotions included free admission Friday after 5 for disabled or handicapped plus one adult; free admission Sundays only with the purchase of one regular priced ticket and coupon from specially marked packages of Patrick Cudahy 1 lb. bacon; free admission Sun. for prayer ceremony 10:30 a.m.- Marcus Amphitheater entrance free admission Sunday for AIDS Walk Wisconsin participants with Walk T-Shirts (re-entrance after walk only, with wrist band from walk); Milwaukee Journal Sentinel Press Card, free admission Sunday from 2-4 p.m., one person per card; Entertainment Book and Gold C. coupons, buy one get one free at main gate.

Regular festival hours are 5 p.m. to midnight Friday, noon to midnight Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday. Ticket prices are $6 in advance, $8 at the gate for adults; $4 in advance, $5 at the gate for children 6-12 and elders over 55; children under 6 are free. Advance tickets are available at the Indian Summer Office, 7441 W. Greenfield Ave., Suite 109; Milwaukee, WI 53214. For more information, phone (414) 774-7199 or visit the website at www.indiansummer.org

movie review

Korrina Grom

Mickey Blue Eyes
Rated PG-13
Director
Kelly Makin
Starring
Hugh Grant
James Caan
Jeanne Tripplehorn
James Fox
Burt Young

He's charming. He's handsome. He has an appealing accent.

But even with all of these things and his enticing blue eyes, Hugh Grant could not save Mickey Blue Eyes from putting some audience members to sleep.

When I saw this movie, I expected another Notting Hill sell-out type crowd. Much to my surprise, however, only 15 people (including my group of friends) were in the theater.

How and why could this happen after Grant's huge success in that Julia Roberts movie? Wasn't everyone else as thrilled as I was to see the adorable Grant in another movie?

Soon after the movie started, I figured out why nobody went to see it. It's just another typical Grant movie. In this movie, he stars as Michael Felgate, a reserved Englishman (imagine that!) who auctions art at Cromwell's. He has a girlfriend, Gina Vitale (Jeanne Tripplehorn), who he loves dearly. He even buys her a two-carat diamond ring to prove it.

Much to his dismay, Gina turns down his marriage proposal, telling Michael that her dad is the reason she is unable to accept the offer. But what could be wrong with dear-old-dad?

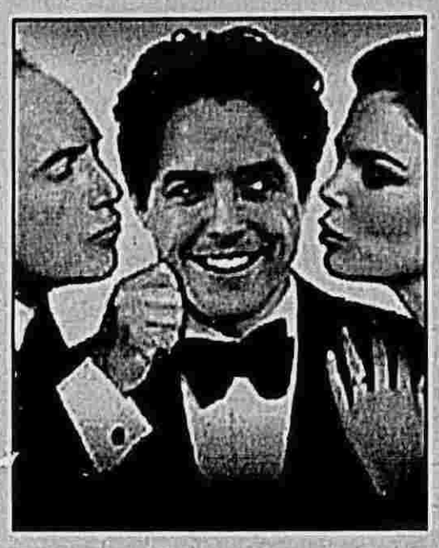

Well, it seems that dad Frank (James Caan) is part of "The Family," headed by "Uncle" Vito Graziosi, played convincingly by Burt Young. Michael stumbles upon the group of mobsters when he visits The La Trattoria restaurant.

Michael and Frank become instant buddies, and Michael asks for Gina's hand in marriage. Frank gives the okay, and Michael runs over to tell Gina the good news.

All should be going well, right? Wrong! Despite Gina's warnings, Michael begins to get more involved with "The Family." He becomes immersed in money laundering through the sale of interesting paintings created by Gina's brother. Gina, of course, has no idea what's going on behind closed doors.

The paintings are interesting, to say the least, and are purchased by "The Family" to provide a legitimate source of income.

Michael gets pulled even further into the illegal activities after an accidental shooting at his apartment. What follows is a series of hilarious scenes where Michael attempts to learn a mob-like accent. "Beer" sounds like "bee" and Grant sounds like an idiot. But a very funny idiot.

Even the charm of Hugh Grant couldn't overcome the boring "Mickey Blue Eyes." The film stars Grant, James Caan and Jeanne Tripplehorn.

Still, Grant plays a too-typical role. Yes, he's an Englishman. Yes, he has an accent. But do we really need a script that can only make us laugh by basically making a mockery of those things?

And did the directors choose Grant before naming the movie? If Grant had brown eyes, would the movie be called Mickey Brown Eyes? What if he had green eyes, or hazel eyes? Then what would the movie be called?

Truth is, Grant was type-cast for this movie. As he will be in any other movie unless he starts adding some variety to his acting career.

Nonetheless, the acting in this movie is fantastic, with Caan and Young playing the mob parts to perfection. Tripplehorn is great as the worried daughter and girlfriend.

And the scheme devised for the ending is highly entertaining.

But even these things weren't enough to help this movie. If you want a good mob movie, see The Godfather or Analyze This. But should you see Mickey Blue Eyes? Fuggedaboudit.

I give this movie two out of five popcorn boxes.

Treasure Hunt at the 1999 Recycled Art Sale

Picasso and Miro, Margaret Wharton and Matt Lamb have come in past years. This year you might find photographer Lucien Clerque or painter Fern Samuels at the one-and-only Recycled Art Sale (along with dozens of other well known artists' work.)

The Suburban Fine Arts Center's (SFAC) annual "Recycled Art Sale" will be held Aug. 28 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. All items are now marked down. You can even make us an offer that can't be refused.

All treasures you find, whether paintings, prints, books, or art supplies, are now available at unbelievable prices, and all proceeds benefit the not-for-profit Suburban Fine Arts Center.

SFAC is located in downtown Highland Park at 1913 Sheridan Rd. Gallery and sale hours are Monday through Sunday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Wilhelm Tell Festival to be held Sept. 3-6

Residents of New Glarus present their 62nd annual performance of the Wilhelm Tell Pageant Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3-6. The cast of local residents dressed in authentic 13th century costume— along with a collection of cattle, goats and horses, present playwright Friedrich Schiller's story of how Wilhelm Tell, his arrow, and an apple helped Switzerland achieve independence from Austria in 1291.

Three performances are staged in a beautiful outdoor theater. Each program begins at 1 p.m. each day. The Sunday performance starts at 4:30 p.m.

Special weekend events complement the Tell performances; a fashion show of traditional folk dress from Switzerland, Germany and Norway. A free street dance will be Sunday night in downtown New Glarus. Enjoy the Alpine Festival, Saturday evening at the high school, or browse the Outdoor Art Fair, Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p..m. in the Village Park.

For more information about the festival weekend contact: new Glarus Visitor information at 800 527-6838 or 608-527-2095 or write: New Glarus Visitor Information, P.O. box 713, New Glarus, WI. 53574-0713. Or visit our web site : www.new glarus-wi.com.

Take your best shot for photo contest

Use your imagination and take your best shot to enter in Brookfield Zoo's annual Photo Contest. Photo entries must be 8"x10" , in either color or black and white, and unmounted. They should include the photographer's name, address, phone number and age on the back. Photos must be taken at Brookfield Zoo. Individuals are limited to one entry each and photos remain the property of the zoo.

Photographs will be judged in three categories: Adults (ages 18 and up), young adults (ages 11-17), and children (ages 10 and under). Three winners in each category will be chosen as well as a grand-prize winner. The winning photos will be displayed in the zoo's Discovery Center during the month of October.

Send your entry to: Photo Contest, Brookfield Zoo, 3300 Golf Road, Brookfield 60513. Contest deadline Sept. 17. Winners will be notified by Sept. 22.

For more information, call 708 485-0263, ext. 352.

HOROSCOPE

Aries – March 21/April 20
You run into an old acquaintance early in the week. Spend time catching up with him or her. However, take everything that this person says with a grain of salt. He or she is trying to impress you. A loved one needs your help with a family problem. Do what you can for him or her.

Taurus – April 21/May 21
Don't be stubborn when it comes to a disagreement with a business associate. If you really listen to what this person is saying, you'll realize that you both want the same thing. Try to work together. That special someone asks you an important question. Don't be coy; just give him or her a straight answer. Cancer plays a key role.

Gemini – May 22/June 21
Don't get discouraged when family members don't support a decision that you make — and don't change your mind either! Only you can decide what is best for you. They don't know all of the details of your situation. An interesting person asks you out late in the week. Say yes, because this could be the one.

Cancer – June 22/July 22
You have a lot going on this week, Cancer. Don't get overwhelmed. Just prioritize things, and keep everything in perspective. What's the worst thing that will happen if you don't get everything done? Ask yourself that when you start to get nervous, and you'll stay in control. Sagittarius plays an important role on Tuesday.

Leo – July 23/August 23
Don't get too upset when a loved one makes a mistake that gets you into trouble. He or she doesn't mean to hurt you. Besides, the situation is easy to clear up. So, accept his or her apology. A good friend needs a favor from you. While you don't want to get involved, you know that you have to. Be there for this person.

Virgo – Aug 24/Sept 22
Take your time when it comes to making an important decision this week, Virgo. This is going to have a significant impact on your everyday life, so don't take it lightly. Look at the pros and cons, and consider the consequences of your choice. Turn to loved ones for advice if you need it.

Libra – Sept 23/Oct 23
A close friend needs someone to talk to during the middle of the week. Be there for him or her. Your support and sympathy will be appreciated. A loved one invites you out at the end of the week. Say yes, because it's sure to be fun.

Scorpio – Oct 24/Nov 22
Don't let a business associate pull the wool over your eyes early in the week. While this person may appear to want to help you, he or she really wants to make you look bad. Don't let him or her hurt your reputation. A good friend wants to get together this week. Say yes, because you're sure to learn some interesting information.

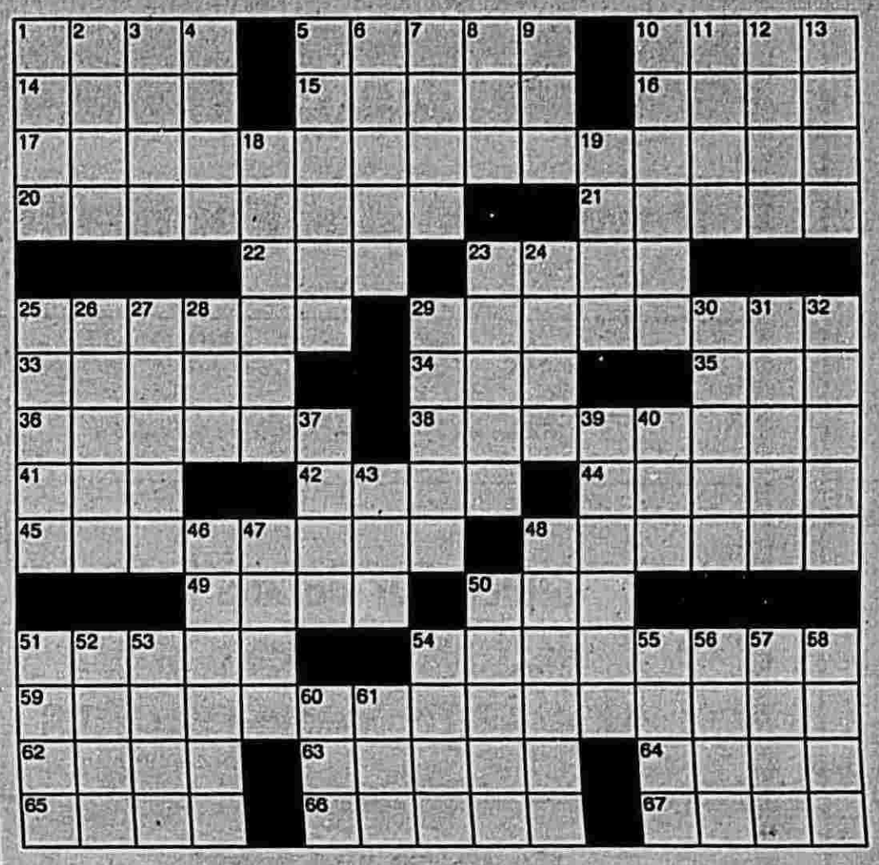

Sagittarius – Nov 23/Dec 21
If you want to make any progress at work this week, Sagittarius, you must control your temper. Don't let minor mistakes by coworkers set you off. Just remain calm, and try to help correct the problems. The higher-ups are watching how you handle these situations. Don't disappoint them.

Capricorn – Dec 22/Jan 20
You get an unexpected windfall early in the week. Celebrate this surprise with those closest to you, because you know that they've always supported you. However, don't spend everything that you get. Put some away for a rainy day. You never know when it's going to pour.

Aquarius – Jan 21/Feb 18
Be realistic when it comes to a favor that a good friend asks of you. You can't do everything that he or she wants you to do. Let this person know that. However, don't blow him or her off either. Do what you can to help. Your efforts will be appreciated. Gemini plays a key role late in the week.

Pisces – Feb 19/March 20
When it comes to your personal life, keep your eyes and ears open this week, Pisces. Your relationship with that special someone isn't as perfect as you think it is. This person is sending you signals on how to fix the problems. Pay attention!

Centre Lights Cafe's tasty secret is out

For 11 years, one of the best kept secrets on the Condell Hospital Campus at 200 W. Golf Rd. in Libertyville, has been the existence of marvelous restaurant in the Centre Club, named the Centre Lights Cafe.

Located on the upper level of the private Centre Club, Condell's Health and Wellness Center, the Centre Lights Cafe is open to the public. Every day, in a casual and genteel, yet athletic atmosphere, a well-trained, courteous and professional staff serves some of the best cuisine around.

The widely varied menu offers delicious food ranging from the very healthy to delectable mainstream dishes.

From the scrumptious spareribs served every Thursday, to the popular Sunday Brunch that offers every and any thing to please the fussiest appetite for a steal-of-the-century $12.95 per person. The Centre Lights Cafe is an eating place extraordinaire.

Daily, lucky diners enjoy a variety of sandwiches for $4.95 to $6.95, or one of many hot and hearty entrees, with seafood and pasta specials topping every hungry person's list.

The Centre Lights Cafe is open for three meals a day, from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday; and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday. For more information call the hospital at (847)362-2905, Ext. 5574.

Proper treatment of atopic dermatitis may bring relief for children and parents/caregivers

Atopic dermatitis, one of the most common skin disorders of children, is uncomfortable for those who suffer from the disease, and can be stressful for their parents/caregivers. But, say dermatologists, with proper treatment and precautions, this form of eczema can be controlled.

The disease, for which there is no known cure, can occur at any age but is most common in infants to young adults. Approximately 10 percent of infants and 3 percent of the U.S. population overall suffer from atopic dermatitis.

"The exact cause of atopic dermatitis is unknown and identifying the factors that cause and exacerbate the disease is different for each person," says Teri Kahn, M.D., Director, Pediatric Dermatology, Departments of Dermatology and Pediatric & Adolescent Medicine, The Cleveland Clinic Foundation. "It can be hereditary or simply caused by a variety of every-day conditions." Irritating factors in soaps, detergents, fabric softeners, certain types of clothing, and dyes or perfumes can aggravate the disease. Stress, dry skin, heat and sweating, low humidity, or allergies can also be irritants. Food allergy is proven as a cause in fewer than 10 percent of children.

Atopic dermatitis is characterized by a very itchy, burning rash. In infants, spots tend to appear mainly on the face and scalp. In teens and young adults, the rashes typically occur on the elbow bends and backs of the knees, ankles and wrists and on the face, neck and upper chest. Although these are the most common sites, any body area may be affected. Atopic dermatitis is not contagious.

In attempts to relieve the itchy feeling caused by the rash, individuals with the disease often seek relief by rubbing or scratching the itch. This can exacerbate the condition. "Scratching damages the skin, worsens inflammation, irritates surface nerves, and leads to more intense itching which, in turn, may lead to infection," explains Dr. Kahn.

Most cases of atopic dermatitis are too severe for self-care by parents/caregivers. "Proper, early and regular treatment by a dermatologist can bring relief and may reduce the severity and duration of the disease," says Dr. Kahn.

In treating pediatric atopic dermatitis patients, Dr. Kahn works with parents/caregivers to identify and remove from the child's environment those irritants that aggravate the rash, and also offers advice on how to manage the disease. To help control the itching and inflammation associated with this condition, she often prescribes a topical steroid such as DERMATOP Emollient Cream (prednicarbate emollient cream) 0.1%. DERMATOP is the only mid-potency topical steroid approved for use in pediatric patients one (1) year of age and older.

To help alleviate your child's discomfort, Dr. Kahn offers the following suggestions to parents/caregivers:

• Reduce contact with irritants. Common culprits include nickle/chrome plated jewelry, snaps and buttons, laundry detergents, certain fragrances, and direct skin contact with rough fibers, particularly wool. Food allergy is proven as a cause in fewer than 10 percent of children. Common allergy-causing foods are eggs, milk, seafood, nuts, wheat and soy.

•Wash new clothes before your child wears them.
Use mild laundry detergents and avoid bleach, fabric softeners and perfumed laundry products. Because synthetic and wool tend to aggravate the condition, 100 percent cotton garments are advisable.

• Clip fingernails short.
At naptime and bedtime, put light cotton gloves on your child's hands to avoid "sleep scratching."
- Use a humidifier, especially in your child's bedroom.
This will help increase moisture content.

• Talk to your dermatologist about proper bathing and moisturizing techniques.

Use soapless cleansers or non-alkaline (neutral) soaps. AVEENO Bath Treatments, Lotions, Creams and Cleansers contain Colloidal Oatmeal, an ingredient clinically proven and recommended by dermatologists to relieve dry, itchy skin naturally. Don't rub with a washcloth as this may irritate the skin.

• Be aware of how climate affects your child.

Many patients may improve with sunlight, but heat may aggravate itching. Air conditioning may provide added benefit in hot climates.

With time, atopic dermatitis usually improves. For most children, the condition tends to go away by the teenage years, but the dry skin associated with the disease may remain. Occasionally, eczema may flare up in later years during times of stress or exposure to irritants.

"Work with your dermatologist to learn about the disease and how it is treated. Be reassured that it can be controlled," says Dr. Kahn.
In clinical trials, the incidence of adverse reactions associated with the use of DERMATOP was approximately four percent. Reported reactions include mild signs of skin atrophy in one percent of patients, and urticaria (hives), allergic contact dermatitis, paresthesia (heightened sensitivity), burning, rash, edema, and pruritus (itching) in less than one percent of patients.

For further information about DERMATOP Emollient Cream (prednicarbate emollient cream) 0.1%, including full U.S. Prescribing Information, call 1-800-426-7762 or e-mail your question to odmedinfo@cpcus.jnj.com.

Understanding prostate cancer

While prostate cancer threatens men in numbers similar to breast cancer in women, most men are unaware of the statistics. They know little about the disease. Few participate in annual screenings or actively seek early detection and treatment. It's time all that changes.

Since 1988, the number of deaths attributed to prostate cancer has increased by 50 percent, according to the American Cancer Society. "African-Americans, the most at risk group of men in the world for this disease, are diagnosed with prostate cancer at a rate 33 percent higher than men of other races. Their survival rate is 20 percent lower," says Raza Khan, M.D., board certified Lake County urologist.

"Prostate cancer can develop and grow long before a man notices any symptoms, like painful urination, decreased force of urine stream, or difficulty starting or stopping urination", says Harsh Kumar, M.D., board certified Lake County Urologist. "That's why annual screenings are important."

Screenings allow the doctor to identify possible prostate cancer before it has grown and spread to other organs of the body. And a man's chance of surviving prostate cancer detected in these early stages is much greater.

Annual prostate cancer screenings beginning at age 40 are recommended for African-American men and men with a family history (grandfather, father, uncle, brother) of the disease. All other men are urged to begin screenings at age 50.

A prostate screening is really a three-part test. There is a brief medical history questionnarie to be completed. Then the physician performs a rectal exam during which he feels the surface of the prostate gland to see is any swelling or abnormal growth. Finally, the doctor takes a small amount of blood so that its PSA (prostate specific antigen) levels can be checked. If the screening results indicate possible cancer, an ultrasound and biopsy are required for diagnosis of the disease.

Victory Memorial Hospital, in conjunction with board certified urologists, will hold free prostate cancer screenings on September 21 in Waukegan and September 28 in Lindenhurst. For information on this important screening or to make an appointment, call Victory's Community Relations Department at 360-4246.

"Modern cancer care offers many options for treating prostate cancer in its early stages," says Robert Saffrin, M.D., board certified Lake County urologist. "Most common is the surgical removal of the prostate gland (radical prostatectomy)."

Surgery is often recommended for early stages of the disease,while the cancer is contained within the prostate gland. While surgery can eliminate the cancer, side effects include a high rate of impotence and/or incontinence resultings from the surgery.

Prostate seed implantation is a method of reducing the prostate cancer with radiation from inside the body. In seed implantation, several tiny pellets no larger than grains of rice, are treated with radioactive medication. Then the seeds are permanently implanted directly in the middle of the cancer during a non-surgical, outpatient procedure.

While it is estimated that 180,000 new cases of prostate cancer will be diagnosed in the United States this year, the American cancer Society notes that early detection can help make it possible for men to live long, healthy lives following their diagnosis.

Treatment for ADD needs to be on multiple levels

PARENT'S PLACE

Dr. Sherri Singer

Dr. Singer,

I've seen you write about Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD) in the past as well as about the way kids learn. We have had our child on medication for ADD for several years and that is all we have done with him. We still see some areas in school regarding learning that are problematic even with the medication. However, we haven't really ever gotten any suggestions on what to do besides just talking to someone. After reading several of your past columns, I'm wondering if you do any kind of combination of treatments to deal with the issues that medication doesn't address? F.H.

Dear F.H.,

I would like to answer your question by setting up a model for you to think about. In my view, treatment for ADD has been historically viewed as a very stark "black and white" type of issue. It was either a medical problem or a non-medical problem. It was either a learning problem or an attention problem. It seems that in this way, it has inadvertently become a turf battle in the professional field. If it is seen as only one problem or only responsive to one treatment, then the people doing that treatment were the only ones who could help make it better. I've seen raging battles in which people in different professions would be arguing with each other about which of their treatments was more appropriate. You see, there is a lot of agreement in the field and among parents about what symptoms constitute ADD. There is not, however, a lot of agreement about what the causes or treatments of ADD are.

Instead of talking to you about the "black and white" type of approach or the "it has to be one way" approach, what I will present to you is that I believe that a condition like ADD is multifaceted and filled with gray areas. Specifically, I see ADD as needing two treatments in order for the child to reach total success.

I believe that ADD has a biological or a neurological component to it which of course is the part that is usually treated by medication. If you stop there, however, you are missing a huge part of the picture. You see, I believe that ADD is also about something called "sensory overload," or one's inability to manage and interpret multiple sensory inputs or information. Many kids who have ADD and who do not have ADD do not know how to manage information coming into several sensory modalities at the same time. For example, the ability to focus on one voice when there are others around. Also, the ability to write something down, while still listening to something else.

The kids who can't manage these things, get lost and then get overwhelmed and then begin to avoid. This has incredibly negative effects on their self esteem and self confidence. It's at that point that we normally step in and try to change the environment to fit the child's needs, instead of trying to improve the child's skills which will be far more beneficial for the child in the real world. After all, how often does the adult world adapt itself for special needs? It is my assumption that many of the kids who become upset with school or the learning process are having these kinds of sensory problems. "Sensory overload" and "learning avoidance" can also reflect itself in behavioral acting out as well. The nice thing is, "sensory overload" and "learning avoidance" can be reversed and trained. Maintenance of these kinds of skills is a learned process and can be improved rather quickly if enough intensive work is done.

These skill deficits develop out of habits. ADD may exist first and make it so the child is less attentive to his environment to begin with. As he gets older, he begins to connect learning and school with feeling inadequate and thus he starts to avoid or ignore. Of course, teachers and parents will try to do as much as they can to keep him going along, but during this time that the child is avoiding these things, he is also not practicing the skills that make handing multiple sensory inputs possible, thus falling further and further behind. When he gets on medication and the ADD is managed, you might still see the same habits that the child has been doing for a long time. He may still avoid school. He may still not finish homework. Many times, I see people wanting to increase dosages at this point, when dealing directly with the habits and skill deficits that had been built up around the ADD, may help more. You could compare this to someone who had a problem with his leg and could not walk correctly for years. When the cast is removed and the therapy over, you might still see this person favoring the other leg more. Habits die hard when not attended to.

What I am trying to say here is that in cases of ADD, the medical or neurological side of it should not be ignored and can be dealt with by consulting with a medical doctor. To get total success for the child, what needs to come next, however, is re-training of those deficient sensory management skills that may have become habitually ineffective for the child as a response to the ADD. This type of training does not occur in just talking to someone. Intensive re-training needs to happen with the child. In answer to your question, I do this type of therapy in a program called Total Success and Pace. This is something I have written about before and will be glad to speak with you further about it if you'd like. I can also send you some information on it if you are interested. Call me again and let me know if you'd like this.

Purchasing appropriate exercise equipment

The proliferation of technically advanced, yet affordable fitness equipment has broadened the horizons of home exercise. But, choosing the right equipment for your needs is still a delicate task. Many an exercise bike, rowing machine, abdominal toner and weight set sits gathering dust in a basement corner because it didn't fulfill the requirements or expectations of the intended user.

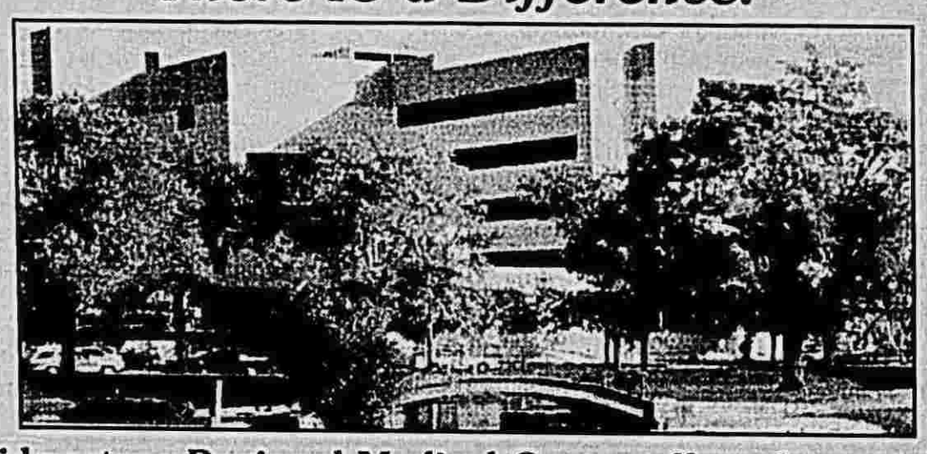

How can you determine if the workout is right for you? Fitness experts recommend asking yourself some basic questions. Do you like to be totally engrossed in your workout, or do you prefer the distractions of television or a good book as you exercise? This will help you narrow your choices. For instance, a step aerobics program requires your full concentration, but you can take your favorite novel along for the ride if you workout on an exercise bike.

Once you've decided on the type of equipment you want, go to some local retail outlets and test the various models available. Many fitness products are also available for a 30-day in-home trial, so you can test them out at home. And, be sure to inquire about warranties and service support. Many of today's high-end exercise machines have complex motors and/or electronic components that can prove costly to repair.

Gardening teaches children multiple lessons

A child's garden produces the richest harvest of all.

"With hoe and trowel in hand, a child experiences the satisfaction that comes from commitments and observes the cycle of life firsthand," says Peter Reynolds, president of BRIO Corp., a Milwaukee, Wisc., toy company that makes sturdy garden tools for children.

Working side by side in the garden, adults and children learn from each other and share their successes. Gardening cultivates a child's instinctive love for the earth, and the bounty - crunchy carrots, sweet snap peas, fresh herbs - can lay the foundation for healthy eating habits for a lifetime.

even a small garden can yield big discoveries. In fact, gardening experts recommend that a child's garden be small enough that the weeding, watering, thinning and harvesting are manageable for the child.

If you don't have access to an outdoor plot, indoor plants and trays can produce rewarding results if you choose appropriate seeds.

Whether you're gardening indoors or out, BRIO makes a child-size tools for the task, from a mini-greenhouse and seed pots for indoor growing to shovels, hoes and rakes with sturdy wooden handles and metal blades to tackle outdoor projects.

For a list of specialty toys stores that carry BRIO tools, call 1-800-558-6863, ext. 5.

Playing in the dirt can be a rewarding experiance when you use BRIO's mini-greenhouse to watch seeds grow into healthy plants. BRIO makes a full line of sturdy garden tools for children to use indoors and out.

The new old kitchen

It is almost the year 2000. Some homeowners may envision the modern kitchen with sleek cabinets and long uninterrupted expanses of counter tops. Some people think of a space age kitchen that looks like a commercial kitchen. However, the average American spends three to five hours per day in the kitchen. That is at least triple the amount of time spent in the formal living room. The kitchen is the main hub and, many would say, the heart of a house. If the average person is living and entertaining in their kitchen, it makes more sense to treat the space more like a living room.

The way to accomplish this is by creating an unfitted kitchen. An unfitted kitchen may include a freestanding piece for an island, hutches, armoires, desks and even a comfortable chair or love-seat. The unfitted kitchen is very European and some Americans may not be willing to give up miles of continuos counter tops.

The Greater Chicagoland Chapter of the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI) has noticed this upcoming trend and members are starting to create and recommend the look for their customers. "A completely unfitted kitchen may not be as practical as a modern kitchen, although it will have loads of old world charm," says NARI of Greater Chicagoland President Don Van Cura, Sr., CR, CLC. "The best of both worlds, is to incorporate a few aspects of an unfitted kitchen to have the look without sacrificing modern convenience and practicality."

Many cabinet manufacturers are introducing cabinet lines that incorporate furniture details. Some are also offering lines of freestanding furniture that are tailored for the kitchen, such as food cupboards, plate dressers and pantries.

One advantage to an unfitted kitchen is greater flexibility in working around existing features like windows, chimneys and doors. The kitchen can incorporate antique furniture collected by the homeowner and will blend better with other rooms in the house, especially if the rest of the decor is traditional or country. An unfitted kitchen allows for more expression in design and may be easier to rearrange to suit changing needs, especially beneficial as the population of homeowners continues to age.

On the other hand, space between separate pieces may cut down on storage space and a long expanse of counter top may not be feasible. The unfitted kitchen may take more time to plan and design as it will require a skilled eye to not appear cluttered and mismatched. The more elaborate architectural details of the kitchen may add to the cost.

The unfitted kitchen is an option worth considering for any homeowner in the market to remodel a kitchen. If the idea of a relaxed area that appears as much a living and entertaining space as a kitchen is appealing, an unfitted or semi-unfitted kitchen may be just the thing.

NARI of Grater Chicagoland is the local chapter of the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI), a nationally recognized not-for-profit organization comprised of contractors, material suppliers and related businesses dedicated to improving the standards of the remodeling industry and serving as an ally to the nation's homeowners.

NARI of Greater Chicagoland offers a free publication that includes tips on how to choose a professional remodeler and a listing of NARI contractors the Chicagoland area. To obtain a copy, call the NARI office at (312)266-8889.

Tax payments due

Lake County Treasurer Robert Skidmore reminds residents the due date for the second installment of the 1998 real estate taxes is Sept. 3.

Payments can be made in person at the Lake County Treasurer's office, 18 N. County St., Room 102, Waukegan, by cash, check or Discover Card at the treasurer's office. Payments can also be made by mail or at most Lake County banks.

Law targets cons

Con artists who repeatedly alter vehicle titles will face stiffer penalties under a new state law, signed by the governor and sponsored by State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion).

Geo-Karis said fraudulent car sales are a concern in Lake County and the new law will help protect consumers from dangerous con schemes.

Program features 'Big Mouths'

Whip-poor-wills, night hawks and swifts have some of the biggest mouths of any birds around. A special program on Big Mouth birds will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Sept. 4 at the Ryerson Conservation Area near Deerfield.

The program is open to adults and families with children eight years and older. The cost is $5 ($4 for Lake County residents). Please call 948-7740 to register by Aug. 30.

Beautiful sounds

Hearing loss does not stop poet from creating elegant works

Willadene L. Nicholas is a published author who writes without designs of making a best seller list.

An active octogenarian who has seven books of poetry to her credit, Nicholas has just introduced the third edition of "Angel Children," subtitled "Rainbows of Love, Dreams are Forever and other Poems."

'I can't hear my own voice, but that's God's will'

Willadene Nicholas
Grayslake poet

The revised edition of "Angel Children" has been designated the Pre-Millennium II 1999 A.D. Edition because the indefatigable 89-year-old writer is already planning a new book for 2000 in celebration of the millennium.

"That's part of my master plan. My next book will be entirely new," Nicholas related with a mischievous twinkle in her eye. At this point, she's not giving any hints about content except to say the book will be "inspirational and ecumenical."

Nicholas began writing poetry in earnest about 30 years ago after establishing a reputation as a water colorist and art teacher.

Long widowed, Willadene writes about her family, friends, things that she sees and thoughts that capture her fancy.

The typical Nicholas book of poetry has a small press run, enough to supply friends and acquaintances mainly. Willadene also keeps the press run small because she hand colors original pen and ink sketches on the front and back cover. That's a special feature of her books.

The third revision of "Angel Children" features "The Master's Plan," a four stanza poem alluding to God's plan for everyone.

"There's a message here for all of us so find the Master's Plan . . . for Putting Love and Gentle Kindness With the Soul of every man."

Willadene writes daily in long hand on lined paper, usually in the morning. In good weather, she sits on a swing in her backyard of a Cape Cod house in Grayslake

CLC site prefered for University

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

The College of Lake County in Grayslake remains the Illinois Board of Higher Education's preferred choice for the proposed University Center of Lake County, but developers of the Lakehurst Mall site will have more time to present their case.

Earlier this week, the state board passed a resolution indicating "it strongly prefers to locate the center at the College of Lake County at Grayslake."

However, the board seemed to leave the door open by stating that it would give developers of the Lakehurst Mall until Jan. 1, 2000 to provide further information as to the type of development being proposed at the Waukegan site and sources of funding.

Partial leaf burning ban is a probability

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

There was lots of smoke but no fire yet as members of the Lake County's Health and Human Services Committee pondered what to do on the controversial leaf burning issue.

Although no formal decisions were made, the committee consensus appeared to favor a limited ban on leaf burning during certain months of the year and restricting burning to specific days and times during the burning season.

"I don't think there will be an outright ban on it, but I think we need to start educating the public as to the affects of leaf burning," said committee chair Audrey Nixon.

The committee heard a list of eight options presented by the Lake County Administrator's Office. Options ranged from minor changes to the existing open burning ordinance to a total ban on the open burning of leaves and landscape waste in unincorporated areas of the county.

It also wants to further study the possibility of imposing a ban on leaf burning during certain months of the year, specifically from December to March and from June to August.

Under that option, burning would be allowed during the months of April, May, September, October and November, and only on Tuesdays and Saturdays, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Nixon believes the burning restrictions are a good middle ground between the people who want to continue to burn their leaves and those who are concerned about the health risks associated with leaf burning.

Dale Galassie, director of the Lake County Health Department, said the health department believes leaf burning poses a health risk to people with respiratory problems like asthma.

"If you look at this from a health perspective, we have very strong na-

Lawmaker wants reform

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

In an effort to address the escalating cost of elections, an area legislator is calling for legislation to reform the way campaigns are financed in Illinois.

'There has to be limits on how much can be spent on campaigns because it's getting to the point where it's cost prohibitive for anybody to run for office.'

Terry Link
(State Sen.D-Vernon Hills)

"The problem we've got is the high cost of campaigns," said State Sen. Terry Link (D-Vernon Hills). "In order to run a campaign, you have to raise so much money and so much of the money comes from special interest groups. We need to lessen the influence of special interest groups."

Link said he and some of his colleagues in the Senate are planning to introduce campaign finance reform legislation when the General Assembly reconvenes for the spring 2000 session.

Link said in a typical state senate district, such as his own, upwards of $1 million can be spent by candidates on a campaign.

"That's just ridiculous," he said. "That's way too much money to be spent on this type of campaign. There has to be limits on how much can be spent on campaigns because it's getting to the point where it is cost prohibitive for anybody to run for office."

Link's plan calls for:

- A voter's guide with statements from each candidate mailed to all Illinois voters.
- Voluntary limits for legislative and statewide offices. Campaigns choosing voluntary limits would be eligible for matching public financing.
- Rewarding small individual contributions with some form of matching public financing.
- Further improvements and reductions in reporting times for the electronic filing of large contributions in the waning days of political campaigns.

In addition, Link supports

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Animal rights group protests

Vernon Hills—Shoppers at the Vernon Hills Wal-Mart on Aug. 21 may have been shocked to encounter a giant white rabbit outside the store. The rabbit wasn't there for entertainment purposes, but to represent the thousands of animals that have died during tests for cosmetic and household products, according to Rachel Lang, Illinois Animal Action (IAA)'s "Give it back to Procter & Gamble" Campaign Co-coordinator.

The eight protesters from IAA at Wal-Mart Saturday may have been even more shocked than the customers, however, when two police cars pulled up in front of the store.

Two of the protesters had been asked by store employees to stop distributing leaflets, which they did, according to Lang. An assistant store manager called the police to report trespassing and soliciting by the group.

The group returned $950 worth of Procter & Gamble products to the Vernon Hills Wal-Mart. Volunteers donned "Procter & Gamble Poisons Animals" t-shirts, passed out informational leaflets, and carried baskets of product into the store.

No one was arrested, but the group was forced to leave by officers.

Woman indicted on theft charges

Round Lake Heights—Patricia A. Kassner, 58, of Round Lake Heights, was indicted August 18 by the Lake County grand jury on charges of stealing a total of $26,000 from the Lake County Fair.

Kassner is a former Round Lake Heights trustee. She is accused of stealing $11,000 from fair proceeds in 1998 and $15,000 this year. Kassner had been employed by the fair as a cash handler for the last three years.

Kassner has been indicted on two counts of theft. Each count is a Class II felony that carries a three to seven-year prison term. She will appear before Lake County Circuit Court Judge Raymond J. McKoski on Sept. 1 for arraignment.

Woman arrested for sexual assault

Round Lake Park—A Round Lake Park woman has been charged with five counts of predatory criminal sexual assault of a child.

Louise A. Kraft, 29, was arrested Aug. 17 by Lake County sheriff's deputies. She remains in Lake County Jail after Lake County Associate Judge Victoria L. Martin set bond at $500,000 on Aug. 18.

She has been accused of performing sexual acts on her two children, a 9-year-old boy and a 10-year-old girl, and forcing them to perform sexual acts on her and each other from April 1997 through March of this year.

The children, who have been living in foster care, alerted their foster parents of the assaults.

Kraft's husband, David, was sentenced to 15 years in prison this summer after pleading guilty to sexually assaulting an 11-year-old girl for five years.

A probable cause hearing has been set for Sept. 13 in the Lake County Circuit Court in Waukegan.

The party's over

Wadsworth—Due to increasing concern from Wadsworth residents, the village parks committee has made the decision to not accept any more reservations for parties in their community park after honoring what is already in place.

Parties that have already been scheduled through Sept. may be canceled if they exceed a certain number of guests.

People have been concerned over the excessive number of people in the park during parties and the fact that they are parking on the trail, which prohibits residents from using it on weekends.

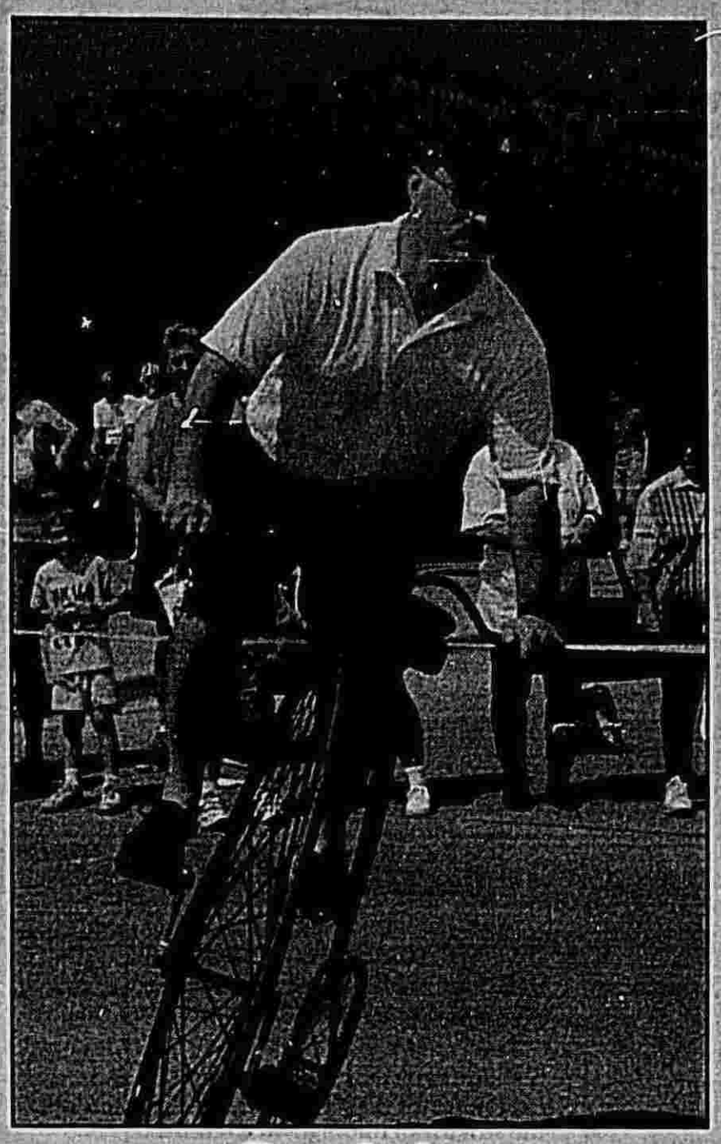

The committee is considering raising reservation fees and deposits for non-residents, and keeping the deposits of those who abuse the park facilities.

Committee Chairman and Trustee Betty Rae Kaiser commented that the reason for the excess of parties is because "the forest preserves are booked and they've found us." However, the village is determined to control the situation.

Annexation debate heats up

Fox Lake—The annexation debate continues strong in the Fox Lake area.

Fox Lake Mayor James Pappas once again took on what he described as the "rumor mill" of annexation questions. He charged those who oppose the village's positions to speak out at public meetings and to go on the record with their views.

Parade fun

A parade participant rounds the corner on an antique bike during the Grayslake Summer Days celebration Aug. 22.

He read from a two-page statement which is available to all interested parties.

"It seems once again, as I had to shortly after my election as mayor, I find myself in the unusual situation of what I can only refer to as — management. I will not give credibility to most of the more ridiculous rumors I am hearing about the annexation situation and the related rumors that highly motivated people are spreading for their own benefit to be sure. I cannot even keep up with all of them anyway. I will, however, do the best I can to address some issues that many people have asked me in the past months," Pappas said.

The matter is scheduled for a Sept. 7 Fox Lake board meeting.

Dist. 118, police discuss need for CSO

Wauconda—Wauconda District 118 may join the list of school districts with a police presence in their schools.

Preliminary meetings have been held with village officials to discuss the possibility of a community service officer assigned to District 118. School officials have met with Deputy Police Chief Dan E. Quick and Fire Chief Dave Dato and report a positive response.

Both the school and the village may be seeking expanded grant funds to help pay for the position.

"The community service officer would be available to the school district-wide. The mayor (James Eschenbauch) has been very supportive of this. The CSO would work as a liaison between the school, the police and parents," District 118 board President Thomas Weber said.

Rosen to participate in fund-raiser

Gurnee—Rosen Motors will take part in a special fund-raiser Saturday, Aug. 28, becoming the second car dealership in Gurnee to help raise money for a piece of life-saving equipment for the Gurnee Fire Department.

On Saturday, Rosen Motors, 7000 Grand Ave., will donate $100 for each car sold to the purchase of an Argus thermal imaging camera (TIC). The Argus TIC enables firefighters to see through smoke and darkness to find people and pets inside burning buildings.

"The infrared sensor technology needed to produce the Argus TIC costs more than most fire departments can afford," said Fire Chief Fred Friedl. He said an Argus TIC can cost anywhere between $18,000 and $25,000.

"We want to thank the community and Rosen Motors for helping raise money for this important life-saving equipment," said Friedl.

Rosen Motors will also take $10 off each $18.95 oil change the preceding week and put that money towards the Argus TIC. All donations will be made in the customer's name.

Dist. 79 enters agreement

Mundelein—Fremont School District 79 and the Fremont Education Association (FEA) have entered a three-year collective bargaining agreement which will result in an increase of instruction time for students and salary increases for teachers.

At the school board's meeting Monday night, the agreement, ratified by the FEA last week, was reached and will result in an increase of 100 minutes of instruction per week. Along with this change, the school day will also be increased beginning in January when students return after winter break.

Superintendent Gary Mical said the new agreement will benefit both students and teachers.

The middle school will have a decrease in daily advisory time and an increase in time for academic periods. The tentative schedule for the middle school will be from 8 a.m. until 2:43 p.m. Elementary students will attend class from 8:45 a.m. until 3:28 p.m. Both early and late schedules will begin 15 minutes earlier than they presently do.

Teachers will see a salary increase of 5.5 percent the first year, 4.5 percent the second year, and 4.5 percent the third year.

Village to begin Streetscape project

Mundelein—The Mundelein Village Board decided upon preliminary plans for the next three phases of the Streetscape project at the Monday night meeting.

According to Kenneth Miller, public works director, Phase II of Streetscape will involve making improvements to the 400 block of Seymour, Hawley Street between Seymour and Route 45, and Route 45 from Hawley to Hammond. This phase is expected to begin next year.

Phase III, expected to begin in 2001, will consist of the remainder of Hawley Street, from Seymour to the east portion of the business district.

In 2002, Phase IV will consist of Seymour south of Hawley. Miller said all of these plans are only preliminary and therefore may be changed.

Improvements to these areas, Miller said, will be "storefront to storefront," with sidewalks, curbs and streets being repaired. Pedestrian streetlights, trees, benches, trash receptacles, and planters will also be added to give a new look to downtown Mundelein.

Phase I of the project, with work to be done on storm sewers and sidewalks, is expected to begin next week. A ribbon-cutting ceremony to kickoff the Streetscape project will be held at noon on Aug. 27 at the corner of Park and Seymour.

Village at odds over annexation

Lindenhurst—The village of Lindenhurst and residents of a 56-acre tract of land on the village's northwest side are at odds over a proposed forced annexation.

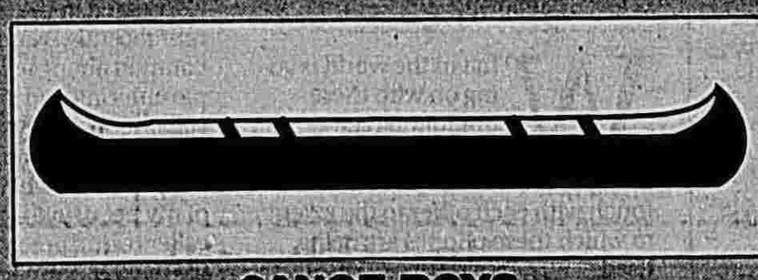

The area is currently unincorporated, but is surrounded by either forest preserve property or developments within village limits. Residents, originally approached by the village in 1996 to voluntarily annex, failed to respond with the exception of one resident's attorney sending a letter stating they did not desire to annex. The same residents, Bob and Susan Holbach, had their attorney submit a letter in response to the village's renewed interest in forced annexation stating if that is done, a counter suit would be filed to de-annex.

The residents are concerned with losing their ability to have a pumpkin farm, Christmas tree farm, mother-in-law apartment and animals. The village response included the residents still have the ability to work with the village to assure their concerns are addressed. The plats on the area are expected to be completed within two weeks, with a possible public hearing coming as soon as September.

'Peaker' plants need remote sites

If there's any case at all for the alternate electricity generating plants that want to serve suburban areas, it's that they should be located in industrial areas. In our locality, the alternates are about as welcome as another landfill.

We get frustrated with the brown outs, black outs and spin outs of Commonwealth Edison, but at least the much beleagured utility giant isn't about to dump pony generating plants into residential areas like the company that proposes to put a power plant in Libertyville.

An outpouring of citizen opposition has been sounded in Mundelein, Grayslake, unincorporated Lake County and Libertyville. For starters, 2,485 people signed petitions opposing a power plant proposed by Indeck Energy Services Inc. More signatures are still being received.

Every community is smarting from installations of ugly cellular phone towers. Now the alternative generating plants are coming. Island Lake also has been contacted as a site for one of the opportunistic power endeavors, called "peakers" because they thrive on outrageously high rates for peak use delivery. With power deregulation on the way, are we to expect peaker plants sprouting up like cell towers?

We don't know if it's economically or technologically feasible, but the pony power plants ought to seek sites in well-screened industrial areas as far away from the population as possible. Besides seeking unobtrusive sites, the alternates also need to make a case for need.

Two world class companies in 100

There can be little doubt about the connection between the general excellent economic health of Lake County and the fact that two of the world's 100 best-managed companies are in our midst.

Both Abbott Laboratories of Abbott Park and Baxter International Inc., Deerfield, made the list compiled by Industry Week, a highly respected magazine devoted to business management. The winning companies all exhibit robust sales and growing profits; they constantly invest in their employees, new technology, the environment, safety and their communities.

Abbott is the world's No. 2 diagnostics company, reporting record earnings of $2.3 billion in 1998. The Abbott employee stock purchase plan has generated 650 millionaires, some of whom quite likely are your neighbors.

Baxter is the world's leading medical technology manufacturer. More than 37 percent of total Baxter sales for 1998 came from products introduced within the last five years. Baxter is a model for alternate work arrangements where employees can work part-time, have a compressed work week, job share or telecommute.

Abbott and Baxter exemplify the global nature of big business today. Foreign markets make up more than one-third of Abbott sales. Baxter products are sold in more than 100 countries, with foreign markets accounting for 52 percent of sales.

We salute Abbott and Baxter for success, leadership and their standing in an elite group of outstanding companies.

Saluting 50 years

One of northern Illinois' largest elementary schools in geographic size and enrollment was formed a half century ago in central Lake County by the slim margin of five votes.

Woodland Consolidated, organized in 1948 when seven one-room school districts merged, has come to symbolize the huge changes in the way public education is delivered in emerging suburban areas. Gurnee Elementary opted out in the early days of the consolidation movement.

"We wanted something better," explained the first board of education president, Walter Meumann, a spry 88, as he spoke at a program commemorating the school's 50th anniversary. The rural area constituting the future consolidated schools included many large farms, Meumann recalled, including the 1,000 acre Sears Farm (now Wildwood) and the Wilson Farm in the vicinity of the future Lakehurst Shopping Center.

To make the consolidated school a reality, Meumann said families sacrificed, digging deeply into personal resources to overcome lack of a tax base enjoyed by established communities. Cooperation and the unending desire to improve were the watchwords for growth and success. Now, with an enrollment in excess of 6,000 and physical facilities the envy of many high schools and colleges, Woodland still relies on the fervor of parents and taxpayers banding together to make "something better" for education.

Making do for Y2K, millennium time

BILL SCHROEDER
Publisher

Up until now, my preparations for dealing with Y2K bugs and welcoming the new millennium Dec. 31 in memorable fashion are tentative. I don't have any plans yet to await the striking of midnight at a remote Pacific island nor have I adopted the bunker mentality of the millennium doomsayers.

I just finished reading Ruff's views on rough times ahead. An old-fashioned cellar in our 60-year-old plus home could be a receptical for stocks of water, canned goods and dried food. I don't know if there'll be room for candles and batteries. And I sure don't know where I'd put the bags of quarters and half dollars that author Ruff advocates for trading if banks can't open and there is a currency crisis.

The dilemma is sitting tight for Y2K or adopting a doomsday scenario.

My golf partners haven't been much help. We usually solve world problems while waiting for the next tee, but their sage advice hasn't been forthcoming. Jerry quite likely will hike off to his cabin in the Colorado Rockies. Mike and Sam have purchased new tuxedos. What's to celebrate if the sky is going to fall? Sam, a school teacher and sensible, originally planned to be tucked in for the night by 11:30 p.m. Dec. 31. He possibly has succumbed to millennium fever and thinking about going formal to welcome in the new millenium in style. Mike, ever the adventurer, still is looking for that remote island or maybe a cosmic cruise.

Travel agents advise that the time to book a cruise or reserve a glitzy hotel stay for New Year's weekend is right now! By mid-September, all the good spots will be taken even at 20-25 percent premiums or more. Still, the gouging might be worth it.

All of us have friends face every New Year's Eve like it's a once-in-a-lifetime celebration so a memorable millennium might not be such a big deal. And if you're still trying to figure out whether the new one won't really begin until 2001, you might miss the fun altogether.

I thought Sam had a pretty good game plan— until he bought that tuxedo.

Out of touch and I don't even mind

By MIL MISIC
Guest Columnist

What in the world is going on with these ubiquitous cell phones? I can't believe people have to remain in touch with each other to the extent to which these phones are being used.

I'm not even going to go into the danger of using them while driving which is a whole other column. But, wherever I go, be it grocery shopping, to the mall, or a restaurant, it seems everyone is yakking it up.

Seated in the lobby of a restaurant recently, waiting for a friend, I counted about seven out of 10 people entering and speaking on their cell phones. They were not alone but in the company of several other people. Now right there, that's one of my pet peeves—a telephone caller taking precedence over people in your presence.

One morning as I walked into a Menard's for some paint, I saw a young woman with three toddlers, one in her arms, two hanging on to her trouser legs and she was on the cell phone, for heaven's sake. I think I could rule out that she was having an affair and was talking to him while away from her husband. Who has time to have an affair with three toddlers? She did not look like she might be the head of a construction crew and was getting information as to how many 2 by 4's were needed on the job site.

I can understand a doctor having a cell phone or some other professional person but these people looked like housewives and teenagers. I saw no senior citizens and you would think they would be

Pickles challenges school 'stakeholders'

Dr. Patricia Pickles, superintendent of North Chicago Unit School District, is calling on all sides of the community to help guarantee sweeping changes adopted by the board of education last spring.

Besides uniforms for all grades through high school, students will attend school 15 minutes longer each day. There will be greater emphasis on reading, writing and mathematics.

Pickles is seeking more business support. She calls citizens "stakeholders" in community schools. Performance-based pay is being studied for teachers.

Underlying the new look beginning this fall is a $15 to 16 million facilities upgrade program. Included is the institution of a middle school math-science magnet program.

Lake County Board Chairman Jim LaBelle plans to test new waters after after leaving his job with Skipper Marine Development in Winthrop Harbor.

LaBelle (R-Zion) said he left the company by mutual agreement a few weeks back. "We made the decision together," he said.

LaBelle said he had a good 2 1/2 years with the company and got to to a lot of interesting things but "it was time to move on."

For the short term, LaBelle said "he has plenty" to do as board chairman but will continue to explore other professional options in addition to the chairmanship.

Signs everywhere

It's not your imagination if you've noticed that street signs around the county are becoming brighter.

Lake County's Division of Transportation is in the process of switching nearly 500 pedestrian, school and bicycle warning signs from a yellow background to fluorescent yellow-green.

"It's been proven that the fluorescent background increases a sign's visibility and we want the enhanced safety for pedestrians, bicyclists and school children," Public Works and Transportation Committee Chair Bonnie Thomson Carter (R-Ingleside) said.

Just call me Broken Rib

THE PFARR CORNER
Jerry Pfarr

Two famous humor columnists, Erma Bombeck and Art Buchwald, were chatting. Erma was telling Art about the painful back problems she had been suffering.

"Can you get a column out of it?" asked Art. "If you can get a column out of it, it's worth it!"

So true, writers will do anything for an idea. They will grope, grapple and grovel.

I asked my wife, "What should I write about this week?"

"What else?" she replied. "Your broken ribs."

Ah, yes, I can get a column out of that. I am suffering from a broken rib or two. What happened? My wife punched me in the chest. She has a terrific left jab.

Okay, so she didn't punch me, but she says I probably deserved one.

Actually, frolicking with my dog, I tripped over his tie-out leash and did a belly flop in the driveway. It would have made a humorous home video.

Fractured ribs, of course, are very painful and slow to heal. I have had them five times in my adult life; it seems to happen every several years.

It only hurts when I laugh, or cough, or sneeze, or breathe deeply, or accidentally make a sudden move that rattles the rib cage.

Should our paths cross in the next few weeks, please don't slap me on the back or tap me on the chest.

Years ago, while painting my house, I slipped off a ladder and impaled my ribs on a neighbor's picket fence. Another potential video, but we didn't have camcorders back then.

Another time, during a nasty winter, hurrying to reach the front door of my job place I tried to hurdle a bank of snow. Whoops, didn't make it!

Yet another time, while hurtling downhill on my brother's racing bike, which has no brakes, I wiped out on a curve and plowed into a grove of trees.

I seem to be an accident waiting to happen.

So now our Lakeland weather has turned glorious, August temperatures sashaying seductively in the seventies, and my friends are out on golf courses while I can't swing a club without feeling like I'm on a torture rack.

I long have felt that our native American Indians were great at giving their papooses colorful and meaningful names, such as Crazy Horse, Sitting Bull, Chief Angry Eyes, Young Man Afraid of Horses, Turkey Head, Kills Game and Comes Back, and Oliver Talks With Bear.

Meanwhile, we were giving our kids names like Tom, Dick and Harry, and more currently, cowboy names such as Dakota, Cheyenne and Cody.

I used to think if I were an Indian, given my penchant for procrastination and the fact I always seem to be scrambling to keep an appointment or meet a deadline, my tribe would label me Running Late.

But now I am thinking Broken Ribs might be just as fitting.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Why not be more discriminating with our entertainment dollars?

I commend Terri Matthies for taking to task the parents whose poor judgment landed their 3 year old daughter in the audience for "The General's Daughter." She was absolutely right in being concerned that the girl was definitely not ready to be assaulted by the graphic violence and sex she says was portrayed in the film.

My only question is why Matthies—and a few million of the rest of us—aren't more discriminating in the way we allow Hollywood to exploit us? Why do we continue to spend our money and our time wasting in front of an endless parade of gratuitous sex and violence, vulgar language, mindless plots and sensationalistic images designed to stimulate our emotions but leave us somehow dull and vapid?

Why do we spend our money in the first place? And why, once we're fooled by a rating system and critics so devoid of values that they gloat over almost anything Hollywood puts out don't we get up in the first 15 minutes and demand our money back?

Hardly anyone with any sense of decency can deny that our entire society is becoming numb to all this. And the downward spiral will continue until many more of us simply quit paying Hollywood to assault us, and to quit allowing our kids to spend our money on this filth. It will not get better until the river of green runs dry. And as long as any of us support it we will be a part of the problem rather than the solution. If Hollywood hasn't earned a boycott I don't know who has.

Bill buying votes again

Outrageous. But nothing more could be expected from Bill Clinton.

Pardoning and granting clemency to 16 members of the Puerto Rican terrorist group, FALN-Armed Forces of the National Liberation, who were convicted in connection with at least 130 bombings in the United States in the 70s and early 80s is simply outrageous.

This in the same week of the Jewish center shootings in Los Angeles. What could Clinton be thinking? What a terrible message he is sending to the people of America. Another of Clinton's "in your face" acts.

Undoubtedly, Clinton's focus groups, polling and the personal problems the 16 terrorist bombers had in their youth gave Clinton cause, their mothers and grandmothers probably created severe mental conflict and bombing relieved their emotional tensions.

I am not smart enough to figure out what Clinton could possibly be thinking but it undoubtedly is an attempt of the Clintons to gain votes with New York's huge Puerto Rican population for Hillary's Senate campaign.

I just hope we all remember the sham Clinton has made of the presidency and replace him and his party with a good, decent president whoever he or she may be.

Lottery of sin

I would like to say two things to religious people that support the lottery by purchasing tickets.

First of all, the lottery gives hope to sinners who had no hope except to repent of their sinful ways and turn to God. Sinners are putting off the decision to turn to God hoping they will hit the big one on Wednesday or Saturday. I call the Lottery Satan's hope because it has opposed evangelism, social change, character development, and virtue.

Secondly, playing the lottery is poor stewardship and those guilty of poor stewardship need not expect the financial blessings of God. Either your faith is in God's blessings or it in a chance to be struck by lightning.

This is not to impugn Mayor Charles Amrich, because Chuck and I are good friends. It is to illustrate a point about something that grinds my gut.

Our state legislators "gave" Island Lake $300,000 to help them complete a much needed water main. That's nice. But, whose money are they passing out, anyway?

Let's say that there's two cars for each of Island Lake's residents—and, they have to pay an additional $35 for their license plates this year. Roughly 4,000 people in and around Island Lake, I'd say.

Multiply, $35 by 8,000. Do you get $280,000? That's just THIS year, of course. Island Lakers will be paying as long as they own a license plate. Does Island Lake get its money back every year like this?

Or, will it go to some "needy" $6.5 million decorative FOUNTAIN at Navy Pier. (See Governor George increase your license fees and then pass out your money in Chicago, c. July).

Raise your hand if you're tired of your elected officials taking credit for giving away your money. Think of that the next time you see their smiling face in your local newspaper.

Island Lake: Give the money back and have a one-year fundraiser where everybody pays $35 extra just one time.

TOUCH: Too many cell phones prime candidates for having one in case of a fall or, God forbid, a stroke while away from home.

Is everyone so lonesome they need this constant attention by another?

We stayed at the New York Plaza Hotel a couple years ago and there was a phone in the bathroom. That is the last place I want to converse with anyone. Some things are private. And I would shudder to think I was talking to someone who was in their bathroom as we discussed where we would meet for lunch.

We've come a long ways since I was growing up with the old wall phones and having two or three other parties sharing the same phone line. You had a certain number of rings which indicated the call was for you and the phone range in all of the homes at the same time. The phrase "rubbering" came into being in those days. If you called a rural person, you could hardly understand what was being said because people listened in (or "rubbered") and that caused a loud hum on the connection making it very difficult to be understood.

I think about all the conversations that are floating through the air over our planet Earth and if any one is out there listening, I'm sure he or she (or it), has their hands over their ears, assuming they have these protuberances, and screaming, "For heaven's sake, shut up."

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

You're the boss...what should you do?

We've all heard the expression, "you're the boss." Sometimes it is said in jest, sometimes in earnest and often it is used when someone wants to pass the buck on making a decision.

However, there are times in our lives when we must lead our company, non-profit organization, or informal group to bigger and better things. At those times we come face-to-face with the question: We're the boss, what should we do?

n this column, I want to share some "boss advice." Not from my personal experience as a boss, but rather from watching other very talented "boss leaders."

Being a better boss

• Add value. Good bosses focus on adding value rather than exercising power. Being the boss does concentrate some of the power of any organization in the hands of the person in charge. However, most boss leaders realize that the constant show and use of power erodes it.

Great bosses focus on areas where they can add value to the company. Herb Kelleher, the CEO of Southwest Airlines, helped load baggage during the Thanksgiving rush a few years ago. I'm not suggesting that every boss should do as he did, but it certainly sent a message to employees and it added value at the time.

• Create clear objectives. Great bosses create clear objectives rather than causing constant confusion. If the boss doesn't have a sense of direction, or doesn't communicate it to every member of the organization, confusion will result.

To establish effective objectives you must include these four elements: 1) clear, specific, achievable and measurable goals; 2) deadlines for completion; 3) the rewards associated with achieving the objectives and 4) knowledge of the resources required to meet the goals.

• Show tough love. Great bosses find themselves in disciplinary roles from time to time. They prove that they are great bosses by showing tough love rather than saying "tough luck."

The choices employees make do determine their ultimate success. However, the caring discipline of a great boss can help employees make better choices. For tough love to work, the boss must genuinely care about the growth and success of every associate.

• Delegating effectively. Part of the job of any great boss is to see that work is accomplished quickly and efficiently by others. Yet, effective delegation is difficult for many bosses.

This may be because they became the boss by being a "doer." Folks who get the job done are often promoted. Because they view success as an immediate result they often continue to do what needs to be done.

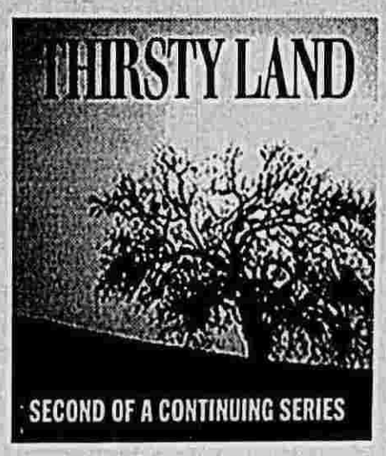

There are two pitfalls associated with this behavior. First, they deprive up-and-coming associates the value of learning by doing. Second, they use valuable time for routine tasks when they might better utilize those hours for long-term planning, problem solving

Lack of rain pinching farmers

Some estimates say half the corn crop has been wiped out

By SANDY HARTOGH
Staff Reporter

Farm crops as well as home crops were hit hard by the lack of rain this summer. Another week without a steady rainfall would have put Lake County farmers in a position to request drought relief from the state or federal government, according to Greg Koeppen, public information director for the Lake County Farm Bureau.

"We need a good, steady rain for at least two days, although it would still be a little too late for some of the crops," he said. "July and August are crucial months for precipitation, because that is when the fruits of most crops are at a critical growing stage."

There are about 350 farms left in Lake County, encompassing about 60,000 acres of cropland. 50,000 of those acres are used to harvest corn, grain and soybeans. According to Koeppen, farmers have already lost half of their corn crops to the dry spell.

"The soybean crops have a better chance of surviving because they are lower to the ground, thus creating their own shade." he said.

Koeppen, who grew up on a farm, claims that it is very hard for area farmers to accept this drought. With soybean, corn and hog prices coming in low this past year, they are getting a double strike against them.

"The farmers are not winning this year," stated Koeppen. "If we get enough dry years like this, and the prices continue to be low, we fear that they may sell out."

"But," he continued, "they are a tough breed. Any other businessman would have thrown in the towel already."

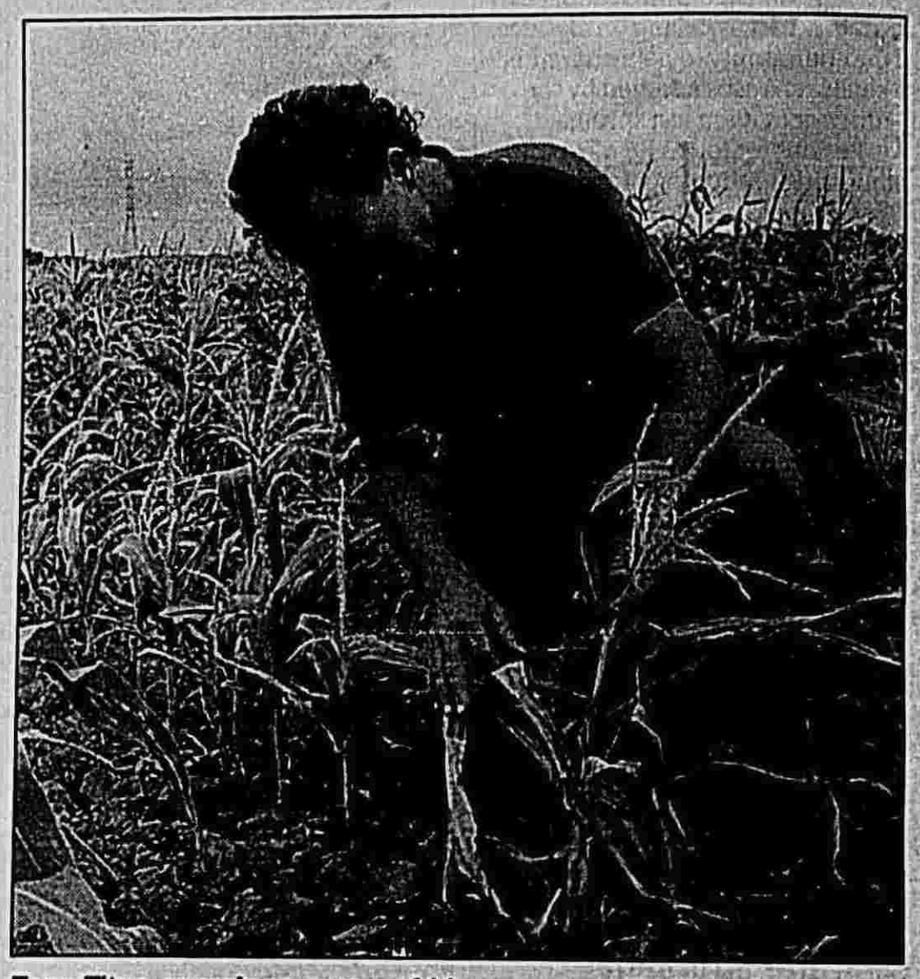

Grayslake farmer Tony Titus, who owns 195 acres at Rte. 83 and Peterson Road, can attest to being "tough enough" to hang in there, despite rumors stemming from a recent article reporting that his family-run farmstand was closing.

"We have no intention of quitting," said Titus, who has been farming since 1975. ". . . I think that a lot of farmers will throw in the towel after this year. The love of doing something for nothing grows old. . ."

Titus said signs of this summer's dry spell have shown in his sweet corn, which has only yielded about half the normal crop. His wife, Debbie advises canners to buy their corn now. the corn in Sept. will be smaller and may not be available every day. Although he did not notice a change in the quality of corn he's harvested so far, Titus admits that a least one customer has complained that the corn was "not as sweet as last year's crop."

He says he partially blames the increasing growth of development for the small corn harvest this year.

"The birds have less land to be on. . . farmers have to contend with the red-winged blackbirds and starlings in particular. A good flock of them can ruin one acre in about an hour."

Tony Titus examines some of his corn crop that has been damaged because of the recent drought.—Photo by Derek Nosal

Although Titus has lost much to the drought, he says he can't complain, considering the plight of the farmers out east who have no crops at all.

"I'm frustrated, but at the same time I remember something my Uncle John, who was a farmer, always said. . . 'You can always count on getting a crop in Lake County — it may not be a big crop, but you always get something," Titus said.

"The hardest thing for me, and all farmers in general, to take is the fact that all other sectors of the economy are doing so well." he concluded.

When asked if consumer prices will increase because of the drought, Koeppen replied that corn prices will probably be raised. It most likely will not affect grain prices, because the farmers still have a large surplus from last year, which they held on to in hopes that prices would increase.

"An increase in corn prices puts no more money in the farmers pocket," explained Koeppen. "A full field selling a $2 a bushel as opposed to a half field selling a $4 a bushel will not increase their profits."

New subdivision going multiple at country club

Pre-construction sales have begun at Woodland Green, a community of 155 homes planned on a wooded site adjoining the Fox Lake Country Club.

Plans for the community, located just east and adjacent to the Fox Lake Country Club off Grass Lake and State Park roads, call for 42 ranch villas, 73 townhomes and a future phase of 40 court homes. Court homes will be introduced in Phase II of the community in the year 2000.

Ranch home and townhome sales currently are being conducted from the country club's pro shop. A sales center will open in September.

United Homes is the builder. United also is developing Brooks Farm, 517 single-family homes and court units on Wilson Rd., Ingleside.

SOUNDS: Poet creates beauty

she shares with her Yorkshire terrier. The four-legged companion comes from 50 generations of championship stock and "she acts like she knows it, too," avows Nicholas, who is a great-grandmother.

The poetess is a voracious reader, "but no junk," she insisted. She employs library research for material and draws on her home life and memories for subject matter.

Nicholas is in excellent health except for total hearing loss that overtook her a few years ago. With typical good nature and a never-say-die spirit, Willadene takes deafness in stride.

"I can't hear my own voice, but that's God's will." She says she relies on a good memory to overcome the loss of hearing.

Bringing love and kindness into the lives of family members and friends now is her mission in life. She abhors the violence and hate in modern society and is convinced that some of her writings offset the negatives in society. Nicholas stated her belief that much violence and hate is propagated by the media—and "junk" literature.

"Angel Children" also contains pithy sayings like "The greatest artist is one who, in the simplest way, makes others aware of the obvious truths which most people overlook."

She loves to explore questions like what happens to a sunbeam and the promise of a flower. Willadene describes loneliness in a touching poem, "I Needed Someone to Hug Me."

Willadene communicates in person with written questions and on the telephone by using a special operator to transmit questions on a telephonic screen in her home. The system works surprisingly well.

She speaks in a loud, firm voice.

Two of her children supplied her with a computer, which she knows how to use, but not frequently because writing and talking are preferred.

Her late husband, Ray T. Nicholas, was the popular Farm Adviser of Lake County for more than 40 years. Both Willadene and her husband were accomplished gardeners.

"Angel Children" is available for $10 per copy by writing Nicholas at 275 S. Slusser St., Grayslake, Ill. 60030.

TAYLOR: To be a better boss and other high level priorities.

- Compel change. Great bosses should lead and encourage change. Why? Because no change means no growth. Growth is a prerequisite to success. We must change to grow, and grow to succeed.

Growth has two meanings. Growth means to increase in size - get bigger, and it means to improve in practice - to get better. Good bosses focus on getting better, and often build bigger organizations as a byproduct.

- Lead by example. Great bosses don't ask for more from their associates than they are willing to give of themselves. They lead by example instead of directing through demands. If you demand that everyone be at work by 8:00 a.m., don't come in late yourself. If you expect one-hour lunch hours, don't take two hours yourself. Be the example you wish others to follow. You'll have their respect and inspire better performance.

BAN: Burning leaves debated tional data on the impact of leaf burning," he said.

However, Galassie said he can understand the concerns of residents with large number of leaves who feel they need times to burn. Therefore, he feels a limited ban with restrictions on the months of the year and times when burning is allowed makes sense.

Not everyone agrees, however.

Board member Bonnie Thomson Carter (R-Ingleside) opposes any new restrictions on leaf burning until more is done to educate the public about the issue.

Restricting leaf burning to just a couple days a week may make matters worse because "you're going to have heavy smoke when you take seven days of burning and condense it down to two."

SITE: CLC gets initial nod

"The committee believes the state should not agree to participate in the Lakehurst site until the developer can produce firm commitments and assurances about the other participants and future development," said the committee's letter. "It should be emphasized that even with these assurances, the committee and the Board of Higher Education may still prefer the Grayslake site for this project."

Ed Moore, who chaired the committee that made the recommendation to the full state board, said the resolution indicates the board's preference is to locate the University Center at the College of Lake County, but a final decision has been deferred to allow more time for additional information.

Moore said he thinks it's unlikely the board would change its mind but indicated members would like all the facts before making the final selection.

Martin Tuohy, developer for the Lakehurst Mall site, said he sees the board's resolution as a "positive action," even though the board indicated its preference for the CLC site.

"They've deferred any implementation of locating the University Center until the year 2000, and that's more than enough time to show the entire new urbanism will be developed," said Tuohy. "We're determined to create this community and it will succeed."

Still, Tuohy is somewhat puzzled as to why the board still prefers the Grayslake site. He said all of the studies done so far indicate Lakehurst is the most accessible site in terms of highway access and is near the largest population pool of potential students. "There's no doubt the county wants it (the University Center) in Lakehurst," said Dan Friedlander, a spokesman for the Lakehurst site. "We just have to convince members of the board that it's by far the best site."

Evelyn Schiele, director of public relations for the College of Lake County, said the college is pleased the state board continues to "express interest in our site and recognizes the educational merits of the Grayslake campus as an educational center."

Although somewhat disappointed the final decision was delayed, Schiele said the college realizes the "IBHE is making a very important decision and they want to make sure they have all the facts to make a good decision."

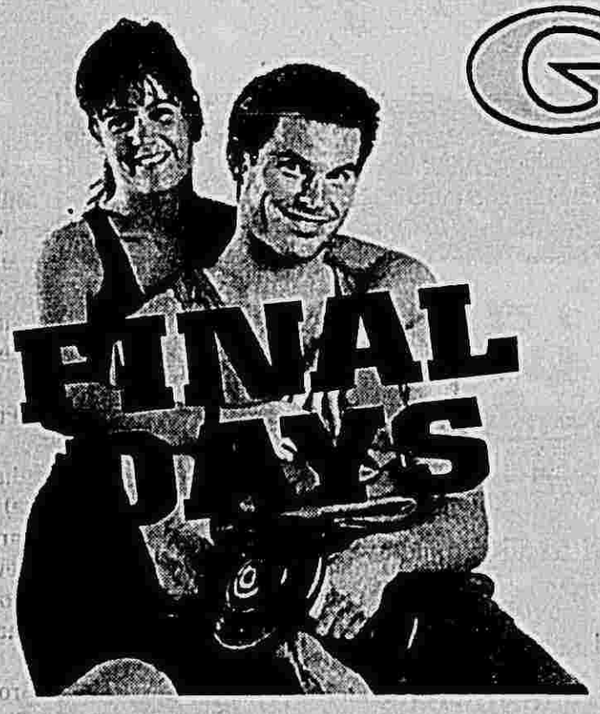

In its letter, the state board committee outlined six factors behind its preference for CLC. It pointed to "multiple risks" bringing into question the viability of project at Lakehurst and the site's appropriateness for an educational institution.

It also pointed out that Grayslake would be a newly constructed University Center designed specifically for its intended purpose, while at Lakehurst a vacant building would have to be adopted for such a use. The University Center would also be able to share many of the existing resources of the College of Lake County, such as the library and other facilities, if it were located at the Grayslake site.

The committee in its letter also indicates it would be less costly to build the University at CLC. According to their figures, initial capital costs at CLC would be $19.8 million, compared to $23.4 million at Lakehurst.

Those estimates, however, have been challenged by the Lakehurst developers. "We know they're not accurate," Friedlander said.

REFORM: Campaign changes greater ballot access for independent and third party candidates by reducing the number of petitions needed for these candidates to get onto ballots. Currently, the signatures needed to qualify for inclusion on ballots is much larger for independent parties and individuals than for Democrats and Republicans. By easing the restrictions, Link believes it will reduce the influence of lobbyists and special interest groups and allow for greater public debate on important issues.

"I believe by placing voluntary limits of legislative and statewide campaigns, and allowing small individual contributions to be matched with some form of public financing will produce the kind of reforms that will restore voter confidence and participation in our political process," he said.

Link said the Illinois House has appointed the House Committee on Elections and Campaign Reform to study the issue. However, he said so far the Republican leadership in the Senate "doesn't want to be active as far as campaign finance reform."

State Sen. Bill Peterson (R-Prairie View) said Link is "on the right track" in that "we certainly have to identify ways to bring down the cost of elections."

However, he questions the validity of some of Link's proposals, such as the use of public financing for campaigns or candidate literature.

"I don't think the taxpayers should be footing the bill for candidates," he said.

Peterson agrees with Link that there should be spending limits but believes they should be mandatory limits, not voluntary as Link proposes. He also favors curtailing the practice of transferring funds from one campaign to another.

PUBLIC NOTICE
REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

The Board of Trustees of the Round Lake Area Public Library District is seeking proposals for construction management services (at risk) for the construction of a vestibule addition and interior renovations to the existing library.

Sealed proposals in opaque envelopes, marked on the outside with the words "Round Lake Area Library-Construction Management" will be accepted until 3:00 p.m., Tuesday, September 14, 1999, addressed to:
Barbara Pfannkuche, Director
Round Lake Area Library
906 Hart Road
Round Lake, IL 60073

At which time the proposals will be opened in public and read aloud. Documents may be obtained after 9:00 a.m., Friday, August 27, 1999, from either Frye, Gillan, Molinaro, Architects, Ltd., 308 West Erie Street, Suite 600, Chicago, Illinois 60610 (312-440-1584) or from Project & Construction Services, Inc., 1300 Skokie Highway, Suite 104, Gurnee, Illinois 60031 (847-623-9319).

The proposed work consists of pre- and post construction phases, including value engineering, establishment of guaranteed maximum price, construction contracting and construction management.

Award of the contract will be made to the lowest responsible bidder. Responsibility will be determined pursuant to the quality and compliance of responses to the information requested, financial responsibility, and other factors deemed to be in the best interest of the Library.

The Library reserves the right to reject any and all proposals and to waive technicalities or informalities.

All entities supplying proposals must provide a Certification of Eligibility to Enter into Public Contracts and must agree to abide by the provisions of the Illinois Human Rights Act, the Illinois Prevailing Wage Act, and all requirements made of a contractor involved in construction pursuant to a State Library Construction Grant and Community Development Block Grant.

Successful bidder must be able to provide Performance and Payment Bond in 100% of GMP with a surety approved by the Library.

XI. CONSTRUCTION FUND	1,216,000.00
AGGREGATE APPROPRIATED	$3,070,000.00

Section 3. All unexpended balances of proceeds received annually from public library taxes not in excess of statutory limits may be transferred to the Special Reserve Fund, heretofore established according to 75 ILCS 16/40-5, pursuant to plans developed and adopted by this board and said unexpended balances shall be accumulated in this fund for the purpose of erecting a building to be used as a library, purchasing a site for erecting such a building, purchasing a building, repairing, remodeling, or improving an existing library building, building an addition to an existing library building, furnishing necessary equipment for a library building, or acquiring library materials (such as books, periodicals, films, and recordings) and electronic data storage and retrieval facilities in connection with either the purchase or construction of a new library building or the expansion of an existing library building. The Board further appropriates all sums accumulated in said fund or transferred thereto during the 1999/2000 fiscal year subject to compliance with statutory procedures set forth above.

Section 4. Except as otherwise provided by law, no further appropriations shall be made at any time within such fiscal year, provided that this Board may from time to time make transfers between the various items in any fund not affecting the total amount appropriated, or appropriations in excess of those authorized by the budget in order to meet an immediate and unforeseen emergency by a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the trustees present and voting, as provided by 75 ILCS 16/30-90, and this Board may amend this budget and appropriation ordinance from time to time by the same procedure as prescribed by statute for the original adoption of a budget and appropriation ordinance; provided that nothing in this section shall be construed to permit transfer between funds required by law to be kept separate. Any remaining balances after the close of the fiscal year, and until September 30th for the payment of such obligations, and any remaining balances shall be available for the transfer to special reserve to be accumulated.

Section 5. Pursuant to 75 ILCS 16/35-5, the amount to be included in the 1999/2000 levy for the Building and Equipment Fund in the maximum amount of $70,000.00 is subject to a ceiling of .02 percent of the value of all of the taxable property in this district, as equalized or assessed as previously authorized by this Board.

Section 6. This Ordinance is passed pursuant to statutory authority and the Illinois Public Library District Act; the Illinois Municipal Budget Law; the Illinois Revenue Code, and other statutes hereunto appertaining.

Section 7. This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval, and publication according to law.

What children look for in back-to-school shopping

Every August, back-to-school shopping brings about the age-old dilemma: what children want vs. what parents think they should have. After a seemingly eternal struggle, could it be that these two polar opposites are moving in the same direction? Surprisingly, yes. According to research done by back-to-school expert Mead, many of the characteristics that students are looking for in back-to-school items also are priorities for parents.

American demographers have looked at today's student body and dubbed them "Generation Y," a group of 60 million children ages 5 to 20 who are the most media-savvy, marketing-conscious group our country ever has seen. As educated consumers who know what they want, this year's back-to-school crowd has a list of qualities that they are looking for in everything from school supplies to clothes.

As "Gen Yers" go shopping this fall, here is what they will be looking for and "Y" it's important to them.

• qualitY — Quality is one of the most influential factors in the decision-making process for back-to-school supplies and accessories among children. Students are interested in items that are well-made, attractive and bear a brand that stands for quality. Whether it's a folder or favorite outfit, students are learning at a young age that if you want things to last throughout the entire school year, you have to invest in top-quality merchandise. Simply stated, quality is cool!

• durabilitY — Nothing is more annoying for parents or students than back-to-school gear that doesn't last through the first semester. According to classroom research performed by Mead, as early as elementary school, students consider strength and durability important factors when purchasing school supplies. From desk to locker to backpack, items like notebooks need to endure the test of time and trauma. Plastic covers that cannot be torn off and coil lock wire, like those found on Mead's Five Star® notebooks, meet the true durability standard of "kidproof."

This fall, the bus stops here with the latest fashions in clothes, hairstyles, and backpacks and school supplies from Mead.

• functionalitY — Practical items that work with a child's lifestyle are of the utmost importance in back-to-school shopping. Clothes that are comfortable and suit children's tastes also must be functional and allow students to work and play hard. However, practical and functional still can be fashionable and fabulous. This year's back-to-school wardrobe is full of "seasonless" clothes that work well year-round. Simple, weightless pieces are all the rage, allowing children to mix and match throughout the school year, extending the life of their favorite outfits. As students hit the stores this fall, they should remember that nothing needs to work more for them than school supplies. A super-functional line of binders, planners, folios and backpacks, Mead's Five Star First Gear® helps students get ahead with durable, lightweight nylon designs and special features like easy-to-use forms geared to students, sturdy Velcro closures and multiple storage pockets.

• economY — From the first time that children collect an allowance, they begin to learn about the value of the almighty dollar. Inevitably, the search for a good buy becomes the focus of most shopping sprees. However, those who have opted for "cheap" rather than "value" quickly learn that the least expensive item doesn't always end up being the most economical. Mead's Grad® line of notebooks feature durable moisture-resistant covers, snag-free twin wire, heavy-duty pockets and perforated pages — the perfect combination of quality, style and price that equals value.

• personalitY — Children have a special knack for letting their personality shine through in everything they do. Clothes, accessories, hairstyles and even school supplies serve as an outlet for children to make a statement about who they are, what they like and what's important to them. Retro hairstyles and clothes let students take a trip back to the '60s and '70s.

Those at the head of the class this year will know what to look for and "whY" as they hit the stores for back-to-school shopping. And, that might make it just a bit easier for students and parents to reach a common ground this fall — at least when it comes to shopping.

AMBROSE MARTIAL ARTS

Teaching Values As Well As Techniques

RAY AMBROSE
2nd Dan

Head Instructor

- Nationally recognized Competitor in FORMS AND SPARRING
- Approved video usage of 2nd Degree Black Belt promotion test to law enforcement personnel for demonstration of knowledge and proper techniques of TAEKWON-DO
- Creator of SAFE (Simple and Fast Escape) Self-Defense method.

• COURTESY • INTEGRITY • INDOMITABLE SPIRIT • SELF-CONTROL • PERSEVERANCE

Teaching the best of Traditional TAEKWON-DO and HAPKIDO with practical Self-Defense applications. AMBROSE MARTIAL ARTS training program emphasizes proper technique and MORE!

• MARTIAL ARTS INCREASES DISCIPLINE AND FOCUS

Self-discipline and focus are crucial aspects of conquering challenges and improving scholastic success. We reinforce scholastic goals through academic achievement & improvement recognition. Additionally, the rank or belted system teaches a student to become goal oriented.

• MARTIAL ARTS TEACHES RESPECT FOR ONESELF AND OTHERS •

Mutual respect between students, ranks and instructors is reinforced simply through etiquette and rituals. We promote respect for another culture by teaching Korean history, mythology, terminology for techniques and simple phrases. What begins as memorization is quickly a source of pride as the student advances.

Ambrose Martial Arts will attempt to accommodate your training needs. If you are interested in early morning TKD, let us know!

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Q: Here's one I hope you can help with. I am the Senior Supervisor of a large corporation, for which I was promoted a few months ago to oversee a supervisory staff of just over 20 people. I hold a weekly staff meeting on the same day each week at exactly 10 a.m. While these meetings are approximately 45 minutes long, the information that is covered is essential to the day-to-day operations. The meetings are not optional. My problem is that I continually have to deal with various people each week showing up late (some by 10 to 20 minutes) and holding up the start of the meeting. I have heard talk among those who do show up punctually that I may be losing control of these meetings. Is there anything you can suggest that I do to get back the control without making myself look like a beast or a control freak? Thanks for your help. S.L. - Lake Villa

A: How about this? Send around a memo to all those who are to attend the meeting stating the future meetings will begin at 10:10. At exactly 10:10, be prepared to close the door to the meeting at once. It would be very effective if you would choose the most essential information and cover it first. This includes any decisions which would require input from those in attendance. Do not stop the meeting for anyone coming in late, and do not go back and review any information that had been covered while they were gone. If they miss out on important information that affects them, or decisions that are made by only those in attendance, they may recognize the need to be on time. I would imagine that these people will get the message. If not, prepare to have a one-on-one discussion with those coming in late more than once. Good luck.

Note: Nancy Sakol is a licensed personnel professional and President of Superior Personnel in Gurnee.
